Hogan Wins Celebrities Golf Title With 33-98

Burton, Fischer, Fazio Tie for 2d; Didrikson's 103 Tops Women's Division

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

To his grist of assorted golf titles little Ben Hogan yesterday added the National Celebrities championship in The Washington Post's golfing-funfest that drew 8000 starry-eyed fans to the Army and Navy Club links.

Unperturbed by autograph seekers and camera fiends in the celebrity-worshipping gallery, Hogan posted a three-below-par 33 for the final nine of the 27-hole tournament to win the Golfers Division title.

Hogan's closest challengers finished in a triple tie, eight strokes back. They were Johnny Fischer, Michigan's former intercollegiate champion; George Fazio, Woodmont's pro, and Allan Burton, pro of the host club.

All but matching Hogan's 33, over the hand-picked nine holes to which the final day's play was confined because of rain, was Babe Didrikson Zaharias' sensational 34. Shooting from the men's tees, Mrs. Zaharias won the Women's Celebrities title with a total of 103.

The tournament finish produced a three-way dead heat for the non-golfer celebrities title, in a thrilling finish among Bob Hope, Robert R. Young and Dan Topping, who shared the lead.

Mr. Young, Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad chairman, who led by a stroke on Saturday, lost it to the charge of Actor Hope and Yankee Club Owner Topping, who finished with 38's on the last nine. Young carded a 39 to retain a share of the title with a 117 total.

The official Washington division, comprised of the Supreme Court, Cabinet members, Congressional big-wigs and the military saw a new champion crowned. He is Representative Sidney Yates, Democrat, of Illinois.

The youngish black-haired Yates matched par 36 on the last nine to turn in a final card of 112, that bettered by five strokes the second-place total of Representative Earl Wilson of Indiana, who lapsed to a 40 for a final card of 117. Third place in the Official Washington division went to Les Arends, Republican whip of the House, who carded a 39 for a 118 total.

Hope Hits Spectator—Knocks on Wood

Bob Hope shanked his second shot yesterday in the Celebrities Tournament at Army Navy Country Club. The ball smacked into the leg of a spectator standing 15 feet away, and Hope gulped. But the spectator laughed, and walked away. The ball had hit his wooden leg.

Navy Flier, on Hop From D. C., Killed As Plane Hits Hill

Lieut. Comdr. Gerald T. McLean, 28, of Evanston, Ill., was killed early yesterday when his Navy torpedo bomber, on a training flight from the Naval Air Station at Anacostia to Quonset Point, R. I., crashed into a hill at Webster, Mass., 40 miles northwest of his destination.

McLean, officer in charge of Utility Squadron 4 at Quonset Point, took off from Anacostia at 9 p. m. and was due at Quonset Point at 12:20 a. m. Radio operators at LaGuardia Field and Lakehurst, N. J., heard faintly the call letters of the single-engined Avenger about 12:45 a. m., then the signal faded out.

Officials at Quonset Point said McLean was alone. He is survived by his wife in Wickford, R. I., and his parents in Evanston.

Two Sales in Two Days With One Post Ad

Mrs. L. H. of Alexandria had a clothes dryer and a tricycle which she wished to sell and so she placed an ad in the "Miscellaneous for Sale" columns of The Washington Post. Superintendents Named

D. C. Pastors Are Involved In Area Methodist Transfers

By Martha Hall
Post Reporter

Westminster, Md., June 4.—The Rev. Dr. John C. Millian pastor of Petworth Methodist Church, tonight was named superintendent of the West Washington District of the Methodist Church.

He will succeed the Rev. Dr. Ralph D. Smith, who has completed a six-year term in the office and will become pastor of Petworth Church, 33 Grant cir. nw.

The appointment was announced at the closing session of the Baltimore Annual Conference of the Methodist Church at Western Maryland College here.

Dr. Millian has been pastor of Petworth Church since 1944. Dr. Smith, who was pastor of Woodside Methodist Church in Silver Spring from 1922 until 1944, received an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree from American University in Washington tonight.

In another major shift in the conference, the Rev. Dr. O. Bryan Langrall, pastor of Francis Asbury Methodist Church in Washington, was named superintendent of the West Baltimore district of the church.

His successor at Francis Asbury, 3146 16th st. nw., will be the Rev. Charles F. Phillips, who has been superintendent of the South Baltimore district since 1947.

Most Methodist ministers in the conference were returned to their churches for another year. There were 13 shifts in the two Washington districts (East and West), and 12 in the Hagerstown district.

The Rev. Robert K. Nevitt was named associate pastor of McKendree Methodist Church. He has been serving as minister of Lincoln Road Church, which is in the process of merging with McKendree.

The Rev. E. A. Otto, who has been at North Harford Church, was named to Wilson Memorial Church,

Apartment Rents to Rise $1 to $29

By Judy Spivak
Post Reporter

Rents of almost 5000 northern Virginia apartment dwellers are scheduled to go up shortly after Federal rent controls are lifted throughout Virginia June 25.

Owners of an additional 6000 more apartment units, including the giant Fairlington project, say they are still considering whether or not to charge their tenants more.

Decontrol in Virginia was voted by the State Legislature early this year. This will take effect, regardless of any action which may be taken by Congress.

The prospective increases in major apartment developments vary from less than a dollar up to $29 monthly on individual units.

Nearly all tenants who failed to pay a voluntary 15 percent increase, allowed under rent controls in 1947 and 1948, will find their rents upped at least that amount, landlords agree.

The apartment rent hikes generally range from 5 to 20 percent, with at least one instance of a 45 percent increase.

End of the rent freeze this month will not affect thousands of Virginia apartment units built after February 1, 1947, and on which rent controls have never been set.

Congress exempted new housing from rent controls after that date to encourage needed building.

Among these recent projects are the Shirley-Duke and Belle View apartments in Alexandria, Tyler Gardens in Falls Church, Jefferson Village and Willston apartments in Fairfax and Lee Gardens North in Arlington.

Rents on postrent-control projects now average 15 to 22 percent higher than on controlled developments, according to an estimate by Charles L. Hanowell, president of the Arlington, Alexandria, Fairfax Real Estate Board.

These rental levels are "all the traffic will bear," according to Hanowell.

He pointed out that rent controls exist on most recent projects, since "practically all" new apartment developments carry Federal Housing Administration mortgage

Residents Storm Beach Claimed by Exclusive Hotel

Long Beach, N. Y., June 4 (AP).—One hundred local residents, wielding hacksaws and hammers, stormed through a wire gate today and established a beachhead on property they claim as a place to swim.

Employes of the exclusive Lido Beach Hotel, whose owner also claims ownership of the beach, formed a defense perimeter by locking arms together, but offered only passive resistance.

Members of the association, local home owners, maintain they have legal title to the 75-foot beach and road that the hotel has fenced off for its private use.

Milton Seiden, owner of the hotel, says he bought the beach from the United States Government after its wartime use as a naval reception center.

Sons of Old South Resent Truman's Wreath Omission

President Truman's failure to send a wreath yesterday to mark Confederate memorial services was regarded in some quarters as "a snub to southern people, whether so meant or not."

The President's avowed motive for his omission of "the gracious gesture"—economy—was found unacceptable by some sons and daughters of the Old South. They expressed "surprise bordering on indignation."

So said Fred P. Myers, a member of the Confederate Memorial Committee, whose father, Peter H. Myers, served as an artilleryman with Stonewall Jackson.

However, Myers stressed that he was "not trying to make something of this," that he himself did not know if there was "any connection between the President's omission and the Dixiecrat revolt in 1948."

Many of those present at services at the Confederate Monument and Arlington Amphitheater yesterday afternoon had been primed Saturday night at a dinner of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, for the President's act of omission.

Hatley Norton Mason, jr., of Richmond, adjutant-in-chief of the Sons of Confederate Veterans, had pointed out that Mr. Truman did not send a wreath at 1949's Confederate exercises and added:

"If no wreath is sent to the Confederate Memorial in Arlington by

Hyattsville Police Invade 'Wild Party'; Janitor Is Held

Five juveniles and the school janitor were among seven persons arrested in a raid on a craps game in the boiler room of the Hyattsville (Md.) Elementary School early yesterday by Hyattsville City Police.

A partly empty case of beer found at the scene was confiscated.

Hyattsville Policemen Elmer Thompson and Kenneth C. Moureau went to the school about 1:30 a. m. after receiving an anonymous complaint that there was a "wild party" in progress.

Janitor Charged

They found the school janitor, Nelson H. Joseph, 50, of 167 M st. nw., in the act of "making a pass" with a pair of dice, the police said. He was charged with disorderly conduct, gambling, and contributing to the delinquency of minors. The Negro janitor was held in $500 bond on each charge for a hearing June 15 in Hyattsville Police Court. He had failed to post the $1500 total bond late yesterday and remained in the Hyattsville Jail.

Peter R. West, 19, of 5217 42d pl., Hyattsville, who admitted, police said, that he purchased the case of beer, was charged with disorderly conduct and contributing to the delinquency of minors and held in lieu of $1000 bond in the Hyattsville Jail for a hearing June 15.

Parents Summoned

Roy L. Bright, parole and probation officer for Southern Maryland, was called. He summoned the parents of the five juveniles, four of whom were 15 years old and one 16, to the Hyattsville police station for a conference. The juveniles were released in the custody of their parents on condition that they remain at home, except when at school or at church, until their hearing June 15 at 2 p. m. in the Juvenile Court at Hyattsville, Md.

The charge of contributing to the delinquency of minors carries a possible penalty of two years in the Maryland House of Correction and a fine of $500 or both, Bright said.

Amerasia Quiz Session Is Suggested

Sen. Knowland Asks Hoover and McGrath To Appear Before Congress on Case

NYHT News Service

Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.) demanded yesterday that FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover and Attorney General J. Howard McGrath submit to questioning by Congress about the Government's handling of the Amerasia case.

He suggested that McGrath and Hoover follow the precedent set last week by Secretary of State Dean Acheson and appear before a joint session of Congress.

Knowland also released a lengthy letter to Hoover asking a series of questions seeking clarification of the confused and frequently conflicting picture the Government has drawn to date of the wartime Amerasia case involving the theft of Government papers.

Letter Referred to McGrath

To the letter, Hoover, whose bureau is in the Department of Justice, replied:

"Because of the nature of the questions therein which relate to the interpretation and application of existing legislation and which also involve the interpretation and value of certain evidence in this case, I have taken the liberty of referring your letter to the Attorney General for a reply." McGrath could not be reached for comment.

Knowland wrote Hoover that "I have been greatly concerned by the implications of the 'Amerasia' case and a number of unexplained circumstances with relation thereto."

Asks About Prosecution

The FBI in 1945 arrested six persons on charges of conspiring to violate a Federal law dealing with unauthorized possession of defense data after 1700 confidential and secret documents were found in a raid on the New York office of the now defunct magazine, Amerasia. Philip Jaffe, then editor, was fined $2500 and Emanuel Sigurd Larsen, former specialist in the China Division of the State Department's Office of Far Eastern Affairs, was fined $500. No action was taken against the remaining four.

In this connection, Knowland wrote:

"If the lack of prosecution in this case is due to inadequate legislation on the statute books to protect the security of the Nation in time of war or to guard its atomic and other secrets in time of peace, it is essential that the Congress have adequate information so that they may legislate while there is time to do so.

"If on the other hand the legislation on the statute books is adequate and the lack of prosecution occurred because of conflict and confusion between several investigating agencies then it is equally important that the Congress be so informed so that similar jurisdictional conflicts will not occur in the future.

"As you probably know by now, there have been indications given to the Congress and the country that the lack of prosecution was because certain investigative phases of the Amerasia case were bungled."

"Was Case Bungled?"

Senator Knowland based his questions on testimony taken in 1946 before the House Judiciary Committee, but not released until May 22.

He based his first questions on testimony of James P. McGranery, of the Justice Department, which follows:

"We held the one fellow in our office to get the pleas of guilty

'Domestic Point 4'

U. S. Pushes Coastal Project To Reclaim Acres of Farmland

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Savannah, Ga., June 4.—What might be called a domestic Point 4 program is under way about 30 miles south of Savannah along the coastal highway.

Its aim is to reclaim millions of acres of potentially rich farmland lying a short distance back from the seacoast and extending from New Jersey to Florida.

If the dreams of the ambitious young Government researchers only partly come true the farming and truck-growing picture of the eastern seaboard may be changed with powerful impact upon the entire agricultural economy. There are clear evidences that more than only a part will become a reality.

This Government project is taking advantage of several extensive earlier explorations by some of the country's richest men. These undertakings and the promises they and the Government operation hold out, are already having an effect locally.

Twelve years ago a Liberty County farmer of the type they called a Cracker hereabouts watched with keen interest the beginnings of one of these private experiments, the famous Richmond Hills plantation venture of the late Henry Ford.

This farmer bought several plots of nearby land, some of it swamps, some of it hogbacks, none of it apparently much good, for $3 an acre. Shortly afterwards he sold some of it to the Government for an Army post. He got a wartime price of $25 an acre. After the war he sold several pieces to returning veterans and erstwhile war workers for about $50 an acre. Recently he sold a parcel at $400 an acre. The neighbors don't call him a Cracker any more. They call him mister.

This story tells more dramatically than a lot of scientific agricultural jargon what is happening here, and what may some day soon come about in a lot of places up and down the coast both ways from Washington.

Just a few miles back from the coast is a strip of soil known as the bladen strip. It is made up of a type of soil loosely termed bladen and associated soils. It is

Pro-U.S. Party Leads In Japanese Election; Red Ban Threatened

Liberals Gain 2-1 Edge on Socialists; Yoshida Assails Communist Tactics

Tokyo (Monday), June 5 (U.P.).—Premier Shigeru Yoshida's pro-American Liberal Party maintained a commanding lead today in returns from Sunday's election for the upper house of Parliament.

Political quarters believed that when final returns were in Yoshida would be assured of both popular and parliamentary support for legislation to outlaw the Communist Party.

Returns for 65 percent of the 132 seats at issue showed: Liberals, 39; Socialists, 21; Democrats, 7; Ryokufukai, 4; Labor-Farmer, 1; Independents, 13; Communists none; other parties, 1.

The Ryokufukai Conservatives support the government. The other parties generally oppose the idea of continued American occupation.

See MacArthur Vindicated

Political quarters saw the trend as a vindication of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's policies and a repudiation of communism.

Brig. Gen. Courtney Whitney chief of MacArthur's government section, expressed satisfaction with the result.

The election was for approximately half of the seats in the House of Councillors or upper house of Parliament—132 seats out of the total of 250. Yoshida has a majority in the lower house, which has all the power. But he had been in a minority in the upper house and ruled with the support of the Ryokufukai Conservatives.

Premier Denounces Reds

Yoshida, in a formal statement after the polls closed, denounced the Communists for attacking American soldiers during a demonstration last Tuesday and said:

"The government is prepared to deal drastically with such acts of violence and at the same time it may proceed to consider outlawing the Communist Party."

Despite pouring rain, about 70 percent of Japan's 44,500,000 eligibles voted.

Voting was orderly and the popping of firecrackers provided the only unusual noise. Under government orders, police dispersed Communists who attempted to hold an anti-American "peace plebiscite."

Twenty-two Communists were arrested for defying the Government ban on electioneering and two candidates for Parliament also were arrested, one as a swindler, the other on suspicion of bribery.

Statement Issued

The polls had hardly closed when Premier Yoshida issued his anti-Communist statement. Referring to the sentencing Saturday by an American Army court of eight leftists who attacked five American soldiers, Yoshida said:

"The defendants in the Imperial

Brussels, Belgium, (Monday), June 5 (AP).—Social Christians pledged to restore King Leopold III to the throne won control of the new house of representatives by a margin of two seats, unofficial election tabulations disclosed today.

Despite the narrow margin of parliamentary control, leaders of the predominantly Catholic Social Christian Party claimed a "great victory" in yesterday's parliamentary election.

One party leader predicted that Leopold, who has been in exile since 1945 because of unpopularity over his surrender to the Germans in World War II, would be back in his palace by July.

Unofficial complete returns from 142 of the 211 precincts showed:

Social Christians	1,294,943
Socialists	859,744
Liberals	271,731
Communists	116,138
Socialist-Liberal Joint Lists	44,069

West German Police Arming Idea Hinted

Connally Says U. S. May 'Want' Action to Offset East's Force

By the United Press

Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday said the United States soon may "want" to help arm a West German police force to offset the Russian-sponsored 50,000-man force in eastern Germany.

He qualified his statement by saying he knows of no plan to establish a force, then added that it is "perfectly possible" the Western allies might seek stronger police contingents in their zones under strict controls and in limited numbers.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson has said repeatedly that the United States has no intention of putting Germany back on a military basis. And in September, 1949, when the federated West German republic was established, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer renounced any thought of a rearmed Germany.

But only recently the Western

Boatmen Stand By To Save Villagers As Fires Close In

St. John's, Newfoundland, June 4 (U.P.).—The Newfoundland government ordered preparations for a "little Dunkerque" today as 12 forest fires cut off land escape from two fishing villages.

All boat owners in the area were asked to stand offshore by the villages of Brown's Arm and Lawrencetown for a possible mass evacuation.

It was not known how many persons were in the two villages.

Men fought the fires frantically while women and children packed family belongings in preparation for a possible retreat by sea.

The settlements had been converted to islands as the blazes crackled uncontrolled through the dry timberland for the third day. On one side there was a wall of fire. On the other was water.

For Atomic Attack

Civil Defense Plan Ready About Sept. 1

Civilian Mobilization Director Paul Larsen said yesterday he expects to complete a "master civil defense plan" against atomic warfare about September 1 but added he foresees no immediate danger of attack. He made the statement on NBC's "Meet the Press" television show.

Representative John F. Kennedy (D., Mass.) earlier had urged the Government to give cities specific instructions now on how to cope with an A-bomb assault.

Larsen said his office has sent out "interim" defense plans to the State Governors and larger cities but only 21 States have legislation to carry them out. He urged the other 27 States to pass the necessary laws.

Larsen dismissed proposals for setting up an alternate capital in case Washington is demolished by atomic attack. He said, however, that plans are under study for transferring certain Government activities out of Washington.

He said Washington and Detroit are among the "50 or 60 cities" in the Nation which have effective civilian defense machines. If a bomb were dropped on the Capital, he said, police and firemen would swing into action immediately.

"There would be a lot of disaster, many casualties, much structural damage. But it would not make Washington inoperative," he said.

He added he is confident American cities will be able to put temporary defense plans into operation until the master plan is ready.

Kennedy called on President Truman to submit civil defense legislation promptly so Congress can draft a national law this session to guide local communities.

"If an atomic bomb were dropped on one of our cities tomorrow," Kennedy told reporters, "nobody would know what to do, where to go or even who to see about what to do. All would be panic and confusion."

Volcano Rocked by Quakes

Mauna Loa Breaks Out Anew At Rate Equal to First Fury

Kona, Hawaii, June 4 (U.P.).—The erupting Mauna Loa volcano, rocked by a series of new earthquakes, belched out a fiery flow of molten lava today at a rate equal to its first outburst late Thursday.

Volcano expert Roy Finch said today's activity by the world's biggest volcano "looked about like the first few hours." It followed a decrease in the flow earlier today.

Finch said that all previous eruptions had reached their peak after the first few hours.

The increased fifth flow today brought to life the fourth lava flow, which had stopped in a forest on the southeastern slope last night. It streamed on to the sea to join the three previous flows, now beginning to cool off.

Kona police estimated that 90 or 95 persons have evacuated homes on both sides of the flows, but they said no casualties had been reported.

Dozens of homes have been demolished, but the lava streams were still too hot to permit access to the area to discover the exact extent of the damage.

The fourth flow forked off at right angles yesterday after geysers spurted three huge streams of lava to the ocean. Spurs of the new prong penetrated a mile into a forest above a sugar plantation at Pahala before stopping. Reports from planes indicated that lava is still feeding into the new flow.

Airliners were having a field day flying islanders over the volcano at $31.50 a passenger.

Bipartisan Board Reported Planned To Sift U. S. Files

By the United Press

President Truman plans to appoint a "three-man bipartisan commission" to sift all Government personnel files and have the "absolutely final" say on whether Communists hold Federal jobs, newscaster Drew Pearson said yesterday.

He said the board will include retired Admiral Chester Nimitz, wartime commander of United States Naval forces in the Pacific; Judge John Patrick Higgins, Chief Justice of the Massachusetts Superior Court, and Judge John J. Parker of North Carolina, presiding judge of the Fourth Circuit United States Court of Appeals.

Pearson said the President will set up the commission because he is "disgusted with the 'smear techniques' of weeding out Communists and unhappy that the Tydings Senate subcommittee has not squelched the voluble Senator McCarthy."

Senate sources said Administration officials have been considering the commission idea, but that no final decision has been reached. The plan, closely paralleling one suggested by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr. (R., Mass.), is expected to be approved or rejected at the top level this week.

U. S. Urged to Help Its Gifted Children

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

The gifted children of the Nation are a "neglected minority," a group of the country's foremost educators declared yesterday.

The Educational Policies Commission, in a report, "Education of the Gifted," said that by neglecting these children the Nation is failing to make the best use of its intellectual resources.

The 100-page report, made public yesterday, was more than a year in preparation by a committee headed by Dr. James B. Conant, president of Harvard University. The 20 member Commission includes Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, president of Columbia University; Warren T. White, president of the American Association of School Administrators, and Andrew D. Holt, president of the National Education Association. Two conclusions of the committee were:

Too few gifted children complete high school and continue their education into college and the professional schools.

Gifted children who continue schooling often fail to receive the training and counseling that will help them reach their potentialities.

Waste of Talent Feared

The result, said the commission, is a great waste of talent in which society as a whole is the loser.

Listed as the main causes for the failure to educate gited chil- the failure to educate gifted children of education, (2) social attitudes that tend to lower both incentive and opportunity for gifted children of low income families, (3) mental illness, (4) emotional maladjustments.

The report said that studies in many states show that only half of gifted youth who are graduated from secondary school go on to college. Case histories and statistics compiled by the armed forces during the war showed "a large amount of potential human ability is not utilized," the report said.

"To find ways and means of conserving the superior abilities of gifted Americans—and of developing those abilities and facilitating their use for the benefit of humanity—should be a major objective of social and educational policy in the country," the commission said.

U. S. Needs Abilities

"The United States, now more than ever before in our history, needs to have its ablest citizens either in positions of large immediate social influence (such as public administration, business and labor leadership, journalism, teaching) or in work of great potential future benefit (such as research in the natural and social sciences, philosophy and criticism and the creative arts."

America which has a tendency to "idealize the average and belittle the exceptional man," will have to be taught the necessity for training the gifted, the report said.

The commission urged schools, colleges and other agencies of influence on public opinion "to educate the American people at large to appreciate their stake in fostering the recognition, education and utilization of human talent."

Seen as Potential Leaders

The commission proposed that all gifted youth be regarded from the beginning of their educational program as potential leaders. Schools from the elementary grades through college should make special provisions for their education, the report suggested.

The top 10 percent of intellectual ability (roughly those with intelligence quotients of 120 to 137) should be trained to go to college. The top one percent (the "highly gifted" with IQ's of above 137) should be educated with the expectation that they will continue education beyond college, the report said.

It was proposed that more scholarship funds from both private and public sources be made available to needy gifted youth to enable them to complete their education.

The commission warned that unless a way is found to send these youth to college the Nation is headed toward a "stratified society."

Theoretically opportunities for college and post college education and for positions of leadership in business or the professions are open to all, the commission said.

Actually opportunities largely are governed by the social and economic status of a child's parents and by the accidental factor of place of birth.

Present social and educational practices tend to recruit leaders from "upper class" families and to restrict vocational opportunity of youth from the "lower classes" without regard to individual ability, the report said.

Talent waste was found most frequently in the low income families, rural groups and in racial minorities.

"Studies of highly gifted young Negroes reveal shocking waste of talent—a waste that adds an incalculable amount to the price of projudice in this country," the report said.

The commission found that both the home and the school frequently are responsible for neglect of the gifted.

Many parents fail to realize either the potentialities or educational needs of their gifted children.

Schools and colleges, handicapped by insufficient equipment and personnel, fail to challenge gifted students to develop abilities to the fullest.

Crowded Classrooms a Factor

Crowded classrooms make it impossible for teachers to deal with students according to individual needs. Instruction is geared to the average student.

The commission called for more school buildings better equipped with laboratories, libraries and audio-visual materials; better trained teachers with increased understanding of the psychology of learning, the psychology of individual differences and child growth and development.

Thte commission said that while techniques for identifying gifted children need perfection, intelligence tests have been shown to predict achievement with enough accuracy to serve as one means of selection.

Test scores should be considered in combination with other school records and teacher judgements.

Education for the gifted should consist of both general and special training.

The gifted child as a citizen, consumer and prospective parent needs a basic education like that of every other student.

Need Lessons in Integrity

Because of his special gift he needs additional training in mathematics, the basic sciences and foreign languages and cultures. He needs to be taught "qualities of personal integrity, human sympathy and social responsibility."

The commission said it was "debatable" whether bright children should be pushed along in school by skipping grades or whether they should be put into separate classes.

The commission recommended that whether separated or in regular groups they be provided with individualized instruction.

When opportunities to elect courses are presented in high school and college, gifted children should be encouraged to take more courses than required.

Both elementary and secondary schools should give more attention to development of efficient work habits by intellectually superior students, the report said. Frequently the gifted have little motivation to study and become intellectually lazy.

To prevent the gifted child from becoming socially malajusted, the report recommended that parents and teachers encourage the development of nonintellectual interests that would give the gifted child a bond with playmates of his own age.

Heart Attack Is Fatal To Man Knifed in Fight

William Bowyer, 59, of 317½ B st. ne., knifed during a fight at his home, May 15, died yesterday at Gallinger Hospital.

Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy said an autopsy indicated Bowyer died of a heart attack, and that his knife wound had practically healed.

However, Dr. Murphy said, Jesse Forbes, 33, of the B st. address, must face a coroner's jury, which will decide whether the stabbing caused the heart condition.

State Department Is Advised To Hire Top-Level Scientist

Employment by the State Department of a nationally known scientist at the policy-making level was recommended yesterday in a report to Secretary of State Acheson by Dr. Lloyd V. Berkner.

Dr. Berkner, a special consultant to the Secretary, urged also that scientists be attached to diplomatic missions overseas to guard United States interests in world scientific and technical development. This addition to the Department's increasing specialization would apply especially in the fields of Point Four, the Economic Cooperation Administration, military aid, and the United Nations.

Dr. Berkner began the study in October, 1949, following a Department review of Hoover Commission recommendations.

The Department said application of his recommendations would mean:

1. Fuller support of international scientific conferences and organizations.
2. Effective participation in projects for international scientific cooperation sponsored by the United Nations and its specialized agencies.
3. Active and unceasing promotion of the freest possible international flow of scientific information.
4. The utmost stimulation, encouragement and support of privately sponsored international scientific programs.

The report, it was explained, stresses the necessity for observing security restrictions while advocating the freest possible exchange of scientific information.

"The report," said the State Department, "highlights the importance of vigorously helping and promoting privately sponsored projects, pointing out that this would lead to a maximum expansion of international scientific cooperation at a minimum cost. Also, the international contacts and relationships which scientists can establish through private programs are more direct and therefore, according to the report, more effective."

The report suggested that overseas science staffs be set up initially at London, Johannesburg, Rio de Janeiro, Sydney or Canberra, Paris, Rome, Bern, Stockholm, Ottawa, Frankfort and Tokyo. It pointed out that such a staff has been in operation at London since 1947.

The chief duties of these overseas staffs, the Department said, would be "to keep their missions and interested Government agencies in the United States posted on scientific progress and problems, and to provide unclassified information to help both American and foreign scientists to maintain mutually beneficial relationships with one another."

The report recommended that members of the overseas staffs rank as attaches with full diplomatic status and be appointed as foreign service officers.

Dr. Berkner, who has been on the staff of the Carnegie Institution since 1933, was executive secretary of the Joint Research and Development Board beginning in 1946. He went to the State Department in March, 1949, as coordinator of military assistance.

Koudsi Heads Syria's New 8-Man Cabinet

Damascus, Syria, June 4 (AP).—Nazem Koudsi, vice president of the Populist Party, heads a new eight-man Syrian Cabinet officially announced today. In addition to the premiership, he will hold the foreign affairs portfolio.

Koudsi had been asked by Chief of State Hachem Bey el Atassi to form a new government, after the resignation last Monday of Premier Khaled Bey Azzem's six-month-old cabinet.

Senate Group Lines Up for Budget Slash

By The Associated Press

A group of Senators was reported yesterday to be working behind the scenes to enlist support for another sizable cut in President Truman's budget for the coming year.

Senator Bridges (R., N. H.), ranking Republican on the Senate Appropriations Committee, said an unofficial poll indicated a majority of Senators will support the economy move.

The House last month trimmed $2,068,590,504 from the budget request of $30,962,930,668.

Republicans and Democrats alike are displaying a keen interest in shaving off as much as possible from the huge appropriations bill, Bridges said.

There were reports that the economy bloc is seeking a satisfactory formula for applying the cuts by a vote on the Senate floor if the trimming is not done first by the Appropriations Committee.

Some Senators, it was said, would like a flat precentage cut across the board. But others want to exempt the military establishment, the FBI and defense spending.

It was said that an agreement on an economy formula may be reached this week to bring the group into a solid front.

If this economy move should be successful, it would be a complete turnabout for the Senate. The general trend has been that the Senate appropriations have been larger than those voted by the House.

Five Will Receive Master Mason Degrees

The Master Mason degree will be conferred upon five men of the Washington area at a regular communication of King Solomon Lodge, No. 31, at 1 p. m. Wednesday in the Masonic Temple, 13th st. and New York ave. nw.

They are: George F. Dick, Louis Feigenbaum, Frederick C. Funk, Roy W. Kilgore and Robert Zepnick.

Candidates Get Notice Of No Smears

Senator Gillette (D., Iowa) put candidates on notice yesterday that the Senatorial Campaign Investigating Committee can't be used in any effort to "smear" opponents.

Gillette told a reporter he has the solid backing of a privileges and elections subcommittee in his decision as its chairman that there will be no random excursions by the group into primary or general election campaigns.

"We have decided that we will act only on formal complaints, made in writing by responsible persons and backed with substantial evidence," Gillette said. "There will be no investigations until after the committee itself has reviewed these complaints and decided there is reasonable grounds for an inquiry."

Stennis, Schoeppel on Group

Other members of the committee are Senators Stennis (D., Miss.) and Schoeppel (R., Kan.). Leroy A. Rader, Storm Lake, Iowa, lawyer, has been named as general counsel by the group.

Gillette said he knows that in the past some senatorial candidates have attempted to use the campaign investigating group—which is set up every two years by the Senate—to influence the results in primary and general elections.

"If a candidate can get the word around that his opponent is being investigated by a senatorial committee, it often does great damage to the chances of innocent persons," Gillette said. "For that reason we are going to be very careful about ordering inquiries until we are relatively sure of our grounds.

Pledges No Partisanship

"As far as I am concerned, when we think we have grounds for starting an investigation we'll start it, no matter who is affected by it."

The committee is charged primarily with keeping tabs on candidates' expenditures, although it has gone far beyond that point in the past.

Boy Scout Council to Meet

A public annual meeting of the National Capital Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, will be held at 8 p. m. today in the Department of Commerce auditorium, 14th st. between Constitution ave. and E. s. nw.

Main speaker will be Earl Godwin, radio and television commentator and dean of the White House correspondents. Godwin, a member at large of the Scouts' National Council and of their national public relations committee, will speak on "A Cracker Barrel Philosopher Looks at Boy Scouting."

Six local Scout leaders will receive Silver Beaver awards for distinguished service to boyhood. This is the highest Scout recognition for volunteers training boys for leadership under the local council.

Dr. J. M. T. Finney, president of the Baltimore Area Council, will present a special merit award to the local council for achieving its goals in enrolling sustaining members during the fortieth annual Scouting Crusade. It will be received by President Richard E. Shands, who will preside over the meeting.

Foreign Economic Legislation Drags

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Prospects are poor for enactment this year of further Administration-backed legislation affecting foreign economic issues, a survey indicates.

A legislative log-jam, pressure in an election year for early adjournment of Congress, plus considerable opposition to certain measures appear to spell the doom, for this session at least, of such steps as ratifcation of the International Trade Organization charter, customs administration reform, and guarantees for American investments under the Point Four Program.

On the other hand, there is a posibility that Congress may increase tariffs on imported crude and fuel oil, a step that the State Department and Economic Cooperation Administration oppose.

There follows a summary of the statute and the prospects, as nearly as they can now be determined, of the principal pending measures on foreign economic affairs:

1. Appropriations. Hearings are now going on for the request of $1,222,000,000 for the second year of the Military Assistance Program. Administration hopes are high that the full amount, or close to it, will be voted.

The Senate Appropriations Committee is expected to resume closed hearings this week on the Administration's request for $2,658,000,000 of new money for the third year of the Marshall Plan. Hearings have been completed in the House Appropriations Committee.

The plan is to tack the ECA appropriation on to the omnibus money bill when that measure, passed by the House, reaches the Senate floor.

This means, however, that the figure will be determined initially by the Senate Appropriations Committee, which hitherto has been much less generously disposed toward ECA than the similar House Committee. Accordingly, ECA may suffer a considerable cut which a more liberally inclined House committee could scarcely revise upward after the omnibus bill is passed by the Senate and goes to a Senate-House conference for reconciliation.

2. ITO Charter. Public hearings have been completed by the House Foreign Affairs Committee, but it has not yet held its executive sessions on the project. No plans are yet made for its consideration in the Senate.

There is heavy opposition to ratification of the international trade agreement among many business groups. It is probable, therefore, that Congress will not attempt to obtain action this year, in view of the overcrowded calendars.

3. Point Four Guaranties. An Administration bill, providing certain Government guaranties for private American business investing money abroad for development purposes, has cleared the House Banking and Currency Committee, but is currently stymied in the House Rules Committee.

Conceivably, it may be broken out of that body and passed by the House. Opposition to the idea in the Senate, however, is strong, and chances for passage this year are therefore very doubtful.

4. Customs administration reform. A detailed and technical bill has been submitted to Congress, but it went up too late, it is believed, to receive action this session.

Opposition to the measure from business groups is not heavy or extensive. Even so, public hearings would be required before the bill could be considered, and these might have to be fairly extensive.

Furthermore, the bill is caught behind heavy workloads in the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee, to which it was referred. Time and too much other work, therefore, appear to militate against action on the measure in the 81st Congress.

5. Synthetic Rubber. An Administration bill, lifting rigid requirements making mandatory the admixture of a fixed amount of synthetic rubber with natural rubber in manufactures, has been ignored. The house has passed, and the Senate almost certainly will likewise pass, a simple one-year extension of the present law.

The effect will be disappointing to natural rubber producers who hoped for higher prices for their product if the law were amended.

6. Oil imports. Agitation, already heavy, has been mounting for higher oil tariffs. Independent oil producers, with a powerful Congressional lobby, and a united front of coal-mine operators and union, have been making a potent appeal, on grounds of unemployment, to a Senate Labor and Education subcommittee.

They have claimed heavy production cutbacks in the Texas oil fields, plus severe unemployment in certain coal mines, could be cured by limiting imports of foreign crude and fuel oil, mostly from Venezuela and some from the Middle East.

They propose that the present tariff of 10½ cents a barrel be increased to $1.05. Administration experts think such action would not merely reduce imports, but would eliminate them entirely.

Gen. Collins Gets Laetare Medal

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

GEN. J. LAWTON COLLINS, U. S. Army Chief of Staff, inspects Laetare Medal presented to him yesterday as the outstanding Catholic layman in America. General Collins was honored as the sixty-eighth recipient of the medal at commencement exercises of the University of Notre Dame at South Bend, Ind.

U. S. Working On A-Missiles, Collins Says

Gen. J. Lawton Collins declared yesterday the United States is working on atomic artillery weapons and missiles which "we don't believe the enemy would have."

"We are doing a great deal of work in developing weapons that the Army can use with atomic fissionable materials," he said, adding that "it is by no means impossible to develop an artillery piece that would fire an atomic weapon."

The Army Chief of Staff made this known in a recorded NBC television interview. When asked whether similar atomic weapons in enemy hands would make another Normandy invasion next to impossible, he said:

"We don't believe the enemy would have those weapons because there is a limit to his industrial capacity and his research and development field."

This country, Collins also said, is working on "systems, methods and weapons by which, if it should be decided to use the atomic bomb, we could use it by Army troops in support of Army operations."

In the field of guided missiles, said Collins, "it is possible to develop guided missiles—which can be placed with accuracy in a given spot—which could carry an atomic warhead."

Such atomic weapons for ground troops would be essentially defensive ones, he emphasized, saying the United States "certainly (is) not going to initiate a war; and so therefore the things that we are doing are of greater value on the defense than it would be for the man who is on the offense."

Collins made no comment when his interviewer said he had heard atomic bombs carried by fighter planes have been developed. Such "baby atom bombs" were reported several weeks ago but have never been officially confirmed.

It was reported Friday by the Associated Press that atomic warheads on guided missiles and artillery shells already had been "developed." Defense officials' reaction to that report has been "no comment."

Understanding Is World Need, Bunche Says

St. Peter, Minn., June 4 (AP).—Dr. Ralph Bunche declared today that the "fundamental cause of the deep crisis in world affairs is not the cold war, the conflict between West and East, or the destructive threat of 'A' and 'H' bombs, but the problem of human relations."

The American Negro who succeeded Count Folke Bernadotte as United Nations mediator in Palestine spoke at commencement exercises at Gustavus Adolphus College here.

His talk preceded dedication of the college's new library as the first unit in a memorial to Bernadotte. The Swedish nobleman was assassinated in Palestine.

Countess Bernadotte, widow of the late mediator, spoke briefly to accept the memorial. She expressed the hope that the memorial would "bring about a more complete understanding and love of our fellow men."

"Most of the international problems which bedevil the contemporary world," Dr. Bunche said, "are due in large measure to a lack of understanding among peoples, and to the suspicions and fears which are inevitable by-products of misunderstanding."

He said the world suffers from shocking illiteracy in human relations, and that human relations throughout the world are no better than those in the United States.

Honorary degrees were bestowed by the college upon Eric C. Boheman, Swedish Ambassador to the United States and Dr. Bunche.

Vincent to Leave Presbyterian Church for Navy

The Rev. William N. Vincent yesterday announced his resignation as pastor of Eastern Presbyterian Church, 6th and Maryland ave. ne. It will become effective June 30.

Chaplain Vincent

He plans to return to active service as a Navy chaplain. Vincent said that he expects to serve with the Military Sea Transport Service in the Atlantic.

On June 13 he will ask the Presbytery of Washington City to release him from his present pastorate. Approval of the request is expected.

Vincent, 46, served with the Navy chaplaincy from 1944 through 1946, and will return to the Navy with the rank of lieutenant commander.

He came to Eastern on uly 1, 1940. He is a graduate of Coe College, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago Ill.

nomic effect this would have on Venezuela, it would be a bad psychological blow to Europe, where the ECA is desperately attempting to convince Marshall Plan nations they must reduce tariffs, quotas and other restrictions blocking free trade.

Besides the devastating eco-

Congress, however, is committed to a policy of full employment at home and has been subjected to the strongest sort of pressure to accomplish this goal in the oil and coal fields by eliminating foreign competition.

Some observers feel that if no legislation raising tariffs is passed this year it will be only because of the limited time left in this session. Even so, they see the possibility of "quickie" votes in the closing days that might put the proposal through.

Sen. Smith Hits U. S. Stress On Arms Rather Than on Ideas

By The Associated Press

Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., N.J.) protested yesterday that the State Department appears to be placing too much stress on military aspects of the cold war.

He referred to Secretary of State Acheson's recommendation that this country dovetail its defense forces with those of other nations in the North Atlantic alliance, and commented:

"You are never going to win the cold war with 'balanced collective forces' as a slogan."

Smith appeared on a radio forum (WINX) with Senators Gillette (D., Iowa), Sparkman (D., Ala.) and Knowland (R, Calif.). They discussed Acheson's recent appearance before the assembled members of Congress for a question-and-answer session

The New Jersey Senator said he felt that the speech Acheson delivered before hearing the lawmakers' questions laid unnecessarily heavy emphasis on military matters, and slighted the battle of ideas and economics between the western nations and Russia.

Smith said the balanced defense forces Acheson called for may be necessary, but "will never convince anybody" if used as a rallying cry.

The Senator said the West should concentrate its efforts on mobilizing the peaceful elements in all nations—including Russia and her satellites — against communism. That calls for ideological, rather than military, emphasis, he said.

The Senators appearing on the broadcast were in general agreement that any future meetings between Congress and Acheson should be held behind closed doors. Some of them said they were reluctant to ask vital questions of the Secretary for fear that he might not want to answer publicly.

Gillette said, for example, that the session left unanswered such questions as whether Acheson committed this country to any secret policies at the recent London conference, and whether any definite decisions were reached regarding the future of Germany.

Delay Is Seen In Red Attack On Formosa

Hongkong, June 4 (AP).—The newspaper Wah Kiu Yat Po today reported that the Chinese Communists, on Russian advice, probably will delay their invasion of Formosa until next spring.

The newspaper quoted reports from Shanghai that a Russian adviser suggested the delay at a recent conference with staff officers of Red General Chen Ya's Third Field Army.

The newspaper said the Russian declared the Communists still lack the military supplies to support an invasion.

This thesis squares with the views of competent observers here. They say the Communists do not have the shipping or the aerial support to keep an invasion going if it meets any resistance.

The unexected Nationalist withdrawal from the blockade base of Chushan, 100 miles south of Shanghai, also upset the timetable, Wah Kiu Yat Po said. Red strategists had to revise their original plans.

Wah Kiu Yat Po, an independent newspaper with connections inside Red China, is the one that reported last Friday that a secret date for the Formosan invasion had been set. It said then the decision was reached at a super-secret meeting of Russians and Chinese Communist generals at Canton. Today's report made no attempt to connect the two.

The Communist New China News Agency asserted the Reds had scored a smashing victory over "rebels" in the far northwest province of Sinkiang, next door to Siberia.

The report asserted Red forces inflicted 1000 casualties in a week-long campaign late in May and that "13,000 Kazakhs and 46 White Russians surrendered." The Kazakhs are nomads.

On the other hand, the pro-Nationalist Hongkong Times reported a sharp increase in anti-Communist guerilla strength on the mainland. It said the Nationalists had 400,000 armed guerillas in South China and the support of four million unarmed anti-Communist civilians.

The city was chosen last month as a model middle-class community for Army propaganda movies overseas. Police have arrested one boy accused of starting three fires in the last two weeks in the theater.

Supercarrier Drive by Navy Reported Due

By the United Press

The Navy was reported yesterday to be shaping a new drive to win approval of its controversial flushdeck supercarrier, which was scuttled last year by Defense Secretary Louis Johnson.

Reliable sources said new cost estimates on the big carrier, the USS United States, are being prepared and that the next round in the running fight over construction should begin soon. Original cost estimates were 188 million dollars.

These sources said the carrier, one of the key issues in the famous admirals' revolt against military unification policies, has "got to come and it's only a matter of when."

Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, chief of naval operations, told the Senate Armed Services Committee only a few weeks ago that he will make a new bid for the craft whenever it is justified. He did not say flatly, however, that he would make such a request.

It was not clear today whether the Navy still is thinking in terms of the 65,000-ton Behemoth that was blocked by Johnson in April, 1949, after its keel had been laid at Newport News, Va.

The Navy for the past several months has been studying "tentative" plans for a smaller carrier, about 55,000 tons.

Whether 65,000 or 55,000 tons, the vessel would be the largest ship in the fleet. The huge battleship Missouri, for example, displaces only 45,000 tons.

The supercarrier faces certain rough going. Johnson has as much as said that he ha snot changed his mind. But the Navy is expected to argue that the mutual defense arrangements of the North Atlanic Pact nations impose added responsibilities on the Navy, which, along with Britain, was given the task of keeping open the world's sea lanes in case of war.

The Air Force probably will repeat with equal vigor that the Navy is trying to "muscle in" on the field of strategic bombing.

While the Navy's official reason for wanting the carrier is that it would accommodate larger patrol planes, officials concede privately they are thinking in terms of launching atomic bombers against an enemy shore—a mission the Air Force claims for its own.

The Navy's first problem would be to obtain the approval of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Then, it would have to "sell" Assistant Defense Secretary W. J. McNeil, who is in charge of defense pursestrings, and Johnson himself.

After that, Congress still would have to provide the cash.

Dr. Millard R. Dean has been reelected to his third term as president of the Robert T. Freeman Dental Society, it was announced yesterday.

Faikah, Sadek Rewed in Cairo

Cairo, Egypt, June 4 (U.P.).—Princess Faikah remarried her commoner husband Fuad Sadek Bey at Koubeh Palace today in a formal Moslem ceremony attended by her brother, King Farouk.

Farouk had refused to recognize the couple's civil marriage in California and had ordered Faikah and her bridegroom to return to Egypt.

The same royal council resolution also disinherited 19-year-old Princess Fathia for marrying Christian Coptic Riad Ghali in San Francisco and ordered the property of Queen Mother Nazli seized.

(The Queen Mother, now in California, had approved both weddings. Riad Ghali, her political secretary, and Fathia were married in a Moslem ceremony also, but the Moslem religion, Egypt's official faith, forbids the marriage of Moslems and non-Moslems.)

Observers said Faikah's marriage today did not affect the status of Queen Nazli or Princess Fathia. They pointed out that the situations of Farouk's two sisters were not parallel.

Sadek is a Moslem by birth, while Ghali, converted to Mohammedanism just before his wedding to Fathia, is a "Moslem by expediency." Today's ceremony, they said, was held because the couple's U. S. ceremony was civil and not recognized in Egypt.

Faikah drove to the palace early today accompanied by her oldest sister, Princess Fawzia, who once was the wife of the Shah of Iran. According to the Moslem rite, the bride need not be present at the ceremony and it was not reported whether she attended.

The Moslem service requires only the signatures of the bride's guardian, who is Farouk, the bridegroom and two witnesses. Sheikh Abdel Rahman Hassan, acting rector of Al Azhar Theological University, presided.

including the Communists, was 1,291,682, giving the Social Christian a slim majority of 3261. An estimated 5,500,000 Belgians went to the polls.

Victor Larock, director of the Socialist Party newspaper Le Peuple, virtually conceded the Social Christian claims of victory. He said his party probably will get between 70 and 75 seats in the new House of Representatives and the Social Christians 108 on the basis of latest returns.

In the old house, the Social Christians had 105 seats and the Socialists 66. In both cases, therefore, the two dominant parties would be increasing their strength in Parliament. However, the Social Christians' gain would put them over the hump into a slim but outright majority.

Such a victory for the Social Christians would enable them to form Belgium's first one-party cabinet since the war.

Count Carton de Wiart, Belgian elder statesman and a Social Christian leader, said the results thus far showed a "great victory" for his party.

"We will use our majority to restore order to the country and bring the King back," he said.

Interior Minister Albert de Vleeschauwer, also a Social Christian, said his party will bring Leopold back by July 1.

Leopold's status has been a major political issue since the war.

The Socialists also made gains over their previous showing, apparently at the expense of Communists, who were being set back in nearly all districts reporting.

Leopold's chief support comes from the Social Christians, a largely Catholic party led by Foreign Minister Paul van Zeeland. The Catholic hierarchy has indorsed the party's support of Leopold—a factor which may provide strength in this predominantly Catholic country.

The chief opponents of Leopold are the Socialists, led by former Prime Minister Paul-Henri Spaak. Most Liberals also oppose Leopold's return.

Today the Belgians elected 212 Representatvies, 106 Senators and members of nine provincial councils. On June 19 the councils will elect 46 additional Senators. Parliament convenes the next day. the 152 Senators will elect 23 others, bringing the Senate's total to 175.

Plaza incident against American soldiers have all been convicted. But the occurrence has a serious bearing on international relations and the Government feels extremely sorry for it. Such incidents under Communist direction hamper our country's recovery and development. They impair confidence in us among world powers and obstruct an early peace."

Japanese newspapers quoted Attorney General Shunkichi Ueda as saying the government already had adopted the policy of outlawing the Communists and that outlawing legislation would be introduced at a special session of Parliament.

Ueda denied this in a statement to the United Press. He said legislation would be necessary if the government decided to outlaw the Communists.

"I cannot say if or when this will be done," Ueda said. "The Communists have merely been warned. If the Reds calm down I do not believe the step of outlawing them will be taken."

First returns in the election came from country districts. They showed Liberals running ahead with Communists trailing far in the rear. City districts, in which leftist parties make better showings, were the last to report.

the President of the United States, you may take note of it and you must each be guided by your conscience."

When no wreath from the President showed up Sunday, some thought it at least "passing strange," reported Committee Member Meyers.

He later read to a reporter excerpts from an extensive correspondence with Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, the upshot of which was that the President's military aide said Mr. Truman was only going to send wreaths to mark Presidential birthdays and national holidays. And would it be preferable for the President to send a wreath to the Confederate Memorial on Memorial Day, May 30, or Confederate Memorial Day, the first Sunday in June?

Myers explained that the Confederate Memorial Committee never replied to this letter from Vaughn "because we assumed that the President knew what had been done in the past and what was proper to do."

"Since President Wilson dedicated the Confederate Memorial in Arlington National Cemetery in 1917," said Myers, "Presidents have sent a wreath on the first Sunday of June."

"President Truman observed this gracious gesture himself for four years. His change of mind in 1949 and again this year caused something of a shock."

If the President wanted to economize, why didn't he send his one wreath in honor of the Confederate cause on the appropriate day? queried Myers, obviously piqued.

German Police Arms Hinted

foreign ministers branded the Soviet-sponsored police an outright military force, and some United States military leaders are now said to favor limited arms for the Germans.

More on the issue may be heard today when Connally's committee and the Senate Armed Services Committee hear testimony from Defense Secretary Louis Johnson on President Truman's new $1,222,500,000 foreign arms aid program. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the United States Joint Chiefs of Staff, will testify Tuesday.

Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) predicted flatly that there will be a move to write a provision into the arms bill for limited and controlled armaments for the western Germans.

He pointed out that Acheson already favors tying Germany's economy to that of Western Europe, and said the use of German manpower appears "inevitable."

Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.) has expressed similar views.

Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) agreed that such a move would be launched. He also said an "essential" step toward strengthening Western defenses would be to bring Spain into the Atlantic pact.

McCarran, who long has championed the Spanish cause, said there are "increased indications" Spain will be brought into the mutual defense system. He didn't elaborate except to say "some of our top military leaders believe the step is essential to make the whole system work."

DAV Official Backs Strong Veteran Program

Richmond, Va., June 4 (AP).—A national officer of the Disabled American Veterans declared here today that the American people are "opposed to any legislation which would weaken the present disabled veterans' program in the name of false economy."

John Feighner of Washington, assistant national adjutant of the DAV, spoke at the concluding session of the Virginia DAV annual convention here. Some 250 delegates ended the three-day convention with a memorial service for their war dead.

Crime Probers Check Florida Phone Calls

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

Senate crime investigators are busy checking long distance phone calls from Florida, it was learned last night.

They are doing so in developing what appears to have been a gold mine strike of information turned up in the recent Miami visit of Chairman Kefauver (D., Tenn.) and others of his committee and staff.

Calls both to New York and the West Coast are known to be among those checked.

The New York calls tie in with District Attorney Frank S. Hogan's moves against Frank Erickson, the Nation's No. 1 bookie recently cited by a grand jury on 60 counts.

The West Coast calls tie in with the activities of Mickey Cohen, Los Angeles mobster. The Kefauver committee discovered a batch of checks in Miami representing payments to Cohen from one John F. O'Rourke.

The committee subpened O'Rourk, described as a big-time Palm Beach gambler and partner of Erickson in operations at the swank Boca Raton club. O'Rourke claimed the checks represented payments to Cohen for winnings of horseraces.

The Miami Daily News last year revealed O'Rourke had business dealings with Cohen in the form of lay-off bets. Then it turned out that Los Angeles police had been tapping Cohen's phone in 1947 and 1948. Sample conversation from Cohen to O'Rourke's Miami home, where he got Mrs. O'Rourke on the phone:

"How are you, Mrs. O'Rourke? How can I get in touch with John? Give him a message for me. Tell him I'm all tied up here and I want that check. Tell him to get a cashier's check and get it in the mail."

While the Kefauver committee cannot wire-tap, it can determine the volume of phone calls between the big shots of the gambling and racketeering world. The Federal Communications Commission, at the senators' request, recently asked the phone companies to save all records of long distance calls for just such inspection purposes. Telegrams likewise are being saved.

From this pattern of calls, the committee expects to build up evidence of links among the underworld characters, links widely charged but little proven.

The Miami News has been charging that for the past three seasons in Florida what it terms "the big shots in the national crime syndicate" have gathered in Miami "to split up concessions in cities across the country." The paper has named Erickson, Frank Costello, Joe Adonis and Tony Accardo as those taking part.

The senators asked witnesses about these meetings but apparently didn't find out much.

Judges, Lawyers

D. C. Judicial Conference Meets Today

The annual judicial conference for the District of Columbia circuit will be held today at 10 a. m. in the courtroom of the United States Court of Appeals.

The morning session will be devoted to topics relating to improving the administration of justice here.

James E. Palmer, jr., of the Federal Bar Association, will discuss "Uniform Code of Ethics for Federal Courts." James C. Wilkes of the District Bar Association will discuss "Judicial Review of Action of Administrative Agencies." John L. Laskey, president of the District Bar Association, will discuss "Law Enforcement Conference for the District." Mrs. Ruth McCormick Miller of The Washington Times-Herald will talk on "The Public Looks at the Lawyer."

The executive session in the afternoon will be attended only by judges and will consider the business of the courts and means of improving the administration of justice here.

The program was arranged by Judges Charles Fahy, David L. Bazelon, Richmond B. Keech, James R. Kirkland, Harold M. Stephens and Bolitha J. Laws.

Better Business Bureaus Start Conference Here Today

The latest dodges to trip the unwary customer, as well as the latest educational techniques used on both customers and businessmen, will be discussed this week at the thirty-sixth annual conference of the Association of Better Business Bureaus.

Advocates of better business standards from 91 bureaus in the United States and Canada, who will meet at the Shoreham Hotel beginning today, are experienced in 600 types of frauds perpetrated on the buying public.

Uppermost in the minds of many this year will be the headaches caused by methods of advertising, selling and servicing television sets and clothing.

When new products come into the markets, complaints begin.

In the clothing field, so many new fabrics and accessories are coming in it's diifficult to keep up with correct cleaning methods.

"Nylon" stockings may contain only 20 percent nylon. It may cost $10 to restore the pleats in "permanently pleated" dresses or skirts after they are cleaned. Dresses which can be cleaned with a certain chemical may have buttons which disintegrate under that chemical.

Seven bureaus have set up arbitration committees of cleaners, store buyers, housewives and a BBB representative, to deal with complaints. They may find a ruined dress can be blamed on the customer, the cleaner, the retailer, or the manufacturer.

The Better Business Bureaus 1949 report, however, shows that, out of more than a million contacts made by the public, only 23 percent were complaints. The remainder were requests for information.

Stone House Hearing Set

A Senate public works subcommittee will hold a hearing at 10 a. m. Wednesday on a bill to authorize Federal acquisition of the Old Stone House in Georgetown.

The hearing will be in room 412 of the Senate Office Building. Senator Spessard L. Holland heads the subcommittee.

A similar bill has been cleared by the House Public Works Committee, and may come up for House action Monday.

The Old Stone House, at 3051 M st. nw., is one of the few pre-Revolutionary structures in the District. If acquired by the Government, the building might be made a museum by the Columbia Historical Society.

Fellowship Awarded to D. C. Writer

A $2000 writing fellowship for 1950-51 at Stanford University has been awarded to Warren Chapman, 32-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Chapman, 1 Scott Circle.

Chapman

The award to Chapman, a senior in the liberal arts college, was one of six writing fellowships granted under a gift by Dr. Edward H. Jones of San Angelo, Tex.

Chapman, who is married and the father of three children, is a native of Pueblo, Colo. He went to Kent School in Connecticut before enrolling at Harvard, where his education was interrupted by the war. He is finishing his last year of undergraduate work at Stanford in Palo Alto, Calif. His father is assistant chief of the tin department of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The fellowship winner recently was awarded a $300 prize for the best short story submitted in a university contest. He will use his fellowship to write a novel, according to Stanford authorities.

Area Men Awarded Prizes for Writing

Thomas Richard Cassidy, graduate student, of 5034 Nebraska ave. nw., has received a $600 Hopwood award for creative writing at the University of Michigan. His winning work of fiction was "The Fierce Land."

Cassidy

Another area winner was Floyd James Murdock, a graduate student from Edgewood Addition, Lynchburg, Va., who won a $600 award for his novel, "Ketti Shalom" and a $500 drama award for "The Shadow and the Rock."

Father and Son Given Degrees at Convocation

A father and son received degrees at the same convocation at Bob Jones University, Greenville, S. C., last week, it was announced yesterday.

They are radio evangelist Dale Crowley and his son, Dale, jr., of 408 Seward sq. se. The senior Crowley received an honorary Doctor of Divinity and his son received his Bachelor of Arts degree.

Technicians Ruled Not 'Professionals'

The National Labor Relations Board has ruled that electronic technicians of a nearby Maryland research firm are not "professional employes," even though some are engaged in secret Government projects.

The decision involved Lodge 1140 of the International Association of Machinists and the Engineering and Research Corp. of Riverdale, Md.

The union had asked for a representation election in the experimental department with electronic technicians excluded. The firm had urged that the election include all workers.

The board's ruling upheld an earlier verdict of Examiner Harold G. Biermann. He rejected the union's argument that the 17 electronic technicians perform duties closely related to those of engineers, who are "professional employees."

The NLRB ordered a representation election held within 30 days covering all 46 employes of the department. The employes will vote either for no union or the IAM, which already represents the production and maintenance workers of the company.

New Post Building 'Lifts' on Job—For Freight

There are two elevators running in the new building of The Washington Post, 1513-21 L st. nw., but no passenger may ride in them.

As a matter of fact, the usual glamor girls and reporters "who meet such interesting people" have not yet moved into the structure and probably won't for many months. They rather like walls, floors and other comforts, which are far from complete yet.

These elevators are hauling such undramatic things as iron, concrete, mortar, brick, tile, pipes and wire up to the various seven floors. On return trips they bring out even less exciting loads of refuse and waste.

The elevators are the pride of Francis V. O'Neill, 62-year-old hoist engineer, who now makes his home at 1707 Q st. nw. His real home is in Pittsburgh, but he has been on the road off and on since the San Francisco earthquake of 1906.

"All you needed to get job there was to wear long pants," he declared.

Since then, O'Neill, who proudly notes, "I'm as Irish as Paddy's pig," has been moving from one construction job to another—lately for John McShain, Inc., contractor—with his 60-horsepower hoisting engine.

The engine runs both elevators, which are located side by side, 135 feet high. One is the "concrete skip" and carries cement in a steel bucket, and the other hauls the materials.

When a workman rings the bell twice and pats his head, O'Neill sends an elevator right up to the roof. For the other floors, the men signal with the proper number of fingers. Three rings means down and one means stop.

But the elevators are restricted to materials. "If anybody rides in 'em, I could lose my license. Safety regulations forbid it," O'Neill declared. So while piles of wood ride up the easy way, workmen climb up makeshift stairs floor by floor to the spot where they are working.

When the job is done, the materials elevators will be pulled down and then the people will do the riding, on high-speed, modern conveyances.

While O'Neill pilots his hoist engine, in other parts of the building workman have poured all seven floors of the building, placed the limestone fronting on three floors, laid brickwork five stories up on all sides, installed heating on four floors and ventilating ducts on five.

One stand of presses has been erected, but will not be in running shape until electrical lines are hooked up and pipes placed for carrying ink, paste, water and air.

.....NOT just EGGS NOR just FRESH EGGS

... but NEARBY FRESH EGGS

GIANT knows an egg's most important points are its freshness and quality. That's why GIANT handles only eggs from nearby farms—we bring you eggs of "top" quality in their freshest condition. Egg quality depends on the breeding, care, and proper scientific feeding of the chickens. That's why GIANT gets its eggs from farmers whose sole attention and scientific knowledge is devoted to outstanding egg production. You, too, will be better satisfied with GIANT eggs.

FBI Chief Is Asked for Full Report on Amerasia Case

from him. The deal was made there. If we had not handled it in that way, I do not think we would have any case at all. None of this evidence was obtained in a manner in which we ordinarily would get it. It was very clumsily handled. That is my candid opinion of it. This one bird was smart enough to develop a little technique of his own. We for a while, thought we had no case at all, not only that, but we thought our faces would be very red by their beating us to the punch."

The Senator asked:

1. "Is it a fact that none of the evidence was obtained in a manner in which the Government ordinarily gets it?

2. "Is it a fact that the case was very clumsily handled?

3. "Is it a fact that there was no case against Jaffee and that the Government was forunate to have him plead guilty and receive a $2500 fine?"

The testimony of James M. McInerney, Assistant Attorney General, also raised questions, Knowland said. It was McInerney who last week first denied and later conceded that documents recovered in the Amerasia raid included highly secret information.

His testimony in 1946 was: "The evidence on Service (John Stewart Service, foreign service officer of the State Department) was thin. They said there was in Jaffe's office, as I recall it, copies of his confidential reports. When we arrested or made the searches, we found copies of his report. We interviewed Larsen and Larsen admitted he had given Service's copies to Jaffe, and Service had not given them. Service was very much surprised that Jaffe had that report. It was on that thin allegation that we authorized on Service and the same way with Gayn (Mark Gayn, free lance writer on the Far East who, with Service, was among the six arrested)."

Based on the above testimony the following questions were asked:

1. "At the time the FBI arrested Service did you believe the evidence was thin?

2. "Is it true that the testimony of Mr. McInerney tells the full facts as to the evidence posessed against Service and Gayn at the time of their arrest?"

Former Navy Lieutenant Andrew Roth, who served in the Office of Naval Intelligence and was one of the six arrested, was indicted by a Federal grand jury for his connection in the case, but the Government did not press charges.

"In view of the fact that Roth was arrested by the FBI and indicted by the grand jury, is it your opinion that the Government had no case against him with which they could go to trial with the slightest likelihood of success?" Knowland asked.

Senator Knowland also asked Hoover to evaluate the stolen wartime documents. He noted that Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.), had indicated only one percent of the papers had any military importance while most were of an inconsequential nature.

AVC Asks Impeachment Of Senator McCarthy

The National Planning Committee of the American Veterans Committee yesterday demanded the impeachment of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy R., Wis.) for "high crimes and misdemeanors," including his communism-in-Government charges.

McCarthy had no immediate comment.

Twenty-two of the committee's 25 members approved the action at their quarterly meeting.

The resolution cited McCarthy's questioning of fairness of the Malmedy Nazi massacre case, accused him of "lying" about Communist infiltration of the State Department, and said he "demonstrated moral turpitude" during his 1946 Senate race by retaining his circuit judgeship.

Fresh Cabbage Juice Suggested For Peptic Ulcers

Washington, June 5.—The above heading appeared in an (AP) newspaper article which reads as follows: A remarkable speedup in the healing of peptic ulcers when treated with new cabbage juice was reported today by a California scientist.

In the first test of its kind on human beings, 31 patients, some with ulcers of long standing, received the cabbage juice treatment. Each drank about a quart of juice daily. In 11 cases the ulcers disappeared in six to nine days, said the scientist. He reported the tests in California Medicine, an official journal. One case required 23 days of treatment.

The tests indicate, but do not prove, the scientist said, that raw cabbage juice contains an unidentified role in the healing of peptic ulcers.

Pure fresh cabbage juice and other fresh vegetable juices may be had in Washington from the Vita Food Co., at 3040 14th st. nw. or at the C & O Food Store, 519 11th st. nw., CO. 2980.

SHELL PREMIUM GASOLINE

NLRB Refuses To Act in Case Of Race Track

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The National Labor Relations Board wants nothing to do with racetracks, thank you.

Nothing personal, of course.

The five-member board simply thinks that it ought not interfere in the labor disputes of racetracks.

And why? Because the board feels that stepping into racetracks would not strengthen the operations of the Taft-Hartley management-labor relations act, which is concerned with interstate commerce.

The board decided to shy away from the bingtails in a decision issued yesterday, involving Santa Anita Park and Hollywood Park, in California, three AFL unions, and an individual who charged that the tracks and unions had together kept him from employment.

Examiner Upheld

The board never did get around to determining the merits of the charge. Instead, it upheld Trial Examiner Frederic B. Parkes, 2d., in refusing to assert jurisdiction over the case, in face of the insistence of the NLRB general counsel's office that the board must take up the case.

The majority decision of the board—3 to 1—rejected the arguments as to the interstate nature of the tracks as follows:

1. The horses are shipped interstate to participate in the races.

The board declared that horse racing, like big league baseball, is "essentially" a local enterprise. The interstate shipment of the horses, like the interstate movement of the ball players, is incidental to and not an essential element of the sporting events, the board said, pointing to the Supreme Court decision in the baseball case.

In the baseball case, the opinion written by Justice Holmes removed the baseball clubs from the restraints of the Sherman Antitrust Act.

2. The tracks maintain connections with the Daily Racing Form, a national publication reporting race results, and with the American Totalizator Co. of Baltimore, which leases parimutuel equipment to 70 tracks in 18 cities.

The board held that these connections were not in themselves enough to put the tracks in interstate commerce.

3. The tracks run claiming races, in which winning horses can be claimed at fixed prices, and therefore are comparable to stockyards.

The board ruled that the purpose of the claiming races is not to provide a market place for thoroughbred horses but to equalize competition on the theory that a horse will not be entered in a race below his class where he is subject to purchase at a bargain price.

4. The functions of the catering company that operates the numerous eating places at the tracks afford a substantial basis for asserting jurisdiction over the tracks.

The board found no merit in this argument, on the ground that while some of the foodstuff might originate outside the state, the caterer made his purchase from local wholesalers and made his sales locally.

Lineup of Members

The majority decision was signed by board members John M. Houston, Abe Murdock, and Paul L. Styles. Board member James J. Reynolds, jr., filed a dissent, stating he would have asserted jurisdiction in the case. Chairman Paul M. Herzog did not participate.

Europe After 1952

The end of the Marshall Plan will not remove the need for concerted action on the part of western European countries. On the contrary, they will have to intensify their efforts to expand production if they are to balance their accounts with dollar areas without lowering their living standards and also meet their obligations as members of the Atlantic community. Consequently, it is encouraging to learn that the Organization for European Economic Co-operation, representing the Marshall Plan countries, has taken the first step toward formulation of long-range recovery plans that would extend well beyond 1952. Presumably the OEEC would be retained as a coordinating agency, devoting its efforts as at present to raising the level of economic activity and bringing about increasingly close cooperation among the countries of western Europe.

Since the problems of Europe are world as well as regional problems, the United States and Canada will be invited to participate informally in OEEC planning activities. This kind of cooperation does not necessarily imply that our aid will be solicited after the Marshall Plan ends. It merely recognizes the fact, emphasized by Robert Marjolin, secretary general of the OEEC, that "European problems are inseparable from those of the whole Western world and that, in particular, the dollar shortage must be dealt with on a world scale." Obviously this is an undertaking that will require us to reexamine our own trade and investment policies and decide to what extent they are in need of modification as a means of stimulating expansion of Europe's dollar trade.

The United States has a direct interest in furthering these long-range plans for closer cooperation within western Europe and between Europe and the Western Hemisphere. For if European production should be set back when the Marshall Plan ends, our efforts to check the inroads of communism may be thwarted and our export trade would certainly suffer.

Business Outlook

The Federal Reserve Board's index of industrial production is again approaching the peacetime peak reached in 1948, a building boom is under way, and the automobile and steel industries are currently operating at record levels. As further evidence that business is booming, investments in new plants and industrial equipment have been increasing following the declines of last year. Rising employment is also helping to sustain consumer purchasing power at high levels.

Unquestionably business is good. But does the present boom rest on a sound and conservative foundation, as Secretary of the Treasury Snyder assumes, or is it a short-run upturn that will be followed by another recession? Answers to these questions are, of course, merely expressions of opinion, but informed opinions throw light on the strength and the weakness of the business outlook. And analysis of this kind may point the way to remedial action and thus avoid repetition of the boom-depression cycle.

One of the most disturbing accompaniments of the present business upturn is the current rise in prices that points to a revival of inflation. With huge Federal deficits ahead, inflationary forces will be intensified and may lead to further increases in prices that would reduce consumer buying demand and necessitate sharp cutbacks in production. Another cause of anxiety is the fact that the automobile and housing industries, which have contributed so substantially to business expansion, are producing durable goods at a rate that cannot be maintained indefinitely. When the present abnormally high demand is satisfied, these industries and their suppliers will have to curtail operations and other outlets will have to be found for the labor and materials that go into the production of cars and houses. The rapid rise in the consumer credit and mortgage credit, both at record heights, is also a matter of concern. For there are distinct limits to safe expansion of this kind of credit. It cannot and should not be depended on to sustain an indefinite expansion of buying of houses or other consumer goods.

Price support for agricultural products and Government spending, lending and deficit financing afford some protection against any sudden sharp collapse of prices, such as those experienced in prewar depressions. However, the mounting cost of the agricultural price support program shows that we cannot afford to retain the existing Government-financed system of price-propping much longer. Neither can we rely on heavy Government spending to supplement consumer buying demands and insure a continued high level of business activity. For heavy Government outlays have to be offset by burdensome taxes that discourage business expansion. The alternative is deficit financing which, if continued year in and year out, would destroy confidence in the Government's credit, result in creeping or severe inflation, according to the size of deficits and create economic dislocations that would waste our substance and lower our living standards. We conclude that our present prosperity rests on an insecure foundation that cannot be depended on to support a strong business superstructure in the years ahead and protect us from recurrent periods of depression.

Philippine Inquiry

Better news is coming out of the Philippines. A start has been made toward breaking up the Communist-led Huk bands that have been raiding communities in central Luzon. President Quirino has named a five-man board headed by the Vice President to investigate cases of graft and corruption involving public officials. To be sure, these are gains of promise rather than performance. But they indicate that President Quirino is aware of the perils threatening the Philippine Republic and that he is amenable to the aroused public opinion in the islands.

According to the Manila Chronicle, one of the leading Philippine newspapers demanding a house-cleaning, the President could not have chosen a stronger membership for his investigating board. The Vice President appears to have been the moving spirit in official circles calling for a crackdown on the corruptionists. He is realistic enough to recognize that the accumulated rottenness in Manila is undermining the government, and he has pledged himself to conduct an investigation that will be thorough as well as fair. Meanwhile a Senate "blue-ribbon" committee is also looking into the activities of faithless public servants who are said to have grown rich at the public expense.

If these investigators do their work well, and President Quirino has courage enough to prosecute the crooks who are close to him, his regime may yet be saved from collapse. It will be a heart-rending task. When corruption has gone as far as it has in Manila, only heroic measures dictated by the public interest can restore public confidence. Indeed, President Quirino will still face herculean problems even if he rises to the demand to throw the grafters out. The deficit for the current fiscal year is estimated at more than 90 million dollars, and the prospect is that in the following year the government's income will cover less than half of its budgeted expenditures. With the diminution of American aid, moreover, the Filipinos must tighten their belts and get along with fewer imports or vastly expand their exports to overcome the sharply unfavorable balance of trade.

Given expert aid and a disposition to make the necessary adjustments, it may be possible to solve these fiscal and economic problems. But that will be feasible only if the Manila government succeeds in shaking off the incubus of corruption and makes itself worthy of public support. ". . . At no other time in the history of the country," says the Chronicle, "have the people so completely lost their faith and confidence in their government." In a large measure, therefore, the future of the Philippines hangs upon the integrity and resourcefulness of the Vice President in the investigation he has undertaken. It is almost needless to say that if he succeeds in cleaning up the Philippine mess he will be a great figure in his own country; and that if he should then decide to visit the United States he would be doubly welcome because of the great interest of the American people in the success of the Philippine Republic.

Mr. Thomas Gives Up

It is a curious circumstance that the era of what Senator Taft has called "creeping socialism" in the United States should have been concurrent with the progressive decline of the Socialist Party. The high tide of organized socialism in this country was in 1912 when 6 percent of all the votes for President were cast for the late Eugene Debs. Since then the party has atrophied steadily in both numbers and influence. In the presidential campaign of 1948, Mr. Norman Thomas received but 132,138 votes, or only 28,995 more than were cast for the candidate of the Prohibition Party.

Now Mr. Thomas, the Socialists' perennial candidate since 1928, is ready to throw in the sponge. At the national convention of the party in Detroit last week he proposed that it should cease any further participation in elections and strive instead to attain its goals through the infiltration of other parties and of political groups such as the Americans for Democratic Action and the Political Action Committee of the CIO. Mr. Thomas' proposal, to be sure, was voted down by the convention, which approved a resolution calling for even greater political activity and a stricter discipline over the political conduct of the party members.

Thus, although Mr. Thomas has announced his intention of remaining a member of the National Executive Committee, a new and possibly fatal schism within the party seems not unlikely. For that matter, its history has been one of almost continuous schism. The party had its origin in fact in a rupture, within the somewhat older Socialist Labor Party, between the followers of Daniel De Leon and those who rebelled against his leadership and doctrines and his hostility to the trade union movement.

In 1917 another schism occurred over the policy and propaganda to be pursued toward the war with Germany. A few months later the party was shaken, as were the Socialist parties everywhere in the world, by the Bolshevist seizure of power in Revolutionary Russia and the call for a Third International. The Left-Wing minority which seceded soon afterward afforded the nucleus of the American Communist Party. In the 1930s there were wholesale defections by Right-Wing members growing out of the acceptance by Mr. Thomas and his followers of the formula of the Popular Front.

Apart from these fissiparous tendencies, the decline of the American Socialist Party can be ascribed to two main factors. One is its failure to recruit enough young members to replace those lost through the passing of the generation of German and Polish immigrants which had once constituted the bulk of its adherents. The second was its failure to adapt its program to the practical realities of American politics. Save in a few places such as Milwaukee and Reading, Pa., the Socialists have been unable to create those permanent local machines upon which every national party must depend for its permanence and strength.

"Disguised Propaganda"

In commending the Buchanan Committee the other day for looking into the sources from which organizations influencing public opinion obtain their funds, we inadvertently used the wrong alphabetical combination. We said that "leaders of the CFCG (Committee for Constitutional Government) and the NEC (National Economic Council) have been tried for contempt of Congress in the past for refusing to give the names of their financial backers." Instead of the NEC, we should have said the CEL (Constitutional Educational League). That alphabetical slip has no bearing, of course, on the point of the editorial—that in a democratic country organizations which influence public opinion and collect funds from the public ought to give a full accounting for their receipts and expenditures.

While we are on the subject, it may be worth noting that Representative Clare Hoffman attacked the editorial on other grounds. Although he did not object to the policy we advocated, Mr. Hoffman said: "It would be helpful if The Washington Post would be consistent and take a like position when subversive organizations refuse to disclose the sources of their funds." Our readers know that we have repeatedly called for a law requiring organizations to disclose the sources of their funds and the purposes for which the funds are used because it would be an effective means of exposing subversives. On March 23, 1948, we said:

> Communist-front and Fascist-front organizations have been able to flourish precisely because they have been able to operate in the dark. If their cause will not bear the light of day, they have no right to be collecting funds from the American public.

On September 13, 1948, we criticized Judge Rifkind for allowing William Z. Foster and nine other Communist Party officials to go on a fund-raising campaign while they were under indictment for conspiracy against the United States. The editorial said:

> . . . the spectacle of 10 Communist Party chieftains accused of conspiring against the United States using this charge as an easy means of raising funds to carry on their schemes certainly ought to stimulate Congress to enactment of a law that would require a public accounting for funds collected from the public.

"Smoke Screen"

Senator Kefauver has appropriately deflated the criticism of his home-rule bill put out in the name of the Washington Board of Trade. Some of the arguments made against the bill were beneath the dignity of that great civic organization, and we suspect that many of its members must have winced to see their spokesmen resort to such unimpressive objections. Take, for example, the statement that the bill would bring carpet-bag rule to Washington. Today the District is governed by Congress, which has representatives from all the 48 States but none from the District. Under the Kefauver bill, it would be largely governed by a council of 11 members, 9 of them elected by local residents. To call this carpet-bag rule while raising no objection to the utterly unrepresentative character of the present local government is to reverse the meaning of words.

Almost equally misleading is the contention that Congress cannot surrender its exclusive authority over the Nation's Capital. Of course, the bill provides no such surrender of authority. Congress would still be supreme here, but the local powers would be exercised, with the consent of Congress, by an elected council. To assume that this is beyond the power of Congress would be absurd in the light of history over a century and a half.

Sharp objection must also be raised against the argument that the only way to obtain genuine home rule for Washington is through representation of the District in Congress. We are as eager as anyone to see the District elect legislators to the House and Senate, and if that were possible we have no doubt that it would hasten the coming of home rule. But the door has been slammed against a constitutional amendment for this purpose. The door to home rule is half way open, and only a handful of reactionary Congressmen are blocking the way. To insist on the impossible at such a time leads inevitably to charges that the board's vision of "national representation" is only a "smoke screen," as Senator Kefauver called it.

The plain facts are that home rule and national representation are two separate reforms of which home rule is by all odds the most urgent. If the Board of Trade is really interested in securing representation in Congress, let it seek restoration of the vote by the only feasible means at this time. That is the real test. In the present context of events opposition to the home-rule bill is opposition to the whole idea of restoring democratic principles in the District, and we do not see how anyone can seriously view it as anything else.

Food And Population

Permit me to congratulate The Washington Post on Herblock's June 1 cartoon picturing the race between world population growth and Uncle Sam's efforts to spread free-world development seeds. It seems to me that the scientific evidence available strongly suggests that the race between world population growth and world production will decide the fate of democratic civilization.

The race between population and production may be compared to a handicapped horse race in which the horse named "population" is already about two laps of the track ahead of the horse named "production." If production is to catch up with population it must supply an adequate amount and quality of food and other healthful services for two thirds of the world's people who are now "chronically undernourished" and enjoy little economic and political freedom.

Both "population" and "production" can run much faster than they are now doing because each horse is held back by heavy handicaps. The speed of population is retarded chiefly by a high death rate among at least two thirds of the world's people. The speed of production is held back by lack of "know how" and to a certain extent by lack of conservation of the world's natural resources.

We all want production to overtake population growth so that all the people of the world may have economic and political freedom. To accomplish this result heavier handicaps must be put on population growth and the handicaps now holding back production should be removed. Illiteracy, lack of "know how," and wasteful conservation methods should be removed from production as soon as possible.

To slow down population growth so that production can catch up with it, the handicaps of high death rates which now prevent population from increasing faster should be replaced by more humane and more effective handicaps. Whatever we may think of birth control, it certainly is a more humane way of slowing down population growth than are high death rates, which are now in operation.

"When ECA Ends"

Your editorial of May 30, "When ECA Ends," is a good illustration of the fuzzy thinking which prevails today on the subject of balancing trade with foreign nations.

After referring to Secretary Sawyer's speech on what this country should prepare for when ECA ends, and referring to the great stake that we have in balancing world trade you state:

"For by lending and giving away dollars we have provided the funds needed for the purchase of our own goods," and

"Consequently the withdrawal of such assistance will create problems for this country that we dare not ignore."

I think you have very clearly pointed out the folly of this whole program by arguing that it is wise for us to stimulate trade with foreign countries through the procedure of giving them our money to buy our goods. It is like the corner merchant giving his customers money so they can buy goods from his shelves. It stimulated the merchant's business—he gets rid of his goods—and also his money. In the end he goes bankrupt.

Do you seriously contend that this country can achieve or maintain prosperity by continuing such a plan? That appears to be the tenor for your editorial.

JOHN B. BENNETT,
Representative from Michigan.

Editor's Note: The editorial quoted with approval Secretary Sawyer's statement that the American people cannot give away dollars forever. The aim of the editorial was to emphasize the need for a new approach reducing the dependence on the United States when the Marshall Plan ends.

"Verdict Without Trial"

Your May 30 editorial, "Verdict Without Trial," deserves commendation by all persons who have genuine understanding of the foundations of liberty.

It seems to me that Secretary Sawyer has done a great disservice not only to American principles of justice, but to the morale of all Federal workers, particularly in his own department and in the State Department which has been waging a courageous battle against unfair criticism. He has let the President and the Secretary of State down miserably. They are fighting to preserve the structure and principles of a loyalty review system.

However Secretary Sawyer may have thought the summary dismissal of men who have been cleared by the President's Loyalty Review Board might be interpreted, the reaction of a great many people who have hitherto been undecided about the welter of charges and countercharges is likely to be: "It looks as though this loyalty review system isn't much good. Maybe there is a good deal of truth in what Senator McCarthy has been saying."

There has never been a time in my life when the need for a courageous fight for the elemental principles of justice was as great as it is today. Keep leading the crusade!

"Disguised Propaganda"

I have just read your May 29 editorial, "Disguised Propaganda."

You state in this editorial that: "Leaders of the . . . NEC (National Economic Council) have been tried for contempt of Congress in the past for refusing to give the names of their financial backers."

This statement is false. No leader of the NEC or anyone connected with it has ever been tried for contempt of Congress in the past for refusing to give the names of their financial backers.

Real Income

The question as to how much better or worse off the family of moderate income is now than prior to Pearl Harbor may be debatable from an oratorical standpoint; from a mathematical standpoint there can be less misunderstanding.

The Department of Commerce indexed the pre-Pearl Harbor salary and wage item as 66 and in January, 1950, made it 139; but it made the consumer's price index for moderate income families 98.6 on August 15, 1939, and 167 on March 15, 1950. This, on its face, would show a real salary and wage increase of 25 percent. However, the consumer's price index is computed from only a limited number of items; and how about taxes?

The Department of Commerce indexed the pre-Pearl Harbor interest and dividend item as 10 and made it 17 on January 15, 1950. Thus, as far as the moderate income family dependent on these items is concerned, it is four-tenths percent better off than before; but how much better after taxes and paying for other items not taken into account in the Consumer's Price Index? United States taxes in 1939 were $4,357,046,038.83; in 1949, $40,501,870,605.55.

McCarthyism—Circa 16 A. D.

The follies of Libo's conduct might have been checked in the beginning; but Tiberius chose to collect materials for a future day. It happened at last that one Junius, who pretended to raise the dead by magic incantations, was appointed, at the request of Libo, to exhibit the wonders of his art. This man hastened with the secret to Fulcinius Trio, at that time a noted informer.

Libo was cited to appear. Trio applied to the consuls for a solemn hearing before the Senate. The fathers were convened to deliberate, as the summons informed them, on matters of moment, and a charge of the blackest nature.

(Libo) importuned his friends, and among them hoped to find one willing to undertake his defense. His application was without effect. His friends deserted him with different excuses; but all from the common motive of fear. On the day of trial, sinking under his distress, and faint with real or pretended illness, he was carried in a litter to the Senate House. He entered the court supported by his brother. At the sight of the Emperor, he stretched forth his hands in the manner of a supplicant, and in a pathetic tone endeavored to conciliate favor. Tiberius viewed him with a rigid and inflexible countenance. He then proceeded to open the charge, stating the particulars, and the names of the accusers . . .

Vibius at length . . . undertook to detail . . . the charge. Nothing could be more extravagant than some of the articles. He stated that Libo had made it a question to the fortune-tellers, whether he should ever be rich enough to cover with money the Appian Road, as far as Brundusium. There were other allegations of the same stamp.

There was, however, one fact of a serious nature. A paper was produced, containing a list of the Caesars, and also several senators, with remarks, or notes, which no man could decipher, annexed to their names. This was exhibited as the handwriting of Libo. He insisted on his innocence. It was proposed to put his slaves to the torture . . .

A party of soldiers surrounded Libo's house, and, with the brutal rudeness of men insolent in authority, forced their way into the vestibule, determined to make themselves heard and seen by the family. The prisoner was then at table, intending to make an elegant banquet the last pleasure of his life: but a mind in agony could relish nothing. Districated, terrified, he called on his servants to despatch him . . .

The prosecution, however, did not die with the unfortunate victim. It was resumed in the senate with unabating severity. Tibeurius made an end of the business, by declaring that if the criminal had not done justice on himself, he intended . . . to have recommended him to the mercy of the fathers.

The estate of the deceased was divided among the informers. Such of them as were of senatorian rank, were promoted to the praetorship, without the form of an election . . .

Matter of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

1953-54

PARIS.—There is one single, simple explanation of the sudden growth of tension, the seemingly unaccountable attack of nerves that is overtaking the Western world. We are imperceptibly passing into another period of acute crisis, comparable in some ways to the crisis period that produced the Marshall Plan.

One cause of this new crisis is the tempo of Soviet rearmament. At London, it can now be disclosed, Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson gave the solemn opinion that the Kremlin's war preparations would at least reach a preliminary climax in 1953-54.

Acheson's time estimate was accepted by his fellow Foreign Ministers, despite some wishful tendencies in certain quarters. The time schedule for the Western defense effort under the Atlantic Pact was thus defined and established.

The other cause of the crisis is the sudden realization of the present weakness of the West. During the past 2½ years, western unions and Atlantic organizations have been formed; imposing headquarters have been established; reams of top-secret paper have been turned out by platoons of inter-Allied brass. Most people were lulled by all this activity.

THEN, AT THE HAGUE, at Brussels and at London, the bleak reality was progressively unmasked. The governments of the Atlantic nations suddenly woke up to the fact that in an emergency, they would have almost nothing to throw into the breach except the platoons of brass and the reams of top-secret paper—"and a damn good thing, too," one statesman remarked a little peevishly.

The contrast between Western weakness and rapid Soviet war preparation has in turn produced the new crisis, which is essentially a crisis of will and leadership in the West.

Immediate war, it must be understood, is not the danger. It will be three years, after all, before the Soviet rearmament program is completed. For the present, our atomic weapons and strategic aviation, our troops in Germany and other factors still continue to serve as decisive deterrents to Soviet aggression. The danger is, rather, in the future, when the existing deterrents will cease to operate because of the great growth of Soviet armed strength.

What must be done, therefore, is to build up balanced and solid Western forces. Only thus can we continue to deter the Kremlin from military adventures, after the Russian war program has come to fruition. This job must be begun now if the needed weapons and men are to be ready in time. But doing this job with 1953-54 as the target date will require greatly increased national expenditures and other politically uncomfortable sacrifices. Hence the crisis of will and leadership in all the governments concerned, and most conspicuously in our own.

THE CRISIS is rendered more agonizing, both by the inevitable difficulty of preventive action in democracies, and the scope of the job to be done. For example, the Soviets will have both a strategic air force and a respectable stock of atomic weapons by 1953-54. Yet Western Europe is now virtually without any effective air defense whatever.

Thus all of Western Europe must now be covered with a great radar screen. Several scores of additional fighter squadrons, at the very least, must be provided for the Continent. Massive quantities of antiaircraft weapons, both cannons and the new guided missiles, must be made ready. And great numbers of bases and emplacements must be constructed for all these weapons, and many thousands of men must be recruited and trained to use them.

Again, since all France's professional army is pinned down in Indo-China, there are no combat-worthy ground forces in Western Europe except the two British and two American divisions in Germany, a Belgian division and other bits and pieces. Incredibly enough, in fact, the Swiss and Yugoslav armies are by far the most powerful in Europe today. Meanwhile, the Atlantic nations need somewhere between 30 and 40 divisions

Thus equipment for somewhere between 26 and 36 additional divisions must now be found; manpower again must be recruited and trained, and the novel, flexible ground defenses in depth, that can cut the guts out of Soviet tank strength, must also be built up. Finally, an energetic effort is needed to solve the submarine problem at sea, and forward bases are urgently required to get maximum deterrent effect from our strategic aviation.

Three points must be emphasized in conclusion. The foregoing in an entirely defensive and pacific program. For aggression against the Soviet Union, at least five times the forces above crudely listed would certainly be essential. Second, while the cost will be great, it will not be unbearable. Additional outlays of from three and a half to five billion dollars a year by the Atlantic community as a whole should be sufficient, if there are simultaneous economies by suppressing nonessentials. Third, if the job is done, there will be no great reason for alarm.

This is the essential point. The Soviet war will not be a great danger, if it is confronted by solid defenses. But it will be hideously dangerous if great Soviet power is confronted by a virtual military vacuum. We still have time, as Stanley Baldwin had in 1935, to determine which of these two conditions shall arise in the future.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Clue To A Puzzle

Lippmann

ALTHOUGH Secretary Acheson told Congress that "the principle of balanced collective forces"—which was agreed to at London—"is of great and perhaps revolutionary significance," these big words have aroused very little interest here at home. That, presumably, is because no actions accompanied the words: the size of the American budget and the composition of the American forces seem to be substantially unaffected by the "revolutionary" principle. Abroad on the European continent the principle, as announced, has caused more depression than enthusiasm: it has been understood to mean that the British, the Canadians and the Americans would specialize in sea and air power while the continental countries would specialize in the infantry.

FOR REASONS, which are not quite clear to me, the Administration allowed the whole fateful question of the defense of Europe to be presented initially in this opaque and depressing way. It can, however, be presented quite differently by speaking more frankly. That would be to say that the successful application of the revolutionary principle of balanced collective forces is possible in western Europe provided certain revolutionary developments in the military arts can be consummated.

This is in fact what the progressive military men who coined this rather awkward phrase were thinking about. They know that the "revolutionary principle of balanced collective forces" depends upon revolutionary changes in military weapons and devices. Nothing was said publicly about this at London. Mr. Acheson did not refer to it in his report, nor the President in his message on military aid. Until General Collins' broadcast on Sunday afternoon there had been only some official hints and some authorized leaks from the Pentagon. Yet only in relation to the latest military technology can the decisions taken in London be understood, or the puzzle solved of how to reconcile them with the political realities of Europe.

IT IS NOT possible, nor is it necessary, to describe in any detail the new developments both in conventional and in atomic weapons in order to understand the question. It is enough to say that for the time being, for the next years, "there is", as Dr. Vannevar Bush puts it in his Modern Arms and Free Men, "a strong indication that the defense may again be in the ascendant in land warfare." Dr. Bush points out that by 1944 the means of the successful breakthrough which Hitler employed in 1940 "has become utterly obsolete," what with the development of land mines, the proximity fuse, the recoilless gun, the rocket-carrying plane.

There is reason to hope, and perhaps to believe that since the end of the war the development of defensive weapons against land armies in mass formation has made great progress, and especially, as disclosed since the publication of Dr. Bush's book, in the new style of atomic weapons. It should not surprise the world that America, which is strong in technology but short of manpower, should have devoted much attention to the military problem of dealing with masses of men by technological means.

In any event it is here that the key is to be found to a rational conviction that western Europe can be defended on the ground. These new armaments are designed to enable highly trained but relatively small numbers of determined men to deal with mass armies of the conventional type,—armies, that is to say, with great quantities of tanks, artillery and infantry.

THE MILITARY policy of the Atlantic nations rests on the assumption, as yet not made explicit, that western Europe can be defended against invasion by relatively small professional armies and that great masses of conscripts are not necessary. The implication, unnecessary if the progressive military men are right, that the London decisions call for great conscript armies in France, the Low Countries and eventually in Germany has caused despair and consternation. To let this belief take root would be a political disaster.

For a number of compelling reasons the defense of western Europe cannot be organized on the principle that the English-speaking nations ride in planes and sail in ships while the continental people fight on the ground. The notion that this was the plan of the Atlantic nations is undoubtedly the real reason why almost nothing was accomplished during the first year of the Atlantic treaty. The trouble has not been the lack of committees to draw blueprints and to "coordinate." The trouble has not been lack of money. In the last analysis the trouble has been that though the plan seemed to call for a big ground army, there were not nearly enough infantrymen.

THE BRITISH, Canadians, and Americans were obviously not going to conscript masses of their young men and then embed them permanently as garrison troops in western Europe. We have world-wide responsibilities and we cannot commit important forces irretrievably in one theater. That left only France, among the signatories of the pact, to provide the bulk of the infantry divisions. But France is not a big country like Russia, the United States or the British Commonwealth. Moreover, the core of the regular French army is not in Europe but, unhappily, it is in Indo-China. For another thing, the mobilization of a mass army in France (the same applies to Italy) would mean that at least one in four of the recruits was an avowed Communist.

The dearth of infantry in the West led naturally enough—especially among the naive generals—to the idea of recruiting the Germans. But this solution ran against the hard and indubitable fact that the Germans will not fight as mercenaries under British or French commanders. And if they are enlisted and armed under German commanders, the Germans will run the Atlantic alliance.

THUS THE problem of the defense of western Europe against invasion—if war cannot be prevented—was and is insoluble on the assumption that the Red Army has to be contained by a conventional mass army based on universal conscription.

A solution of the problem is possible, however, if the progressive military men are right in believing that during the present phase of the military arts—which of course won't last forever—relatively small, professional, carefully screened, specialized forces can disorganize and disperse a mass army.

France May Set Record In Tourists, Auriol Says

Paris, June 4 (AP).—President Vincent Auriol announced today that France is on its way to a record-breaking tourist year.

In a speech before the Touring Club of France, the president said: "In 1949, there were 2,800,000 tourists in France, against 1,900,000 in 1929, the biggest year between the two wars, and hardly a million in 1948.

"This year is promising well, since the number of entries into our ports of sea and air have shown an increase of 14 to 20 percent for the first quarter of the year.

insurance, and must have FHA approval of their rent scales.

Under an FHA program begun in May 1946, the Federal agency controls the rents on FHA-insured apartment construction. A maximum 6½ percent net return on a project's replacement value is allowed development owners, according to Thomas C. Barringer, director of the FHA District Insuring Office.

Barringer announced last week that about 11 FHA-insured projects in northern Virginia, built before the lifting of rent controls, will be allowed to "equalize" their rents when controls come off.

These projects, which now revert to control of his office, will be permitted an approximate 15 percent increase if they did not receive the voluntary 15 percent hike in 1947.

Parkfairfax Raises $5-$12

Here is the rent situation in major nearby Virginia developments:

Parkfairfax: 1681 units built in 1943-44. Increases of $5 to $12 (6 to 15 percent) effective July 1, on all but 200 units, which accepted the voluntary 15 percent hike in 1947. One-badroom units, now $58 to $70, will be $58 to $75. Two bedrooms, now $74.50 to $85, will be $79 to $92. Three bedrooms, now $88.50 to $97.50, will be $88.50 to $110

Buckingham: 1826 units built about 1940. Increases of $7 to $12 (13 to 20 percent) effective July 1 on most units. (About 1700 units accepted the voluntary 15 percent hike). One-bedroom, now $47 to $60, will be $55 to $72. Two bedrooms, now $55 to $71, will be $62 to $81.50

Arna Valley: 664 units built about 1941. $2 to $6 increase (5 to 15 percent) effective July 1, on all units which did not pay the full voluntary hike. One bedroom, now $40.50 to $46.50, will all be $46.50—without utilities.

Lee Gardens South Raises

Lee Gardens South: 591 units, built from 1941 to 1943. "Readjustment" of rents up to $9.75 more on about 100 units, chiefly those which did not pay the voluntary hike. Effective July 1, one bedroom, now from $68.40 to $71.30, will remain the same range. Two bedrooms, now $65 to $75, will be $74.75 to $75—all utilities included.

Lee Gardens North: 357 units built after rent control, in 1949-50. No hikes.

Westover: 278 units built about 1940. $4 to $8 increases (5 to 17 percent) effective August 1, on all but a dozen units. (About 20 percent accepted the voluntary hike). One bedroom, now $46 to $62.50, will be $54 to $62.50. Two bedrooms, now $60 to $68.50, will be $65 to $72—heat and water only included.

Lyon Properties: 109 units built in 1940-41. Increases up to $29 (an "average" 14.5 percent hike, according to management, but up to 43 percent in some instances.) About 70 units had voluntary increases. One bedroom, now $56 to $83, will be $78 to $83. Two bedrooms, now $67 to $102, will be $96 to $102—with utilities.

Phone Charge Hiked

Arlington Village: 665 units built about 1937; and Colonial Village: 1100 units built around 1935. No rent increases. However, a $1.25 monthly phone charge has just been imposed, plus a charge of 10 cents, instead of 5 cents, for outgoing calls. Practically all tenants accepted the 1947 volnutary hikes. Rents on both projects are about $52 to $57 for one-bedroom units, $68 to $71 for two bedrooms, $82 to $90 for 3 bedrooms.

George Mason: 85 units built in 1943. "Equalization" of rents for the 50 percent of tenants who failed to accept the voluntary hike. One bedroom, now $62.50 to $71.88, will all be $72. Two bedrooms, now $70 to $80.50, will all be $81—all utilities included.

Possible rent raises at the following rent-controlled projects are still under discussion:

Barcroft: 1280 units built between 1942 and 1948—of which 800 were under rent control. Rents now range from a minimum $57.50 for one bedroom units, to a maximum $80 for two bedrooms. Phone service is extra.

Fairlington: 3439 units built from 1943 to '45. An "equalization" is under discussion. Units now range from a minimum $59.50 for one bedroom, to a maximum $103.50 for three bedrooms. About one third of tenants accepted the 1947 voluntary hike.

Fillmore Gardens: 555 units.

Abingdon Apartments: 240 units. About two thirds accepted voluntary 15 per cent raise. One bedroom now is $59.50 to $68; two bedrooms, $63.50 to $73, without utilities.

Presidential Gardens: 400 units built from 1938 to '41. All one-bedroom units, now $64 to $75.

Political Science Group Elects Dr. Burdette

Election of Dr. Franklin L. Burdette, professor of government and politics at the University of Maryland, as president of the Washington chapter of the American Political Science Association was announced yesterday.

Also elected were Dr. W. Brooke Graves, Library of Congress, first vice president; Dr. Catheryn Seckler-Hudson, American University, second vice president; and Dr. Vincent Browne, Howard University, secretary-treasurer.

Land Reclamation Pushed Along Coast

about 15 to 30 miles wide. It is extremely productive, but has been virtually untouched for 75 years. It is gumbo land. Its principal characteristic is a heavy, black, sandy loam, with an almost impervious subsoil.

Charles B. Gay, a 38-year-old soil scientist with the Soil Conservation Service in charge of this project, estimates there are around four million acres of this gumbo land. Also in the experiment, and lying in and about this bladen strip, are several million acres of fresh-water tidal marshlands, and many millions of acres of salt marshes.

The bladen soil is capable of producing large quantities of a variety of crops, particularly vegetagles, grasses and legumes. Some, when conditions are right, can yield extremely valuable crops in great abundance. There are instances where a farmer who "hits it right" can harvest a fortune in a single season.

Obstacles to Overcome

Nature, however, long has interfered with its cultivation. Much of the time the land is under water. Or, in the course of decades, it has grown up to wild underbrush, scrub pines and oaks, with a scattering of valuable timber trees. Other areas have grown to wild grasses of very slight value as a feed crop. Farther north it changes to other growths, but generally the picture is one of comparative desolation.

The Government studies take several courses:

1. Foremost is water control. Although considerable drainage is planned, it is not a drainage program. It is more a program of water control—removing it when it is in too great abundance, and putting it back on the soil when it is needed.

2. Proper soil uses. Some of the land is best suited for woodland, and, under proper woodland management could be made to return a stable and considerable income. Other parts are almost ideal for grasses and legumes. These would furnish subsistence for meat and dairy animals, for which there is and long has been a crying need in the South. Still others are capable of producing vegetables in greater volume than most of the present best known truck gardening areas, and have the added advantage of being closer to the country's biggest markets.

Grain Crops Possible

3. In the fresh water tidal areas are potentialities for restoring the pre-Civil War rice industry; not only is the situation ideal for rice, but there is a school of thought that believes it can also turn out crops of other grains in greater abundance, because of the stable moisture supply, than any other area.

The first section of the experiments, which were started less than six months ago, are taking place on a 180-acre tract in Liberty County along the main highway to Florida. Negotiations are underway for another tract of 500 acres, now a part of the Ford plantation, this is all fresh-water marsh land and will b eused for an intensive study of water control.

The project under Gay's direction, is starting out modestly. The project was sold to Congress a year ago, by a group of southern agricultural leaders, members of soil conservation districts, the university system of Georgia, through the Georgia Coastal Plain Experiment Station and others.

Congress granted $100,000 for the beginning, but this was later reduced, by a reduction in the appropriations measure, to hal[illegible]t.

Among the enthusiastic sponsors of the project are Georgia's two Senators, George and Russell, and Senator Maybank of South Carolina, as well as several members of the House of Representatives.

Much of this land once was highly productive. Before the Civil War vast plantations flourished along the coast, growing huge quantities of rice, indigo, long staple or Sea Island cotton, and similar commodities. Plentiful and cheap labor was the prime requirement. Slavery furnished that.

History doesn't record a more sudden and complete disruption of a community's economy than the Civil War brought to this section. The plantations with their intricate systems of dikes, waterways, sluices, and ponds were destroyed. Farm buildings were burned. The slaves were freed. Morale was ruined.

Coincidently the boll weevil made its appearance in the Sea Island or long staple cotton. Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas started growing upland rice at a cost with which the old plantation couldn't compete. Synthetic dyes replaced indigo.

The young folks moved away. The old folks stayed home and watched nature take over. Marsh grass and scrub pine covered the rice fields. Brush and woods overran the pastures and uplands. For 75 years the country slid back to jungle. Without cheap labor it couldn't be restored. Besides the western frontier offered new land that didn't need to be reclaimed.

The cheap labor that once was supplied by slavery is now available from labor-savings machinery. Farm mechanization, with a machine for every purpose, is going to return this land once again to production.

From an airplane the markings of the old landscapes still show clearly. The dikes, the canals, ditches, and floodgates of the old plantations can be seen as sharply from the air as they could be viewed 90 years ago from the ground. They intrigued several men, among them the late Col. Edward T. Huston, once part owner of the New York Yankees, then called the highlanders, and Henry Ford.

Huston bought Butlers Island plantation, midway between Savannah and Brunswick. Ford, in the last 20 years, accumulated around 85,000 acres south of Savannah. For years he is credited with pouring a million dollars annually into the project. A model community was built, with a church, sawmill, scores of homes, a commissary, stores, schools and all that go to make up a settlement.

Huston and later Ford restored some of the rice fields. First they tried using pumps to flood the fields and control the water. It dodn't work. Eventually they returned to the ages-old system that formerly made this country great—the use of tidal power to push the freshwater upstream into the canals and ditches. Ford is getting 30 to 35 bushels of rice an acre. Some experiments, however, are showing as high as 60.

KNOW YOUR WATERWAYS

How Many Do?

Deepening and widening waterways rarely makes any difference in their appearance. Thus it is that indispensable harbors and channels are developed throughout the nation with many knowing little or nothing of what is being done. Consequently, the people have little conception of what such improvements mean to the nation's commerce and defense, or of how they are benefited. Picture present day America without its deep harbors and navigable channels! Future growth of the nation continues to be largely dependent upon waterway development. In addition to their intrinsic value, the new projects provide employment during construction, stimulate business directly in improvement areas and indirectly throughout the country. When completed, they are productive and permanent assets. No other federal expenditure of like amount is more beneficial to the nation or to the people.

Bach Becomes Arlington Board's Democrat Nominee

Fred W. Bach, 40-year-old Washington advertising man, automatically became the Democratic candidate for a seat on the Arlington County Board, to be filled in the November election.

Bach, of 1141 N. Utah st., Arlington, was the only man to file at the midnight deadline Friday. Thus a Democraitc primary contest will be eliminated, acording to Arlington Democratic Committee chairman Harrison Mann.

Two others, George J. Freisom, and incumbent board member Daniel Dugan, have indicated they will enter the race. Both will be candidates for the nonpartisan town meeting nomination, June 12. There is no Republican nominee.

One on the Aisle—

Last, Wise Hours Of 'The Gunfighter'

By Richard L. Coe

"THE GUNFIGHTER," at the Palace, finds something different to do with a familiar setting and does it well.

We watch the last few hours of a man who, in his brief day, was the toughest of his fellows. He winds up lonely, sadder and wiser. While such is the attitude of many a picture, "The Gunfighter" gives us only that, the final hours, a summing up and mercifully without the overworked flashback.

Gregory Peck plays the fellow, giving the part a depth not usually bothered with in the average Western. Shrewd writing has given us the man of 35 in his other ages; we see his 8-year-old son and a brash killer at the start of his gory path. Subtly we are shown that the unhappy man of the picture went through such stages and we see, too, what he might have become—the sheriff who gave up killing and thievery for law and order.

Because Producer Nunnally Johnson has overseen his story carefully, the idea comes off as an engrossing picture. William Bowers and William Sellers wrote the screen play from a story by Bowers and Andre de Toth and Henry King directed with a sure eye.

And the casting is particularly effective. Peck's steady ability (aided by a mustache) probes into the repentent character and his morose loneliness is well expressed. Millard Mitchell is fine as the understanding sheriff who protects him almost to safety until a young smart-aleck manages to prove that he's tough because he beats the locale's toughest hombre to the draw.

Skip Homeier, once a nasty child of stage and screen, swaggers through this role and there is a nice performance from Karl Malden as a bartender. Jean Parker comes back to the screen as a shady lady and shows fine vigor.

Not since Alfred Hitchcock's "Rope," do I recall a picture attempting, without flashback, to confine a story within a few hours, another novelty of Johnson's production. This has required better writing than most scripts enjoy and for it these writers rate bows on their own. They've dovetailed each incident tightly and while at times there are resemblances to the stage melodramas of 40 years ago about the bad men of the West, the pictures and shifts of background give more movement than one might expect.

THEY'LL be shooting scenes for "Born Yesterday" here next week . . . Columbia Pictures has Statler reservations for a batch of players including Broderick Crawford and Judy Holliday . . . The comedy about a junkman and his babe, learning about the Government, got its start here when the National was a playhouse and exteriors for the movie will be shot next week . . . Judy got the part to the surprise of many who knew that the person who creates a part on the stage stands little chance of doing it for the flicks . . . Her tests and her scenes in "Adam's Rib" (the jealous wife bent on homicide) clinched her old role.

THE OPEN AIR drive-in on the Richmond nighway is starting a search for talent. . . . Interested singers, dancers, magicians, etc., should apply at the box office.

SUSAN JOHNSON, the buxom Meg who sings of her mother's wedding day in the Gayety's "Brigadoon," is all in favor of understudies. . . . Couple of years ago Susan was bouncing about in the Radio City Music Hall dancing line. . . . After she was made "Brigadoon" understudy, it was the movies' favorite backstage plot—haunting the wings while the presumably indestructible Pamela Britton sang the rowdy numbers. . . . St Louis brought Susan her reward and Pam her grief—the start of a long illness. . . . Susan's had the part ever since.

THE VFW of Bethesda plans a variety show Wednesday and Thursday nights at Leland Junior High . . . Jerry Strong will emcee 12 acts of vaudeville, including Mildred Kirk and Tommy Ryan . . . Yup, there'll be a hillbilly band . . . All benefiting VFW.

THE WEEKEND was degree-getting time for the theater folk . . . Lynn Fontanne got a Doctor of Letters from Troy's Russell Sage College . . . Todd Duncan, on his day off from "Lost in the Stars," was made a Doctor of Humane Letters by Indiana's Valparaiso University . . . And Una O'Connor, unfortunately without a play, flew to Davenport, Iowa's St. Ambrose College to receive her Doctor of Literature.

CLOSINGS in theaterworld: The Lunts after their 247th performance in "I Know My Love," off for a summer at the Wisconsin farm, though first for a fortnite at Noel Coward's Jamaica home; Katharine Hepburn in "As You Like It" and Beatrice Straight in "The Innocents." . . . All three plan road tours next season . . . And in Chicago Saturday night "Miss Liberty" called it quits . . . The Robert E. Sherwood-Irving Berlin-Moss Hart musical flopped on the road just as it did in NY; I'm sorry . . . I was able to forget the musical's weighty progenitors and loved the thing..

"THE GUNFIGHTER," 20th Century-Fox release produced by Nunnally Johnson. Screen play by William Bowers and William Sellers, from a story by Bowers and Andre de Toth. Photographed by Arthur Miller. Music by Alfred Newman. Directed by Henry King. At the Palace.

3 Air Commands Will Hold First Joint Maneuvers

Three United States Air Force commands will hold joint maneuvers in the continental United States during the first two weeks of this month to test security measures under simulated wartime conditions.

An official announcement said this is the first time the Strategic and Continental Air Commands have combined with the Military Air Transport Service in large-scale exercises since the latter was reorganized to provide training in support of the fighting air commands.

The Air Force said no details will be divulged but that the maneuvers will encompass most of the continental United States.

Fisherman's Dog Fires Rifle, Barks His Master's Shin

Columbus, Ohio, June 4 (U.P.).—William Kerschner's dog shot him —no woofing.

The 34-year-old man nursed a bullet wound in his ankle today as evidence that a man doesn't have to bite a dog to make news if the man has a dog like Sandy.

The 6-month-old hound was leaping joyously around the back seat of his master's car on the way home from a fishing trip yesterday. In his joy Sandy leaped upon the trigger of Kerschner's loaded rifle. The bullet pierced the front seat and clipped Kerschner. But it did little more than bark his shin.

Roanoke Class Hears Talk By Robertson

Salem, Va., June 4 (AP).—Virginia's junior United States Senator today called upon the 74 members of the graduating class at Roanoke College to "have a design for living."

Senator A. Willis Robertson, himself a member of the class of 1907, delivering the commencement address in the Alumni Gym, said it had been his experience with and observation of commencement addresses that the speaker is fortunate if his listeners remember just one thing he says, therefore, his appeal to remember just this one point.

"If you are to lead a useful life you must have a design for living in which a firm faith in a divine plan for the world is the foundation of your hope," he declared, "because without hope your choice eventually will be between illusion and despair."

He emphasized that while "a sound mind in a sound body, ambition and the competitive spirit, are integral parts of success in any undertaking, every one who would be the architect of his future and the master of his destiny should have a design for living."

Marshal Smuts Improves

Johannesburg, South Africa, June 4 (AP).—Field Marshal Jan Christiaan Smuts' condition improved today and he was able to chat with members of his family for the first time since he became ill a week ago.

Jet Plane to Try Atlantic Non-Stop

Montreal, June 4 (U.P.).—A Canadian jet fighter plane will attempt shortly to make the first non-stop jet flight across the Atlantic in history.

Defense Minister Brooke Claxton said the 600-mile-an-hour CF-100, first two-place, jet-propelled combat plane produced here, would make the flight to Farnborough, England, for a British air show.

Some United States Air Force jet planes crossed the Atlantic last year but stopped at Iceland en route.

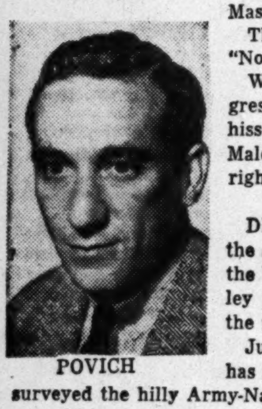
SENATOR STYMIED—Playing in the same foursome with Bob Hope, Senator Scott Lucas, Democratic majority leader, found a new hazard on the Army-Navy Country Club course yesterday during the Celebrities Tournament. His ball (arrow) landed in the coat of Paul Greenstein, of Washington. He was permitted to place it on the fairway without a penalty stroke, despite Hope's objection. On the right, Danny Kaye is almost overcome with shyness when Babe Didrikson points to a mud-splattered spot on her leg. The Babe won the Women's Open Division of the star-studded tournament with a score of 103

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

A POLITICAL note was introduced early in the National Celebrities Tournament when Celebrity George Malone, United States Senator (Republican) from Nevada got a slide fade on his tee shot.

"You may drive another ball if you like, Senator," announced Master of Ceremonies Harry Wismer.



POVICH

The Senator waived the privilege, saying "No, that was all right."

Whereupon a certain Democratic Congressman, awaiting his own turn to drive, hissed: "That's the first time George Malone has ever said anything was all right, on or off the Senate floor."

DIGNITY MADE its appearance early in the second day's play when two Justices of the United States Supreme Court, Mr. Stanley Reed and Mr. Tom Clark, teed off in the first foursome.

Justice Clark, a once-a-year golfer who has never missed a Celebrities tournament, surveyed the hilly Army-Navy Country Club course and delivered one of his most brilliant opinions.

"We can hardly declare this golf course unconstitutional," he said, "But I submit the opinion that it is hard on the Constitution."

SENATOR SCOTT LUCAS, who runs the interference for President Truman as Majority Leader of the Senate, was faced with a baffling dilemma on the second hole. His tee shot landed in the coat pocket of a spectator who was vainly trying to duck.

"Now what," he inquired of playing partner Bob Hope. "Do I play it out of this fellow's pocket?"

"By no means," said Hope. "Let me consult the club rules. Here 'tis. It says here, and I quote, 'In the event that a ball lands in the pocket of a spectator, the next shot will be played by Commissioner of Internal Revenue George Schoeneman'."

BEN HOGAN hit his first drive only 260 yards down the middle and looked quite displeased. He looked inquiringly at Wismer for permission to try it all over again, got it, and contented himself with a 280-yard swat down the middle.

THE BIG GALLERY was actually disappointed when Danny Kaye finally teed off. They wanted more of his antics on the first tee. Kaye was wowing 'em with his pantomime and clowning, and the last thing they wanted to see him do was play golf.

Danny showed he was better than a green hand at the business of playing golf, though, when finally he did get around to it. Only Hogan and the other pros out-distanced him from the first tee.

WISMER WAS loaded with first-tee talent. First Kaye, and then his pal Hope. Kaye left 'em laughing and Hope had 'em in stitches.

"I am proud to be a part of this tournament and the battle against juvenile delinquency," said Hope, "Although in Washington we don't call 'em juvenile delinquents. We have a special name for 'em—young Republicans."

HOPE, CALLING himself a presumptious bum, undertook to show stylish Babe Didrikson how to hit a golf ball on the first tee. And when beauteous Marilyn Smith was addressing the ball, he cracked, "I'm going with you if you drive into the woods."

Miss Smith thereupon whacked a 240-yard drive down the middle of the fairway. Hope grabbed Wismer's microphone and announced: "I can see she wants no part of me."

With Hogan, Hope with hilarious "Farewell," he said as Hogan split the fairway with his drive. "I will see you from time to time, or at least in next year's tournament. Whenever you are on the fairway, you and I are parting company. I, you know, am a woodman of the World."

HAM FISHER, author of Joe Palooka and Humphrey Pennyworth, had to be urged to the first tee by Wismer. "Are you going to play today?" inquired Wismer coaxingly. "Didn't you know, Harry," hammed Ham, "I played last night."

Charlie Justice, still trying to win the All-America football players title in a foursome with Bill Dudley, Tommy Thompson and terback-passing strategist, Tommy Thompson, topped the special All-American football players division with a total of 119, after a 40 on the first line. Thompson thus retained his first day's lead in a foursome that included Bill Dudley and Harry Gilmer, who tied for second with totals of 127.

Charlie (Choo-Choo) Justice, North Carolina's tournament hope, showed no golf skill to compare with his football talents, and finished a lagging fourth in his division with a 149.

Rivaling the play of Hogan and Didrickson on the final round was the sensational spurt of Gordon MacRae, movie and network songster who made a serious bid for the nongolfing celebrities title with a final nine of 34. It landed him only one stroke behind the three leaders tied for first place at 116.

High-banked around the first tee, and trailing far off toward the first hole, the gallery watched another of the shows that only the Celebrities Tournament produces, with nationally famed personalities a dime a dozen.

Fame was on parade there, with Harry Wismer bossing the ceremonies, and in glitering procession the gallery saw Supreme Court justices, Cabinet officers, legislative big-wigs, big shots of the military—and also Hope, Kaye and MacRae. Plus Jim Thorpe, Didrikson, All-Americans of football and basketball in profusion.

Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark, who enlisted The Washington Post as sponsor of the tournament when he was Attorney General, four years ago, set the keynote for the day in a first tee speech when he said:

"We have here an example of how our famous Americans rally to the worthy cause of battling juvenile delinquency, which gets the proceeds of this tournament. I am so proud to have been a factor in its origination."

Tournament officials predicted that the two day's play, plus the proceeds of Saturday night's whopping Bob Hope benefit show, would funnel $30,000 into the fund to purchase sports equipment for underprivileged children.

Rain that fell all morning and cast a dreary outlook on a golf tournament starting at noon, failed to dim the enthusiasm of golf fans and celebrity hunters. They came in even greater numbers than on the first day and were rewarded when the sun came out.

Tee, T-Formation Equally Easy for Tommy Thompson

Tommy Thompson, who runs the Philadelphia Eagles from T-formation, proved he was a good man off another tee.

The Eagles' quarterback stroked a 40 for a total 119 to take the All-America football backfield championship at the Celebrities Golf Tournament. It was no contest. Trailing Tommy were Bullet Bill Dudley of the Redskins with 43-126, Harry Gilmer of the Redskins with 41-127, and Charlie Justice, whom the Redskins would like to have, with 52-149.

Tommy was tied for sixth place in the Celebrities Division standings with Yankees' co-owner Del Webb.

Hope Fine—But Golf Isn't

Bantam Ben Gives Lessons to Partners

By Bill Gold
Post Reporter

Ben Hogan, famed for his grim determination on the links, relaxed yesterday and chalked up a casual 3-under-par 33.

Ben's two-day total of 98 was an easy winner in the National Celebrities Golf Tournament at Army Navy Country Club.

Rounding out his foursome were Bob Hope, Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg and Senator Scott Lucas. Hope had a 38, the others 6-over-par. 42's.

When Hogan hooked his opening tee shot dangerously close to the trees on the left, the crowd expected a frown from the master of golfing concentration.

Instead, Ben grinned and shrugged it off. A newsreel cameraman muttered:

"There's an upset, for you. Hogan smiled."

With no big pro prize at stake, Hogan took a busman's holiday and enjoyed himself. Comedian Hope, always a great crowd pleaser, was in fine fettle too. But his golf game wasn't. He spent most of the afternoon picking up pointers from Hogan, who can't resist coaching an amateur with a flaw in his swing. General Vandenberg and Senator Lucas also "attended class," and hung on every word.

Old Pro Hogan began in typical fashion, with a birdie on the first hole. A drive and a 4-iron put him 18 feet from the pin on the 450-yard par 5 and two putts landed the bird.

On the second, Hogan's approach was 50 feet short, but he chipped up for an easy par. On the 220-yard par 3 third hole, Hogan hit "a soft brassie" and went 30 feet over the green on a fly. He got his par with a chip and a putt.

On the fourth the mighty Hogan gave a thrilling exhibition of championship golf. The soldiers failed to move back the crowd ringing the carpet, so Hogan sailed a perfect niblick over their heads and dead to the pin for another birdie.

After a par on the fifth, Little Ben racked up his third birdie on the 515-yard 13th, which was used as the sixth hole in yesterday's revised layout.

His drive cleared the first ditch on a fly, but the soggy ground gave him no roll.

Just Misses Eagle

But Hogan hit another of those "soft" woods of his—a brilliant 4-wood that dropped dead on the green, 50 feet from the pin. Ben went for the eagle, but missed it by a foot.

On the seventh he missed another bird by inches on an 18-foot putt. On the eighth he had to scramble for a par, and on the ninth (the regular 18th) his 30-footer stopped on the lip of the cup to rob him of still another bird.

General Vandenberg also had trouble with those pesky putts. On the eighth he appeared to have stroked a perfect 40-footer, but it died in the wet grass, inches short of its mark.

Senator Lucas listened to Hogan's putting hints, with good results. His deadly approaches and good putting kept him in the battle for second-place honors.

Hope was having trouble with the irons, but always managed to recover well. On the eighth he finally steered in a putt—a nice 12-foot job that curled just right. "Oh, you doll," yelled the comedian, "that makes up for everything."

He saved his best wise crack for the last hole, where the best audience was gathered. Taking the mike to acknowledge his applause, he quipped: "This fellow Lucas plays well enough to be investigated."

On the Green

Buddy Rogers Needs Gadget

Years ago Movie Idol Buddy Rogers made a picture called "Follow Through" in which he played the part of a golf professional. Playing in the Celebrities Tournament yesterday recalled the picture to his mind.

"In the picture I had a wonderful gadget," he said. "It was a hidden putting rack underneath the green that guided the ball right into the cup."

"I made all kinds of 30- and 40-foot putts without a miss, and hundreds of people wrote letters wanting me to teach them how to play golf. Wish $ had it with me today," he said.

Buddy carded a 45, second to Under Secretary of the Navy Dan Kimball, who led the foursome with a 43. Congressman Lowell Stockman of Oregon, an "85-90 shooter at Burning Tree," finished with 46 and Gen. W. J. Wallace carded 49.

Red Devils Romp

New York, June 4 (AP). — The Brooklyn Red Devils trounced the Chicago Westerners, 22-13, and the New York chiefs shaded the Jersey Jolters, 26-24, in a roller derby double-header today before 13,806 at Madison Square Garden.

Virginia Gentleman Gives Alice Bauer a Great Big Lift

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

BOB FEAGAN, handsome Randolph-Macon College sophomore from Fairfax, yesterday gave Alice Bauer the biggest lift of her young golfing career.

It happened on the way to the eighteenth tee at Army-Navy where the prospect of a steep 200-yard climb up a muddy hill, had Alice wondering.

The elder Bauer girl turned to two men standing nearby and asked if somebody would please carry her. The men were flabbergasted, but not Mr. Feagan.

Handing his program to his brother Bill, Bob stepped right up, whisking Alice into his arms like a knight of old and toting her up the treacherous muddy incline while the crowd laughed.

Puffing at the top, Bob remarked, "I'd pay another $2.40 admission to do that again. She's a doll."

Mrs. Bettye Mims Danoff, another member of the "glamour foursome," took time out for a snack on the twelfth fairway—through the generosity of a 13-year-old fan.

She was staring hungrily at some fried chicken sandwiches being munched by spectator Pat Maxwell, an Alexandria girl. Pat offered to split them with Bettye, and the pert Dallas shotmaker accepted.

Scores in this foursome were: Alice Bauer, 38-38-41—117; Marlene Bauer, 42-40-39—121; Peggy Kirk, 41-42-41—124, and Bettye Mims Danoff, 42-41-44—127.

Didrikson Tops in Golf And Repartee

By Dave Heller
Post Reporter

Babe Didrikson Zaharias, Marilyn Smith and Patty Berg gave a brilliant exhibition of golf and repartee yesterday for spectators at the Celebrities.

The Babe shot a 4 below women's par 34 for nine holes, which added to her 5 below women's par 69 Saturday, won her first place in the women's division with a red hot nine below par.

Hundreds of spectators followed the trio to watch the golf and catch the Babe's colorful remarks. They didn't have long to wait. On the 450-yard, par five first hole, the Babe's second shot fell into a 25-foot gulley near the green.

"It's a tough shot, but I love tough shots," the Babe happily assured the crowd. "Watch this."

She pitched the ball almost straight up in the air and on to the green. Then she holed out a 20-foot putt for a birdie four on the next shot. The crowd gave her an ovation.

It was the fourth year that the Babe has played in the Celebrities and the fourth straight she has won. Her amazing links feat was more remarkable because the greens and fairways were drenched when she played.

Teeing off on the second hole, he Babe was visibly disappointed on her shot till a spectator told her it was 50 yards father than Gene Sarazen had done a few minutes earlier.

"Gene Sarazen, he plays pretty well too," grinned the Babe.

Griffs Get Only 6 Hits, Spoil Debut For Kuzava

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

The Nats, who scored eight runs in the ninth ining to lick Detroit two weeks ago, couldn't even produce one yesterday and got themseves shut out, 3-0.

After announcing his engagement before the game, Pitcher Art Houtteman stepped out and divorced himself from a personal two-game losing streak with a six-hit performance to score his sixth victory before 8451 displeased customers.

Personal victim of the Nats' fifth straight loss, and the ninth in their last 11 outings, was Bob Kuzava, the strong-armed lefthander recently acquired from the White Sox.

Making his debut as a Nat, Kuzava and Houtteman hooked up in a spectacular pitching duel for seven innings with the 22-year-old Tigers' righthander enjoying a 1-0 advantage at the end of that span.

In the eighth, the Bengals, who have now won five in a row, put together three of their eight hits off Kuzava for two more runs, which proved to be completely unneeded in view of Houteman's airtight pitching.

The Nats got only two men as far as second base, none after the second inning. Eddie Yost, who rapped Houtteman for three singles, reached that advanced outpost in the first inning and remained there. Sherry Robertson got that far with a double in the second inning, but he didn't stay there long, being picked off by Houtteman two pitches after he had doubled.

The Tigers got the run they needed to win the third when Aaron Robinson singled and scored on Johnny Lipon's triple to left. Eddie Stewart, playing left field in the patched-up Nats' outfield almost got his glove on the ball, but it skipped by him and rolled to the fence.

Doubles by George Kell and Hoot Evers plus Johnny Groth's single added up to the final two runs in the eighth for Detroit.

Kuzava, with a good, live fast ball, was up to his long neck in trouble in the fifth when the Tigers loaded the bases on him with a single and two walks. He pitched out of it spectacularly, however, getting Priddy on a short fly and inducing Kell to roll into a force play.

Trouble beckoned for Kuzava again in the sixth when he walked Wertz and Evers to start in the inning. Once again, however, he came through unscathed as Groth rapped into a double play and Kolloway struck out.

Kuzava was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth and fireman Mickey Harris retired the Tigers in 1-2-3 order in the ninth.

IN SHORT—Sherry Robertson started and ended a Nats' rally in the second inning when he doubled to right only to get himself picked off by Houtteman a moment later.

Since Tuesday, when Manager Red Rolfe decided to use First Baseman Don Kolloway against left-handed pitchers, the Tigers have faced nothing but southpaws. Former Yankee Dick Kryhoski replaces Kolloway when and if a righthander is used against Detroit again.

Billy Wolfe Beats Dennis Bolster, 2 and 1, for Schoolboy Golf Title

Bob Wolfe Wins in Consolation

By Frank Emmet

Billy Wolfe, Devitt Prep golf star, turned back Middle Atlantic champion Dennis Bolster, Gonzaga golf team captain, 2 and 1, to win the Washington Post schoolboy golf tournament yesterday played as part of the Celebrities Tournament at Army Navy Country Club.

Bob Wolfe, cousin of the champ, defeated John Eisinger of Bethesda-Chevy Chase, 3 and 2, in the consolation round.

Playing in extra heavy greens caused by the all night rain, Wolfe and Bolster were 43 to the turn with Billy 2 up. Wolfe took the third, fifth and sixth holes while Bolster could win only the ninth with a birdie.

Both boys were long off the tee and gave the galleries an exhibition of long driving. The youngsters were especially praised by Gene Sarazen and Chick Evans.

Billy Slams 275-Yard Drive

On the 15th Billy hit a drive 275 yards, all carry, the same distance as Ben Hogan's drive on the same hole. Bolster's best play was through the 12th, 13th and 14th holes, where he picked up two holes to even the match.

The climax came on the 16th, where Wolfe approached from 175 yards out to within three feet of the hole and sank his putt for a fine birdie three. Bolster caught trees off the 17th and Bill was in as 1950 champion.

Fourth to Win Twice

In the 17 years of the tournament Wolfe becomes the fourth boy to win twice. Willie Shea of Western won in 1935 and 1936. Alton Willett of Bethesda-Chevy Chase took the cup in 1941 and 1943. Bubby Worsham, representing the same school, held the trophy for 1946 and 1947. Billy Wolfe, in 1948, at the age of 14, playing from Montgomery Hills Junior High School, defeated Richard Foster of Coolidge High to win the championship. Billy will be around for a long time as this is his first year at Devitt Prep.

Medal scores for the foursome:

Billy Wolfe	43, 38—81
Dennis Bolster	43, 38—81
John Eisinger	39, 41—80
Bob Wolfe	38, 41—79

Mitchell Says He'll Stick With Baton

Howard Mitchell, National Symphony Orchestra conductor, after playing 36 holes of golf Saturday and nine more yesterday, revealed his love for music on the final day of the Celebrities Tournament.

Mitchell played 18 holes Saturday in a father-son tournament at Georgetown Prep before he played his 18 in the Celebs.

Mitchell, who seldom plays 36 holes in a year, dragged his weary physique to the eighteenth green and moaned "I'm glad I don't have to earn a living this way. I'd sure rather wave a baton than a driver."

The sun-tanned Mitchell was playing in a foursome with Representative Sidney Yates (D., Ill.), Johnny Fischer and Columnist Bob Considine.

Top man in the foursome was Fischer, former amateur and intercollegiate champion. Big John carded a 35 which, added to Saturday's 70, gave him a 105 total. Yates shot a 36 yesterday, giving him a 112 aggregate. Mitchell's two-day total was 122 after he tacked a 43 on to Saturday's 79. Considine did not turn in a card yesterday after shooting a 101 for the opening 18 holes.—BILL GILBERT.

By Ben Bradlee
Post Reporter

The Mutt and Jeff of the Celebrities were the 6-foot-10½ basketball star, George Mikan, and Congressman C. W. "Runt" Bishop some 20 inches shorter.

Mikan just about bends in half, stands only a few inches from the ball, and unwinds himself in time to powder the undersized basketball. Big George shot a 37.

In the same foursome with these two were playing Pro Jimmy Thomson, the game's longest hitter, and Singer Gordon MacRae, who shot himself a one under par 34.

On the second hole MacRae crooned "When the moon shines over you tonight . . . I'm going to get a birdie." Next thing the gallery knew he had dropped a 50-yard nine iron for his birdie two.

Autograph hounds divided their time between Mikan and MacRae, until lovely Mrs. MacRae appeared at the third hole. From that point on, the male bobby soxers flocked for her John Hancock.

On the sixth hole, Mrs. MacRae pulled off her sandals and swatted the ball a mere 175 yards herself. She bears watching as a golfer.

Friendly young MacRae would introduce himself and his partners at every tee. Turning to the crowd, he would say, "Let's see now. We all know each other here?" And then make with the introductions.

Congressman Bishop, urged by his vociferous son, was the silent member of the foursome, but he saw more of the fairway than Jimmy Thomson. Jimmy's booming drives made the crowd shake their heads dejectedly, but the amateurs took him to their hearts when he started spraying those long ones around the fairway. He ended up with a 35. Congressman Bishop shot a fine 40.

Danny's a Driver

Funnyman Kaye Takes Time To Display Some Good Golf

DANNY KAYE panics the folks—no doubt about it.

After a mock romance with Babe Didrikson Zaharias for the benefit of camera and newsreel men yesterday at the National Celebrities Tournament, Danny did a hilarious takeoff of "Happy" Chandler's exaggerated crouch golf stance, hit a disintegrating ball that disappeared into a hundred pieces after traveling 5 feet, and then got down to some serious golf.

Playing in a foursome with Chandler, Gene Sarazen, the old links master, and Gen. Anthony McAuliffe, Danny impressed the galleries with his fine brand of golf.

One of the most impressed was Gene Sarazen, who pronounced Danny's drives "magnificent," and was himself outdriven several times by Danny's 300-yarders.

Unfortunately for Danny's chances of winning the Celebrities' division, the greens were mushy after the all-night rain and Keye missed no less than eight putts of 6 feet or less. He carded a 43 for the nine holes.

Kaye convulsed the gallery by pretending to break down and cry after missing two putts on the par four 412-yard fourth hole after reaching the green in two.

"Happy" Chandler, who assured one and all with his famous smile that he had been playing golf for 30 years "without improving," nevertheless got hot with his putter and carded a 41.

General McAuliffe finished with a 45 for the round, making his tournament total 140. Sarazen carded a methodical one-over-par 37 for the nine holes to make his tournament total a three-over-par 109 for the 27 holes.

Brannan Plays Just for Fun

By Alfred E. Lewis
Post Reporter

You don't have to be a good golfer or shoot 18 holes every day for practice to enter a tournament and enjoy yourself, as Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan can testify to.

The Secretary of Agriculture was playing in a foursome with Senator Harry B. Cain, former member of the Senate District Committee, George Fazio pro at Woodmont Country Club, Del Webb coowner of the New York Yankees.

Webb, who won the Tired Businessman's Championship with an 82 yesterday.

At least two of the pros were using the tournament to practice up for the National Open this Thursday. George Fazio and Lew Worsham made good use of their time.

Playing with Worsham were Admiral John J. Hall, Representative Earl Wilson and Don Otten of the Washington Caps.

Both the members of the Fazio quartet and the Worsham group took advantage of their company to get some free lessons and a few pointers on the game.

After several of these pointers Admiral Hall shot a birdie 3 on the No. 7 hole by sinking a 30 foot putt.

Suitland Defeats Prince Frederick, 25-1

Bob Hampton racked up a homer, triple, double and two singles to lead Suitland to a 25-1 victory over Prince Frederick in an American Legion Junior baseball game yesterday. Winning Pitcher Tom Reese allowed five hits and fanned 10 to raise his strikeout total in two games to 28.

Riggs Defends Pro Tennis Title; Kramer Big Threat

Cleveland, June 4 (AP). — With $11,000 in prizes beckoning, 28 of the world's top netters start swinging tomorrow in the national professional tennis tournament.

Bobby Riggs, the 32-year-old veteran, is the defending champion, but the experts predict he will have a tough time getting by lanky Jack Kramer, the 1948 winner.

Pittsburgh Sends Bob Chesnes Down

Pittsburgh, June 4 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates today optioned Pitcher Bob Chesnes to New Orleans of the Southern Association. In his place the Bucs called up Rookie Vernon Law from the Pelicans.

Chesnes recently complained to Manager Bill Meyer of arm soreness. In his latest mound appearance, against Boston last Thursday, the big right-hander lasted only a third of an inning in relief.

She Comes in With 115

Caddy Calls Pat O'Sullivan 'The Female Jimmy Thomson'

There was a little colleen named Pat O'Sullivan, who takes her golf pretty seriously, out at the Celebrities tournament at Army Navy Country Club yesterday.

She was in a threesome of equally serious golfers, the other two being Pat Harrington of Steubenville, Ohio, Western Pennsylvania champ, and Pauline Betz Addie, four-time American amateur tennis champion and Wimbledon titleholder.

Miss O'Sullivan finished second in her division, with a 27-hole total of 115, 12 strokes behind the winner, Babe Didrikson Zaharias.

She is Connecticut State champ, North-South champ, was runner-up in the Eastern Championship, and is from Orange, Conn.

She can hit the ball a country mile. So far in fact that her caddy told her after they had gone around far enough for him to be convinced that she does it consistently, "Ma'am, you is de female Jimmy Thomson."

Pat picked up a real fan right from the first tee. Little Mary Ann Nichols, one-armed champ Jimmy Nichols' daughter.

Mary Ann was ohing and ahing at Pat's heels the whole time. Watching her ball, and keeping her score.

But getting back to Pat O'Sullivan, there have been two occasions in her career when she was mistaken for Grace Lenczyk.

At the eastern tournament recently Pat had forgotten to register and consequently had no contestant's badge. So she simply drove up to the gate and said, "I'm Grace Lenczyk." They let her in.

The other time, she was playing in a tournament and a little girl came up to her and said, "Miss Lenczyk, may I have your autograph?"

"Just a minute," said Pat. Then she ran over to the real Miss Lenczyk and asked her how she spelled her name. Came back and gave the girl a deeply cherished autograph.

Thackara Wins D. C. Tennis Title

Jim Thackara won the City of Washington men's singles title yesterday with a straight set victory over Don Leavens, 6—3, 6—1, 6—3, at Edgemoor Tennis Club.

Rain, which hampered the tournament the past week, caused postponement of the women's singles final. Top-seeded Mrs. Ann Gray will meet second-seeded, Mrs. Willie Herbert today at 6 p. m. at Edgemoor.

Takoma Girls Win 3 in One Day

Lancaster, Pa., June 4 (Spl.).—The Takoma Decorators girls' softball team won three games today.

They travelled to nearby Columbia, Pa., in the morning to beat the Athletics, 3-1, and returned to Lancaster for a twinight doubleheader which swept from the Eagles, 5-1, and 11-0.

Gen. Ruffner Sinks 35-Ft. Putt—Has 40

By Bill Gilbert

Maj. Gen. Clark L. Ruffner, who leaves next month for duty in Japan, bowed out in style in the closing day of the National Celebrities golf tournament yesterday at Army Navy Country Club.

Ruffner, playing in a foursome along with Ham Fisher, Senator George Malone (R., Nev.) and host professional Allan Burton, registered a satisfying 40 for the day's activities, which were curtailed to nine holes due to heavy Saturday night rains that made some of the holes unplayable.

Ruffner's Sunday 40, coupled with his Saturday 87, gave him a 127 total. Fisher, cartoonist originator of Joe Palooka, carded a 43 yesterday after turning in no card Saturday.

Randy Waller's Idea Nets 16 Golf Balls

Thirteen-year-old Randy Waller, established ball boy at all the major tennis tournaments around town, made his usual explosive presence at the celebrities tournament yesterday.

"I've collected 16 golf balls. Souvenirs."

"Sure, it's easy," said Randy, "all you have to do is walk up wtih your hands out and say, 'Hey, mister, how about giving me your golf ball.' I know a girl who got 26 of 'em that way."

Malone had a 39 yesterday, for a 129 aggregate, after a first-day 90. Burton, in second place after Saturday's play with a 67, had a 38 for a 105.

Here's That Putt

Ruffner's best shot of the day came while he was playing the sixth hole. The general sank a 35-foot putt that was straight and true all the way.

After his 35-footer, the general commented that "anytime I get a 35-footer, I'm ahead of myself and the law of averages."

Senator Malone, playing as if reelection depended on it, gave the gallery something to cheer about on the sixth by sending a 150-yard shot to within 1 foot of the pin.

Looked Like Humphrey

Fisher, using more power than his Humphrey Pennyworth is while trying to swim the English Channel, went out on the proverbial limb before his drive off the third tee.

Said Fisher: "Well, this looks like a pretty long hole, so I guess I'll have to get my arms into it."

After Ham sent his drive a country mile, Ruffner turned to the smiling Fisher and said, "Ham, that's better than Joe Palooka could ever do."

Fisher, never one to turn down a chance to please the gallery, again went out on the limb on the sixth hole—but he came down with a resounding thud. The thud was the sound of his ball hitting Shirley Highway after it had sailed out of bounds over a 15-foot wire fence.

Tosses Away Glasses

Fisher, before taking his shot, remarked that "on this hole, I'll have to get my body into it."

He threw away his glasses, and when he proceeded to slice the ball over the fence, a spectator was propmted to remark, "That's a home run in any man's league, Ham."

Ruffner, signing autographs by the dozen, as was everybody else, seemed to be slightly red faced when, after signing the book of one of golf's younger set, the kid asked who he was.

Ruffner got out of it nicely, however, quipping, "I don't blame you for not being able to read it, son. I only wish my creditors couldn't, either."

Talbert, Trabert Wiin Doubles Title

Paris, June 4 (AP).—The American doubles team of Billy Talbert of New York and Tony Trabert of Cincinnati won the men's doubles title today in the French International tennis tournament.

The defeated Jaroslav Drobny of Egypt and Eric Sturgess of South Africa, 6-2, 1-6 10-8, 6-2.

This Morning . . .

Harry Gilmer, skied his first drive 45 yards off the tee. At which Bob Considine commented, "He's got a better punting average than that."

IF PAULINE BETZ ADDIE wasn't the best of the girl golfers in the tournament, she was the most decorative, in sweater and skirt.

CHALLENGED by Wismer to come out of his role as honorary scorer of the tournament, Vincent X. Flaherty, no dare taker, he consented to hit one shot. He lashed a 250-yard drive down the middle, one of the finer shots of the tournament, and announced "I'm taking up this game."

THE SUPREME TRIBUTE was paid to Bettye Mims Danoff, by Peggy Kirk when the petite Texan was addressing her first tee shot. Asked by Wismer for her opinion of Mrs. Danoff as a golfer, Peggy exclaimed with fervor, "If I was that pretty, I wouldn't play golf."

Danny Kaye and Bob Hope Run Dead Heat For Laughs on First Tee; Didrikson Helps

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

THE CELEBS crowd, anxiously awaiting the appearance of Bob Hope and Danny Kaye, was startled by a cry of "Let me out of here!" The voice was that of Kaye who was behind the iron bars of the window of the golf shop just off the first tee . . . "How long are you in for?" asked asked a fan. "Six months," replied Danny. "How'd you get in?" yelled a customer. "I knew a Congressman," moaned Kaye . . . from that point until he teed off, Kaye took over in masterful style. At one stage he locked Babe Didrikson in a hug, and much to Danny's apparent joy, the cameramen gathered around and yelled, "Hold it." Danny held on for dear life, finally relinquishing his grip and turning to say, "Any other ladies like to get their pictures too?" . . . Bob Hope showed up later and took up where Kaye left off earning at least a dead heat . . . after Marilyn Smith had hooked two balls into trees, she tried another shot at the request of Harry (M. C.) Wismer. When she was taking her stance, Hope began to sing, "I'm not so good with the irons, but, oh those woods," following with "If you hit another one in the same place, Honey, I'll be going along with you." . . . When Supreme Court Justice Reed dubbed his first tee shot (his second was a beaut), some wag yelled, "There ain't no justice." . . . With gals around like the Bauer sisters, Bettye Mims Danoff and Pauline Betz Addie some guy was over in the corner telling Jim Thorpe to keep his eye on the ball. . . General Anthony C. McAuliffe hit a fine drive, and for once, somebody referred to it as "duck soup" instead of "the nuts." . . . Buddy (Movies) Rogers addressed his ball and Wismer referred to him as a great lover. The not-too-young-any-more Buddy actually blushed, but, like the other Hollywood fellows, he slammed one for a fare-thee-well. . .

DANNY KAYE
'But I'm a Celebrity . . .'

THE BAUER GIRLS gave their usual exhibition of a couple of tangled fishing lines as they whacked into the ball. They didn't hook and they didn't slice but they took a big hunk of the first tee gallery with them —a compliment considering the big names still coming up . . . Bob (30 Seconds Over Tokyo) Considine is taking his golf seriously. Hit a whale of a drive and probably could be a links star if he tried. Gave up tennis when he was District Champion rather than be tempted to become a tennis bum . . . Ham (Joe Palooka) Fisher was introduced by Hope as "pro at the Atlas Club." However, Bob took more pokes at himself than others. For instance, he walked to the tee and announced, "Here comes the pro for the Campfire Girls." . . . Jimmy (Long Drives) Thomson screamed a shot off the tee that must have gone 300 yeards wet course and all. When Wismer asked the stock question for those who were not as fortunate, "Would you care to drive another ball?" Thomson gave out with another sizzler . . . perhaps the most quiet and least active fellow around was Howard (Orchestra Conductor) Mitchell. However, he put everything he had into his drive and it was a symphony of perfection . . . For Hope's best crack of the day about the definiof a juvenile delinquent in Washington, see Friend Povich's column, if you haven't already read it . . . Air Force Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg's first tee shot was sky high and wisecracks were too numerous to mention . . . Hope, about to drive off, shouted to those lining the fairway less than 100 yards away, "Back fools," and then zinged one that must have carried to Clarendon . . . come to think of it, not a comedian hit a bad drive in the two days—when serious, that is.

DAN (YANKEE) TOPPING didn't top his drive . . . Representative George Smathers zoomed his tee shot and somebody remarked, "That's our boy, right down the middle, the good, old American way" . . . when Wismer introduced Joe Hiestand as the trapshooting champion, a movieman must have thought Wismer said "crap shooting champion" because he moaned, "Too bad that he didn't get around before they closed Jimmy's".

Wismer referred to Freddie (Columbia Pro) McLeod as the National Open winner of 1908 but little Freddie wiped off the grins with a pair of master drives, refusing to be his age

Harry Parr's Slightly Over

By Oscar Elder

Although some of the others posted better scores yesterday, none of the brilliant Celebrity field had more fun than the foursome comprised of Harry Parr, 3d, Freddie McLeod, Chick Evans and Chris Chenery.

Chenery, Virginia-born public utilities magnate and owner of Preakness winner Hill Prince, expressed the sentiments of his partners in saying that they "were glad of the opportunity to get together once a year with so many pleasant people, and at the same time benefit such a grand cause as The Post program to combat juvenile delinquency.

Although it took him three shots to get off the No. 1 tee, Parr, who won the Celebrities Division of The Post's first tournament in 1947, carded a 38 to top his group. Added to his 41—42—83 rounds of Saturday, this gave him a 121 for the two-day event.

McLeod and Evans, two of golfdom's most beloved figures, posted 39 and 41 respectively, and Chenery had a 44 yesterday.

With Yanks on Road

Topping Golfs In Stadium

Playing in the foursome with Jimmy Nichols, Jock McLean and Leslie Arends at the Celebrities tournament yesterday was Dan Topping, coowner of the New York Yankees.

As a result of the convivial effect of the tournament on its participants, vital secrets heretofore undisclosed were revealed by Mr. Topping and will herewith be made known to the public.

Yankee Stadium, home of some of the world's greatest baseball players, has been used, and will continue to be used, as a practice golf course.

On the eighth tee of yesterday's nine-hole climax of the two-day tournament, Jimmy Nichols propositioned Dan Topping.

"Next time the Yanks are on the road, let's you and me go out and knock golf balls from home plate in Yankee Stadium right out of the park."

"Sure, come on out," replied Topping. "We do it all the time. Last year we even had a green built out in centerfield and about 10 of us would go out and practice.

"Then we also had a nail keg out there and we would see who could chip in it."

All that goes on in Yankee Stadium.—Jules Loh.

Gen. Quesada Gets in Act

Dollar Bet Causes Smathers, Pace to Go Nine Extra Holes

By Jules Loh

Secretary of the Army Frank Pace wanted no alibis. Representative George Smathers wanted to extend his chance to win a dollar.

So they played nine more holes, making the match a full 18, in the Celebrities Tournament yesterday.

For three of the four years the Celebs has been held, Pace and Smathers have been in the same foursome, going head and head for a buck. And every year Mr. Pace has been a dollar richer at Mr. Smathers' expense.

Gen. E. R. (Pete) Quesada, who explodes into the ball like an H-bomb, which is no coincidence since that is the Government project he currently heads, got into the money act late in the game.

They were on the sixth tee of the scheduled nine-hole match, when General Pete proposed the following:

"Tell you what I'll do," he said to Smathers and Pace, "from here on in I'll play you both for a buck."

"You care little about your money, Pete," countered Pace, who knows all about these fiscal matters, having spent a couple of years as budget director before being appointed Army head.

Now Smathers, one down at this point, is looking for a sucker.

"Give you two to one for a buck you're not on in two," he said to Pace. The hole was a 515-yard par 5 thing, so Pace comes back sarcastically, "Got any more bets, say on a hole-in-one for instance?"

"Ohhhh," cried a wee voice from the gallery, "Mr. Pace said he's gonna get a hole-in-one."

Then Pace stepped up and belted a ball that was last seen rising.

On the eighth tee, the official scorer asks Pace how the match stands.

"I've got Georgie two down now, but we're going to play nine more after this. This tournament is a personal affair between Georgie and me you know.

"But General Pete," Mr. Pace drawled, "He got into the betting late in the game, and now he's got me one down and Georgie two down, the snake."

So Mr. Smathers and Mr. Pace played nine more. But how it finally came out is, like Mr. Pace said, a personal thing between Georgie and him.

Cards Win, 6-2, Tie for Lead; Dodgers Beaten

St. Louis, June 4 (AP). — Max Lanier pitched and batted the St. Louis Cardinals into a first-place tie with the Brooklyn Dodgers as the Redbirds downed the Philadelphia Phils 6 to 2 today.

The Dodgers were defeated by the Chicago Cubs 13-8 at Chicago.

Lanier tripled home three runs in the sixth ining to break a 2-2 tie after Russ Meyer had replaced Kenny Heintzelman on the mound for the Phils. Tommy Glaviano then doubled to score Lanier with the sixth of the St. Louis runs.

Max gave up eight hits, including Del Ennis' homer in the sixth which accounted for the Phillie runs. Eddie Waitkus scored ahead of Ennis.

Bob Lemon Knocked Out Of Box in 5th

New York, June 4 (AP).—Lefty Eddie Lopat became the first pitcher in the American League to win seven games as he pitched the pace-setting New York Yankees to a 7-0 triumph over the Cleveland Indians today.

Jerry Coleman tagged Loser Bob Lemon for a homer in the second frame and Joe Collins duplicated the feat in the third. Lemon was knocked out in the fifth when the Yanks bunched three singles and a pass for three more runs.

Ray Robinson, Villemain Box

Philadelphia, June 4 (AP).—Ray Robinson, lanky ruler of the welterweights, and stocky Robert Villemain from France meet here Monday night in the Municipal Stadium for the Pennsylvania version of the middleweight boxing championship.

The 15-round bout under the promotion of Phil Glassman has been sanctioned by the Pennsylvania State athletic commission as a championship affair.

The commission ruled that Jake Lamotta had not defended the 160-pound crown within the time limit of six months and, in meeting Rocky Graziano later this month in New York, he is not taking on the logical contender.

Robinson is rated a 1 to 4 choice to conquer the busy little Frenchman.

They Don't Play Golf For a Living

BUT THEY HAVE FUN—All the golf or the golfing form displayed at the Celebrities Tournament yesterday wasn't like Ben Hogan's. Here, for instance, are three gentlemen who seem intent on only one thing—hitting the ball, which they did, even though not expertly. On the left is Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark, who has just belted a ball—yards down the fairway. In the center, crouched like Lou Boudreau batting a baseball, is Baseball Commissioner Happy Chandler rolling in a putt. On the right, Supreme Court Justice Stanley Reed has just completed his swing. Bosox Batter Chicago, 17-7, With 21 Hits Boston, June 4 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox pounded four pitchers for 21 hits today while overwhelming the Chicago White Sox, 17-7. Pinch-hitter Gordon Goldsberry banged the game's only homer, which provided the Chisox with two runs in the sixth inning.

Al Zarilla and Birdie Tebbetts each connected safely four times for the Red Sox, and Ted Williams and Walt Dropo each banged out three hits. Goldsberry's homer was a pinch-hit drive into the right field stand with Nelly Fox on base.

Brothers, Stribling Win Berlin Bouts

Berlin, June 4 (AP).—Elkins Brothers, Washington, D. C. heavyweight, today knocked out Richard Grupe of Hamburg in the fourth round of a scheduled eight-round bout before about 20,000 fans in Waldbuehne Arena.

Ken Stribling, middleweight also from Washington, D. C., won an eight-round decision over Hans Stretz of Erlangen, German midlewegiht champion.

Braves Win Second, 7 to 6, After Losing to Reds, 3-0

Cincinnati, June 4 (AP).—The Boston Braves barreled into the lead with a five-run uprising in a double-header finale today, then fought off two Cincinnati Reds' rallies to gain a 7-6 win and a split in the twin bill. The Reds won the opener, 3-0.

Big Business Overrules High Court Justices: Railroader Young Shows Clark and Reed How

Robert Young, chairman of the Board of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad, showed no clemency to two Associate Justices of the Supreme Court and the boss of the General Foods Corp.

He fired a 39 for yesterday's nine holes, 21 strokes less than Justices Tom Clark and Stanley Reed had in the Celebrities' tournament. He was at least 22 better than Clarence Francis, who rounded out the foursome.

Francis took 48 strokes for the first eight holes, and gave up trying on No. 18 after failing to cup the ball in 13 tries.

Young's 39, tacked onto his 77 of Saturday, gave him 116 for the tournament and a tie with Bob Hope and Dan Topping for the Celebrities division championship.

It's no wonder Young shoots so well. He's been playing for 15 years and gets lessons from Sammy Snead, pro of the Greenbrier Hotel course in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., which Young owns.

For Justice Reed, it was his first visit to a golf course since last September. The crowd held its breath as he wound up for a terrific cut on the first tee, but all he did was lay abunt down.

Justice Clark stepped up to give Reed some coaching and Reed responded with a liner down the left field line.

Argyle Lady Scores Ace

Mrs. Ruth Mothershead had a big day at Argyle Golf Club yesterday.

She made a hole in one and also placed third in the Flag Tournament. Her tee shot on No. 6, a 130-yarder, plunked into the cup with Mrs. L. Moffett, Mrs. Floy DeVolt and Hal DeVolt watching. She used a six iron.

Mrs. Carolyn Foley won the Flag Tournament, 100 yards from the nineteenth green. In the mixed scotch foursome, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Fitch won first prize with 90—21—69. Second low net went to Mrs. L. Moffett and J. A. McWilliams, 95—24—71.

INDIAN SPRING: Eleven people won the blind bogey tournament yesterday with 79s. They were Denny Hevener, Mrs. K. S. Giles, John Feeney, Terry Cor? coran, Al Hroowitz, J. H. Mullendore.

Also, C. B. Hartman, Mrs. H. L. Lacey, Hy Posner, Max Wool and Bob Miller.

BETHESDA: George Winkler set a course record for amateurs with a 67 in yesterday's Swatfest. Winners in the Swatfest—best ball of afoursome with full handicap—were L. Hagerla, H. Wittenmeyer, Ben Whiting and Charlie Batchelder. The quartet collaborated on a 15-under-par 55.

MANOR: Dr. L. T. Callahan's 79-11—68 won the 18-Hole Handicap Medal Play yesterday. Ed Kekenes was second with 83-14—69; George Martin third with 78-9—69.

PRINCE GEORGES: The annual Jerry Burch Mixed Scotch Foursome was won yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Balestri, 83-19—64. Mrs. Ora Emge and Mike Jankowski took low gross with 80. A field of 106—the largest in the event's history—entered.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Balestri, 83—19—64; Mrs. Ruth Hoffsommer and Don Porter, 92—25—67; Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Ross, 83—15—68; Mrs. Leonard Lavine and Douglas Mattison, 86—18—68; Mrs. Norman Brown and Edzie Johnson, 82—14—68; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Craegar, 98—29—69.

Jockey Rozelle Dies of Injuries In Delaware Spill

Wilmington, Del., June 4 (U.P.).—Jockey Richard (Dick) Rozelle died at Delaware Hosital tonight of injuries suffered in a fall at Delaware Park track Friday.

Rozelle, 22, suffered a compressed frontal fracture of the skull when his mount, Raise You, fell during the stretch drive in the running of the Kirkwood purse. He was thrown under the horse.

After passing a poor night, but apparently picking up in the morning, Rozelle began to fade later in the day and died at 7:50 p. m. (EDT) without ever having regained consciousness since the spill.

Tobin Corrects Nat Holman's Slice With One Easy Lesson

Maurice Tobin, Secretary of Labor, yesterday likened himself to Joe McCarthy, the manager of the Red Sox.

A 100-plus golfer, Tobin took took time out from his own game to show C. C. N. Y. basketball coach Nat Holman, how to curb his slice to the right, and sure enough, Holman, a novice, stopped slicing.

"Lots of men who aren't good athletes can sometimes correct faults in other people's games," explained Tobin. "Take McCarthy, the Red Sox manager. He was never a big league player, but he certainly turned out to be a big league manager."

Tobin tacked a nine hole 55 onto his first day's round of 102 for a total of 157. Holman, with Tobin's coaching, had 50 yesterday and a 152 total. Joe Lally, the golfing professor from Hollywood Beach, Fla., had 39 yesterday for a 115, one stroke better than Harold (Jug McSpaden of New York.

Jug's pretty missus went along to root. She doesn't play much golf, she says, because Jug runs out of patience with her when he gives her a lesson. "I guess he's like any husband giving his wife an automobile driving lesson," she said.

"She has excellent form. Only trouble is she never hits the ball," said Jug.

Bill Bennings . . .

Dear Folks: At Delaware

Friend Everett Clay who beats the publicity drums for Hialeah writes that Sam McCormick, one of the officials, has just returned from a tour of South American tracks. Crowds run between 50,000 and 60,000 at the Buenos Aires tracks and about 10,000 daily elsewhere. The sport is confined to eight-race programs on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, the year around rather than on a seasonal basis. Pari-mutuel betting is used but no tracks have the American tote and payoffs, as a consequence, are slower than stateside. "They pay far less attention to the financial details—the mutuel play, the profit and dividends, etc." said McCormick. The bulk of the races are 6 furlongs to a mile but the South Americans also have many distance affairs, at longer routes than seen in the North. Tracks do not furnish stables, the barns being owned by the individual trainers. With most horses racing only at one track, this is possible.—Bill.

Palmer 3d At 277, 1 Up On Von Nida

Fort Wayne, Ind., June 4 (AP). Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago won the $15,000 Fort Wayne Open today with a 72-hole total of 271, three strokes better than Ed (Porky) Oliver of Kenmore, Wash.

Mangrum, who had posted three straight 67's in the previous days' rounds, could have nudged over par 71 and still coasted home for the $2600 first-place money.

Oliver, who closed in yesterday with a torrid 65, two over the Orchard Ridge Country Club course record, cooled off to a 72 in the final round and wound up with 274.

Johny Palmer, Badin, N. C., moved in to finish third on the basis of a 68 today. His 277-stroke total was just one better than Norman Von Nida, from Sydney, Australia, who fired the day's best round—a 67.

Cary Middlecoff, the Memphis dentist who set the pace on the tourney's opening day, wound up in a three-way tie for fifth place with Chick Harbert, Northville, Mich., and Jim Ferrier, San Francisco veteran. All completed their last tour over the 6400-yard test with 279 totals.

Bogart Again Wins Mid-Atlantic Crown

Hot Springs, Va., June 4 (AP).—Ralph Bogart of Washington's Chevy Chase Club came up with successive birdies on the last three holes here today to defeat Wynsol Spencer of Newport News, Va., 2 up, and successfully defend his Middle Atlantic Men's Amateur golf championship.

It was a gruelling seesaw battle in which Bogart dominated the front nine and was two holes ahead when they moved to the third tee. Spencer was ahead twice on the backside, but he faded fast to Bogart's flurry of birdies.

The big break in the bitter struggle in the hot sunshine on the 6754-yard Cascades course came on the par five 509-yard No. 17. Spencer's drive from the tee smacked a tree in the narrow fairway and left him far behind Bogart's drive.

Spencer's recovery from the woods was a terrific one, but on the next shot, he pumped it into the trap to the left of the green. Spencer's shot from the trap was 12 feet from the pin, and his putt rimmed the cup but wouldn't drop. He took a six, conceding the hole.

Bogart turned the pressure on for keeps on the short 209-yard No. 18. He landed his drive from the tee on the par three hole just 5 feet from the pin. Spencer's drive was 30 feet away. It remained in its divot hole cut deep in the rainsoaked par 71 course and was stymied by Bogart's ball.

Spencer tried in vain to go around Bogart, angling the ball up and down the slope, but it rolled dead 2 feet from the hole.

Bogart had advanced to the finals this morning by eliminating his insurance firm partner, Bobby Brownell, 5 and 4. Spencer whipped Walter Panowski, Baltimore physician, 3 and 2.

In the women's division Sydney Elliott, Virginia State champion who took up golf seriously only two years ago, won the Middle Atlantic women's title. She defeated Mrs. Maurice Glick, Baltimore City crownholder, 2 up.

SECOND FLIGHT
(Men's Finals)

Louis Fuchs, Washington, defeated Tom Shepherd, Charlottesville, Va., 3 and 2.

THIRD FLIGHT
(Men's Finals)

Martin McCarthy, Washington, defeated J. A. Pratt, Washington, 5 and 4.

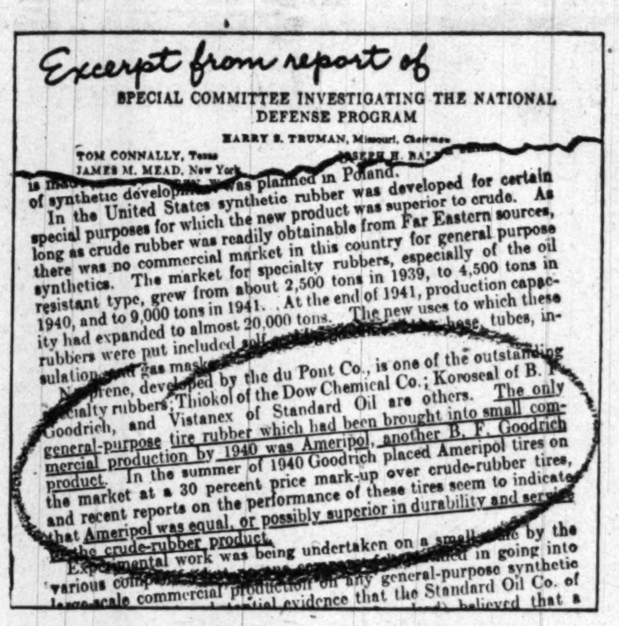
A Warning about our Rubber Supply, from B.F. Goodrich, Pioneer in Rubber Research

1. HOW DID AMERICAN-MADE RUBBER START?

Today is the 10th anniversary of the first tire built with man-made rubber to go on sale in America. On June 5, 1940, newsmen got the first look at a B. F. Goodrich tire in which BFG man-made Ameripol replaced 50% of the crude rubber normally used. With it B. F. Goodrich demonstrated—18 months before Pearl Harbor—that America could, in an emergency, be independent of foreign rubber.



Excerpt from report of

SPECIAL COMMITTEE INVESTIGATING THE NATIONAL DEFENSE PROGRAM
HARRY S. TRUMAN, Missouri, Chairman
TOM CONNALLY, Texas
JAMES M. MEAD, New York
JOSEPH H. BA[illegible]

is [illegible] was planned in Poland. of synthetic develop[illegible]

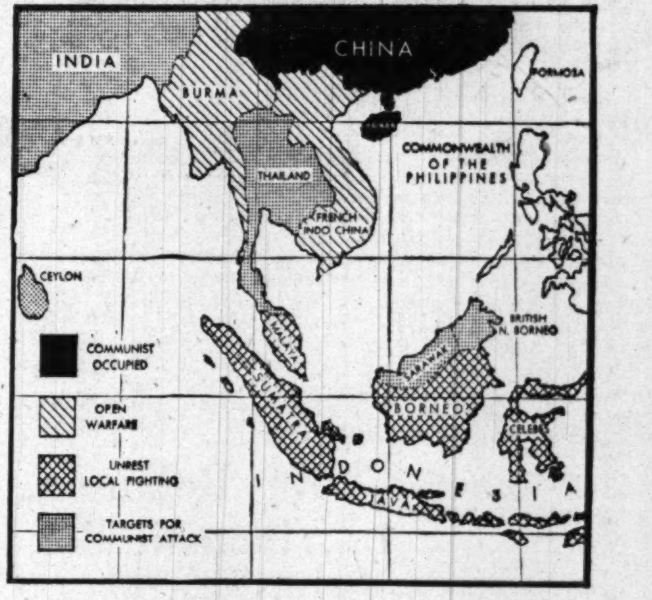
In the United States synthetic rubber was developed for certain special purposes for which the new product was superior to crude. As long as crude rubber was readily obtainable from Far Eastern sources, there was no commercial market in this country for general purpose synthetics. The market for specialty rubbers, especially of the oil resistant type, grew from about 2,500 tons in 1939, to 4,500 tons in 1940, and to 9,000 tons in 1941. At the end of 1941, production capacity had expanded to almost 20,000 tons. The new uses to which these rubbers were put included self[illegible] hose, tubes, insulation and gas masks.

Neoprene, developed by the du Pont Co., is one of the outstanding specialty rubbers; Thiokol of the Dow Chemical Co.; Koroseal of B. F. Goodrich, and Vistanex of Standard Oil are others. The only general-purpose tire rubber which had been brought into small commercial production by 1940 was Ameripol, another B. F. Goodrich product. In the summer of 1940 Goodrich placed Ameripol tires on the market at a 30 percent price mark-up over crude-rubber tires, and recent reports on the performance of these tires seem to indicate that Ameripol was equal, or possibly superior in durability and service to the crude-rubber product.

Experimental work was being undertaken on a small scale by the various companies [illegible] in going into large-scale commercial production on any general-purpose synthetic [illegible] evidence that the Standard Oil Co. of [illegible] believed that a

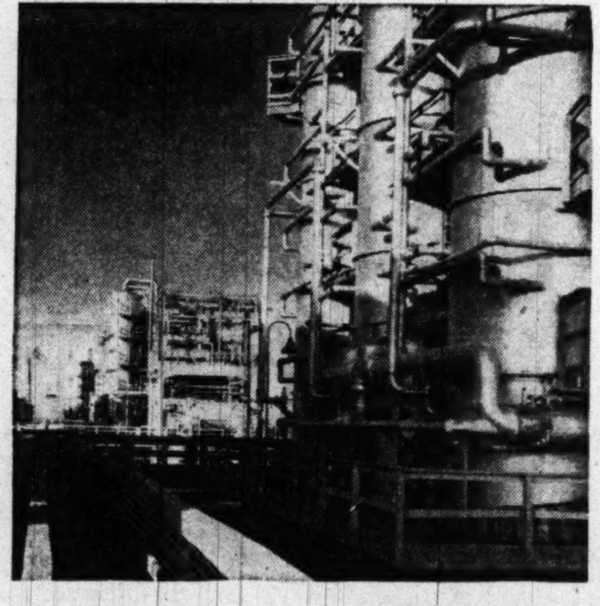
2. WAS IT IMPORTANT IN WORLD WAR II?

In 1942, the Truman Committee issued the above report on B. F. Goodrich's Ameripol. When our crude rubber lifelines to the Far East were cut after Pearl Harbor, this early B. F. Goodrich know-how was ready to help America fill the gap with a large-scale program for producing man-made rubber, which did more to win the war than the atom bomb. Over 57% of the new rubber used during the war was man-made, and 87% of our consumption in 1945 was American-made rubber.



3. HOW SAFE IS OUR RUBBER SUPPLY TODAY?

In post war America, man-made rubber and crude rubber have teamed up to insure the huge supplies of rubber products needed for the prosperity of our industries and our people. But an active war between Freedom and Communism is now centered in the Far East, where 96% of our crude rubber is grown. Communist aggression could cut off these sources without firing a shot—a threat more serious, as most Americans viewed it then, than the Jap menace of 1940.



4. WHAT IF FAR EAST RUBBER WAS CUT OFF?

America used 574,522 tons of crude rubber and 414,381 tons of man-made rubber in 1949. If Far East rubber sources dwindle away, America will have to make and use far more man-made rubber to preserve our industries, our vital transportation system, even our Freedom. Though some of our man-made rubber plants, like that above, are operating now, we have idle plants, too: what we lack is information on how soon these could be ready to meet an emergency.

B. F. Goodrich has Presented to Members of Congress and to Interested Government Officials

A 3-POINT PROGRAM —to guarantee America's national security and maintain, or increase, our standard of living

We must determine how much time will be required to get inactive plants for making American-made rubber in operation. The best time to find out is now, before we are in an emergency.

1 Plants now turning out general-purpose American-made rubber should be operated at maximum capacity to make certain there is sufficient rubber for current needs and to build up a large enough stockpile to fill the gap in case supplies from abroad are cut off.

2 Standby facilities for producing American-made rubber should be re-examined to make certain that additional supplies can be made available in a minimum of time.

3 At least one standby plant should be reactivated now to find out by actual experience how long it would take such a plant to reach capacity output under emergency conditions.

WHAT ABOUT COST? Because the plants needed to turn out man-made rubber are already bought and paid for, this program can be put in effect immediately, without requiring any large appropriations.

Budgets of Agencies Face Rough Treatment In Senate Committee

The word seeping out of the Senate Appropriations Committee isn't encouraging to Federal agencies and their employes.

In brief, officials have been warned on the q. t. that the committee will insist on cutting the President's budget as much or more than the House.

The job-cutting Taber-Thomas and Jensen riders are certain to be modified or rejected altogether by the Senate committee which is leaning toward specific budget cuts—reductions that may be close to a billion dollars under the President's estimates.

In fact, it can be revealed that officials of many agencies have been told bluntly that cuts will be made and they have been invited to tell the committee where they could be absorbed with the least damage to their operations. Several agencies have redrafted their budgets, based on a reduction of 10 percent or more.

Meantime, the committee staff is still searching for a workable substitute to the Taber-Thomas and Jensen House-approved riders. The staff, aided by budget and personel experts, has been working without success for nearly three weeks on an overall job-and-budget-cutting rider that would satisfy all factions.

That's why various subcommittees have decided to go ahead and mark up various sections of the general budget, making their own specific cuts. Insiders doubt if any suitable rider can be drafted unless it's one to give the Budget Bureau the authority to withhold funds appropriated to Government agencies. Such a rider was defeated in the House.

COMMERCE: Col. Newman Smith has been appointed director of its new Office of Security Control. A former Army intelligence officer, Smith will make sure that Commerce's secrets are properly guarded. He won't handle employe loyalty cases.

BONDS: The House Expenditures Committee is slated to meet this week on the Karsten bill to relieve the Government of a mass of red tape, and an estimated 1,200,000 Federal workers from paying premiums on surety bonds.

Under the bill, the Government would pay the bond premiums. It would take out an estimated 20,000 blanket bonds to cover all bonded workers instead of the present practice of requiring each individual employe to get a bond. The Government would be able to buy the bonds at a much lower rate.

NOTES: Herbert Appleton, a Public Housing statistician, has written a helpful 25-cent book: "What's That Tree?" In it he tells how to identify 150 different trees . . . George W. Ackerman, chief photographer for Agriculture's Extension Service, has retired after 32 years of service . . . At Food & Drug, Dr. Ralph Grafton Smith has been appointed chief of the New Drug Section in the Medical Division.

UNIONS: The left-wing United Public Workers is reported to be losing members steadily in the Panama Canal Zone. That's good news. CIO's new and right-wing Government workers' union is driving to organize the employes there . . . AFL's National Association of Postal Supervisors is vigorously supporting the economy program of Postmaster General Donaldson. It has called on its members to loyally carry out Donaldson's directives. Also, the union argues that Donaldson had no choice other than to make the cutback after his budget was slashed by both the Budget Bureau and the House.

ARMY: It has the youngest top team in Government, and the youngest of the lot is 38-year-old Frank Pace, the Army Secretary. Pace's three top assistants are all in their early 40's, either 41 or 42.

They are Undersecretary Archibald Alexander, and Assistant Secretaries Karl R. Bendetzen and Earl Johnson.

Johnson took office the other day. He has quite a reputation in industry as a successful reorganizer of down-at-the-heels businesses. It's a good bet he'll get a chance to try out his management talents in the Pentagon.

An Indian War Dance at the Watergate

Queen Enjoys Rule, Regrets Not Dancing

It was a cute but uneasy head that wore the crown last night as her subjects jigged gaily through the International Folk Festival at the Watergate.

With King Henry IV it was insomnia. With Queen Kiwanis I it was envy. She wanted to dance too, but the grandeur of her crown kept her feet on the ground.

"I know I have to be real snooty like a queen but I wanna dance," said dimpled Phyllis Turner, pouting through her reign as the majesty of the Arlington Kiwanis Club benefit festival.

And so she watched, with several hundred others as green-eyed colleens, feathered Indians, apple-cheeked Swedes, Switzers, cowboys, and Mexicans went through their paces.

Her ascension to the throne began last week at a Kiwanis luncheon where Eddie Gallaher, WTOP disc jockey, spun the fateful wheel of fortune.

It was climaxed last night between a group of hillbilly songs and Lithuanian dances when Oren Lewis, first vice president of the Arlington Kiwanis Club set the floral crown on Mrs. Turner's brunette head and primly bussed her.

A kind of United Nations of Indians, united in whooping harmony, led off the show.

There was Chief War Eagle of the Euchee Tribe of Oklahoma who is known to shipmates at the Naval Gun Factory as Jesse James, damage controlman second class.

Also Chief Thunderbolt Lefthand, of the Cro-Blackfeet persuasion, who works for the Senate Interior and Insular Affairs Committee; Princess Pale Flower, a Paiute who does stenography for the Interior Department; Mrs. Bertha Wasaquam Jennings, a princess of the Ottowas and her two little Ottowans.

The show was for the benefit of the Arlington YMCA summer camp fund.

Liquor Trade Curbs to Be Aired Today

The District Commissioners will hold a public hearing today at 10 a. m. in the District Building board room on two proposals of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board to regulate the local liquor industry. Proposed regulations would:

1. Prohibit distributors from giving retailers discounts on any purchases.

2. Forbid advertising by television, radio or newspapers of liquor for retail sale at prices less than those paid the distributor.

The ABC Board recommended adoption of the regulations as a means of "stabilizing" the industry by eliminating cut-throat competition.

It told the Commissioners the wholesalers' practice of giving discounts in proportion to the size of the purchase meant large retail concerns could sell at prices lower than small retailers had to pay. Some small dealers buy more than they can handle to get the larger discount, the board said, and then reportedly dispose of the surplus "through illegal channels."

The board said the advertising ban would outlaw use of "loss leaders"—brands advertised and sold at less than cost to lure trade.

Spokesmen for both retail and wholesale dealers yesterday said they would speak against the proposals.

Milford W. Schwartz, attorney for the Association of Wholesale Liquor Dealers of Washington, said his group felt the proposals would neither benefit the public nor accomplish their stated purpose. He pointed out that Federal law now forbids discriminatory discounts.

The Retail Liquor Dealers Association of Washington is opposed to the suggested regulations "as they are now written," according to Hilliard Schulberg, its executive secretary. He said the association favors, instead, the "principle" of the McMillan bill.

This bill, called by supporters a "fair trade" bill and by opponents a "price fixing" bill, may also come up for discussion today at a 10:30 a. m. executive meeting of the House District Committee. It was approved by its Judiciary subcommittee May [illegible]

Adopted Boy and Invalid Girl Sure Their Dads Are 'Ideal'

"The one thing I like most about my dad is that he adopted me . . . in 1944 when I was eight and one-half. I am 14 now."

After putting first things first, young Tucker Gray, 115 Prince st., Alexandria, Va., proceeded to launch his own personal campaign on paper for the "Ideal Father of 1950."

"I think my daddy would fill the bill . . . because there are so many likeable things about him."

"He knows about everything about the house. He loves to go out on the river on a boat or go up in the mountains, which I love to do more than anything else, too.

"He loves to work in the garden. It's his hobby in the summertime . . . he has done so much in our garden this spring that it is real pretty."

'Files' Antiques

'In the winter time he files our old antiques. When he gets through with them they look like they are new."

The Washington Post is now awaiting the last roundup of noteworthy Dads. Deadline, midnight Friday, June 9, adds up to five more days, 120 hours, 7200 minutes still remaining to address a letter of your own to The Ideal Father Editor, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C.

Pity the judges: Confronted by the area's best crop of family men, it's going to be some job picking the one who is most outstanding. Be assured that the high-falutin words don't count for much, though—sincerity does.

Legibility is no winning point, but it makes it easier on the judges. Below your signature, please mention the name of the school you attend or did attend.

Rosie and Posie

Tom, Posie, Terry and Rosie Brown of Garrett Park, Md., ages 8 4, 7, 1 respectively teamed up on this one:

"Father is the best father in the world because he is always ready to go along with anything we want to do but "espeshely" he always seems to know what we want and he can be serious about our troubles. He is fat and jolly and he has a happy face. Posie calls him her Prince Charming. We all love him—you would if you knew him."

At Children's Rehabilitation Institute in Cockeysville, Md., where Frances E. Butturff is a cerebral palsy patient, she heard about the "ideal Father" contest. Not able to write for herself, Frances, 8, dictated her thoughts to her mother:

"I think my daddy is the best daddy in the whole world, as I have been here at school for over five years and he has never missed a Sunday coming over to see me except once when I had chickenpox. I cannot walk nor play with things by myself so my daddy carries me all around and shows me everything and he will always sit on the ground with me and help me dig in the sand and make mud pies.

"When I am home in Washington (3326 N st. se.) on my vacation, Daddy takes time off from the office to take care of me. Some day I hope to walk and do things by myself, but I don't think it will be any more fun than now when Daddy has to do everything for me."

2 Boys Admit Setting $2500 Fire at Center

Fire caused by two children playing with a cigarette lighter near paint cans yesterday caused approximately $2500 damage to the recreation center at the National Capital Housing settlement at 1710 U st. ne.

Police said two boys, 14 and 15 years old, admitted they set fire to the paint, tried to put out the flames with water, then fled.

The center is used by the Junior Police and Citizens Club, 400 other children in the development, and also as a community hall. Three ping-pong tables, a juke box, a radio and other game equipment were destroyed.

Engine companies 26, 10, 17 and 12 and 15 truck, under direction of Battalion Chief L. B. Wilson used seven hose lines to bring the blaze under control.

Ulysses S. Smith, supervisor of the center, said he fears the recreation hall was burned too badly to be renovated.

Don't worry about the troubles of the world, concentrate rather on "doing the best you can with what you have," one of the world's most successful inventors advised the graduating class of American University last night.

Charles F. Kettering, vice president, General Motors Corp., told the 500 graduates that success lies with those who work. The harder one works, the more luck will come his way, he declared.

Speaking at an outdoor commencement on the campus at Massachusetts and Nebraska aves. nw., Kettering deplored the fact that this, "the greatest country in the world," lives in a "complex of fear and despair."

Plenty In the Ground

He cited worries over possible exhaustion of fuel supplies. A survey showed this unfounded, since 95 percent of all coal, 90 percent of all petroleum and 90 percent of all natural gas are still in the ground, he declared.

As long as the brain is able to devise new methods and the sun continues shining, Americans will go forward, Kettering promised.

During the program honorary degrees were presented to Paul G. Hoffman, head of the Economic Cooperation Administration, doctor of laws; Howard Mitchell, National Symphony conductor, doctor of music; Dr. T. Otto Nall, editor, the Christian Advocate, doctor of letters, and Dr. Ralph D. Smith, superintendent, Washington Western District of the Methodist Church of the Baltimore Conference, doctor of divinity.

In the afternoon, baccalaureate services were held with the Rev. Ralph W. Sockman, pastor of Christ Methodist Church, New York City, as principal speaker.

The Rev. Sockman warned educated men against "leaving the arena of political and social activity to the thoughtless crowd" and thus increasing "the danger from Soviet Communism."

Four other graduation exercises were held in the area yesterday, in addition to eight baccalaureate services.

At Dunbarton College

The Dunbarton College of Holy Cross graduated 34 students. A baccalaureate mass was held with the Very Rev. J. M. Campbell, Ph.D., chaplain of Dunbarton College, as celebrant and the Very Rev. Msgr. Thomas McCarthy, of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, delivering the sermon.

In the evening Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin spoke on "The Catholic Ideal of Education" at commencement exercises. The Most Rev. John M. McNamara, Auxiliary Bishop of Washington, presided.

Secretary Tobin said there "is no place in a Catholic's life for discrimination against people of color or against people of the Jewish faith or against any other victim of unjust disparagement anywhere on the face of the globe."

Fifty-two students were graduated from Georgetown Preparatory School, Garrett Park, Md., at morning services. The Rev. Neil J. Gargan, S. J., president of Gonzaga High School, made the principal address.

The Washington Missionary College graduated 100 students in the Sligo Seventh Day Adventist Church, Flower and Carroll aves., Takoma Park, Md. Dr. Charles E. Weniger, dean of the Adventist Theological Seminary, was the speaker.

Baccalaureate Mass

Catholic University's baccalaureate mass was celebrated by the Rev. John M. Walsh, dean of men, yesterday morning. The Rev. John W. Stafford, head of the department of psychology and psychiatry, preached the sermon.

The Trinity College graduating class attended a baccalaureate mass with the Right Rev. Robert B. Mulcahey of St. Luke's Church, New York, as celebrant. The Right Rev. Edward B. Jordan, vice rector of Catholic University, Preached the sermon. The graduation is today at 11 a. m.

At the University of Maryland Rabbi Morris Lieberman of the Baltimore Hebrew Congregation, delivered the baccalaureate address. His topic was "The Measure of Man."

Dr. Mordecai Johnson, president of Howard Unviersity, warned the Howard graduating class at baccalaureate service that unless human relations take a strong step forward, the students will "be participating in the most devastating and awful war that has ever struck the human race."

Dr. Johnson said America has yielded the initiative in many countries of the world to the Communists who have capitalized on their desire for freedom from the exploitation of European imperialists. And in other areas, as in South Africa, the nation has ignored the inflicting of "virtual slavery" by England, he said.

The Rev. C. Leslie Glenn of St. John's Episcopal Church made the baccalaureate sermon to graduates of the Mount Vernon Junior College and Seminary at the Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church, Nebraska and New Mexico aves. nw.

The Southwestern University baccalaureate was held at the Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and N sts. nw., with the Rev. Clarence W. Crawford, pastor, as principal speaker.

Forty-nine to be graduated from the Chevy Chase Junior College were at the baccalaureate service in the Chevy Chase Methodist Church, 6401 Connecticut ave. The Rev. Robert E. Lee, pastor of St. Luke's Evangelical Lutheran Church, made the address.

Diplomas were awarded 13 graduates of the Priory School by the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States. Solemn high mass was celebrated by the Very Rev. Henry Alban Boultwood, O. S. B., prior.

The Rev. William F. Creighton, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, Bethesda, delivered the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of the Montgomery County Junior College.

Veteran Leaps To Death From Park Bridge

A 55-year-old mental patient at the Perry Point (Md.) Veterans Hospital jumped to his death yesterday morning from the Calvert st. bridge over Rock Creek Park, police said.

The man, Thomas J. Farraher, 55, on a 14-day leave from the hospital, came to Washington Wednesday and checked in at the Royal Hotel, 717 11th st. nw., police said.

He was found lying on the road beneath the bridge shortly after 9 a. m. by Park Police Pvt. Harry Russell. Detectives said he left the hotel at 7 a. m.

Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, deputy District coroner, issued a certificate of suicide. He said death was due to a crushed chest.

Farraher had been a patient at Perry Point since November, 1948, when he was transferred there from Gallinger Hospital. He had served in World War I

According to the coroner's office, he is survived by a sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Dyer, of 7604 Morningside dr. nw

Child-Neglect Charges Filed Against Wife

Mrs. Jesse J. Cobb, 33, who disappeared May 4 from her home near Accokeek, Md., faces charges of deserting her six children, brought by her husband, who is in serious condition at Providence Hospital with self-inflicted wounds.

Mrs. Cobb was arrested Saturday at Piscataway, Md., by Maryland State Trooper Fred Collison of the Waldorf station. Justice of the Peace F. H. Billingsley of Brandywine, Md., held her in bond of $100 for her appearance July 3 in Upper Marlboro Court.

Two weeks after Mrs. Cobb's disappearance, her 52-year-old husband shot himself, leaving a note addressed to her and saying that he was "tired of going on without her." He was taken to Providence Hospital, where his condition is given as "fair."

Mrs. Cobb told police she had quarreled with her husband and had been afraid to return home. She said she went to Alabama to visit friends and did not know until she returned to the home of her mother near Piscataway Saturday that her husband had shot himself.

Coroner's Jury Weighs Traffic Shooting Today

Julius Evans, 34, of 1605 N. Capital st., will face a coroner's jury at 11:30 a. m. today in the fatal shooting Saturday of Madison McKoy, 29-year-old cab driver, of 48 Defrees st. nw., in a traffic argument.

Police said Evans claimed he shot McKoy after the latter threatened him with a knife in a dispute about a truck which blocked traffic near 15th and Q sts. nw.

Pedestrian Seriously Injured as He Steps From Traffic Stand Into Path of Car

Three pedestrians were injured in traffic accidents yesterday, one when he turned around as he crossed the road because he thought he heard someone call his name.

Aaron Beverly, 34, of 733 6th st. se., crossing the 1900 block of Benning rd. ne. at 3:30 a. m., stepped onto a center traffic island. Believing he heard someone calling him, he turned around and stepped off into the path of an automobile driven by Solomon Long, 34, of 3728 Hayes st. ne., according to the police report. Beverly was admitted to Gallinger Hospital in serious condition, with both legs fractured and a shoulder injury.

Miss Janet Rhodes, 18, of 3324 4th st. se., stepped out of an automobile at 8th and D sts. se. to catch a streetcar at 12:30 a. m. She walked into the side of a cab driven by James R. Nelson, 27, of 314 53d st. ne., and suffered head injuries, it was reported. She was admitted to Casualty Hospital.

Edward Ford, 2½, of 1070 3d st. nw., suffered a possible concussion at 9:30 a. m. when he collided with a car driven by Leslie L. Kirvoy, 18, of Trenton, N. J., at 30th and M sts. nw. The child was admitted to Childrens Hospital in an undetermined condition.

Thieves Haul Safe 2 Miles, Net $100 Loot

Safecrackers removed and looted a 600-pound safe of $100 in Upper Marlboro, but in the District, failed to score against a dry ice company safe, even with the aid of two acetylene torches.

The first safe was taken from the Marlboro Lumber Co., Inc., about two blocks from the courthouse. It was found yesterday about noon, 2 miles away, on Route 301. It had been jimmied open.

In the District, yeggmen failed to remove a 250 pound safe from its concrete bed at the Matheison Dry Ice Co., 1625 Eckington pl. ne. Nor could they open it with two blow torches, which they abandoned with a truck found near the establishment. The truck had been stolen Saturday afternoon from John B. Shepherd of 2521 Forest Glen rd., Silver Spring, Md.

Prowlers sometime during Saturday night broke a pane of glass in the foyer to unlock a window at McKinley Tech High School, 2d and T sts. ne., then ransacked the entire first floor, including the principal's office. John L. Clemons, watchman, said it could not be determined until today what had been stolen, if anything.

Youth Robs Busy Busman

Sixty Capital Transit passes, valued at $105, were stolen from Bus Driver Dewey W. Arthur yesterday while he was busy ejecting two youths who refused to pay fares and threatened him with a knife.

Arthur, 28, of 1741 28th st. se., said he escorted off the bus two boys, 13 and 16, who refused to pay fares after getting on at 7th and K sts. nw. When they alighted, the older boy threatened Arthur with a pearl-handled knife, then fled. Arthur held the younger boy for police. He was turned over to juvenile authorities later.

While Arthur was arguing, the two boys, another youngster, about 14, who apparently was not with the others jumped off the bus with the 60 passes.

It's Back to School For 39 Police Today

School bells instead of sirens will sound Monday for 39 veteran policemen.

The men of the law will be refreshed not only as to how to make a criminal case but also how to get a good press.

A highlight of the revived refresher course of the Police Academy, deactivated in 1947, will be talks by newspapermen on how to get along with reporters, if possible.

How Pickpocket Stings

The uniformed students, who range from sixth-grade privates with at least five years experience, to lieutenants, will also get more conventional earfuls about such things as how a pickpocket makes his sting, how a hophead acquires dope and how a cop should and how he shouldn't make an arrest.

They'll hear about such things for four weeks, six days a week, six hours a day with 10 minutes rest between periods.

An expert from the Bureau of Standards will discuss typewriter identification and a businessman will talk about how to identify clothes from laundry marks. An assistant corporation counsel will lecture on enforcing city regulations; an assistant United States Attorney will talk about felony cases and judges of District and Municipal Courts will explain how to make a case stand up at trial, including the tricky questions of search and seizure.

Criminal Technique

The coroner and his two deputies will discuss medical crime detection; the heads of detective squads will discuss criminal techniques and traffic experts will lecture on traffic problems. Also a psychiatrist will be on tap to mull over juvenile problems.

Lending aid with their special knowledge will be representatives of the FBI, Secret Service, Postal inspectors, and Police Chief Robert J. Barrett, who will open the session and deliver one of the lectures on crime detection.

Head of the school is Inspector Arthur E. Miller who expressed hope that eventually all members of the department will be able to attend classes.

Agents Find Hidden Cash, Pearson Says

Drew Pearson, columnist, charged in his radio program yesterday that agents of the Bureau of Internal Revenue have investigated a safety deposit box held by a Washington police captain in a bank near Washington.

Pearson said that considerable unexplained money was involved.

His charge, however, was vigorously denied by all Metropolitan police captains questioned about the report.

Inspector Robert J. Barrett said he knew nothing of the Internal Revenue probe. He learned of Pearson's charges, he said, when he was called by Inspector Robert Pearce. The inspector yesterday was acting superintendent.

Daniel B. Maher, retiring special assistant corporation counsel, asserted that he had "no personal knowledge of any such investigation by the Bureau of Internal Revenue."

Pearson, in his broadcast over station WMAL, said the investigation took place last week. The safety deposit box was in a branch of the Suburban National Bank, he said, which has branches in Takoma Park, Silver Spring and Bethesda.

Bureau of Internal Revenue spokesmen stated they could not divulge whether such an investigation has taken place, or the name of any person concerned.

Captains queried were Howard Covell, of the First Precinct; Charles Sullivan, Third; James Silvea, Fifth; Beverly Beach, Seventh; Anthony Richitt, Eighth; William Murphy, Ninth; Basil McAllister, Tenth; Clyde Strange, Twelfth; Robert D. Chenault, Thirteenth, and Paul Barnes, Fourteenth.

Hybla Valley Air Show Postponed for Week

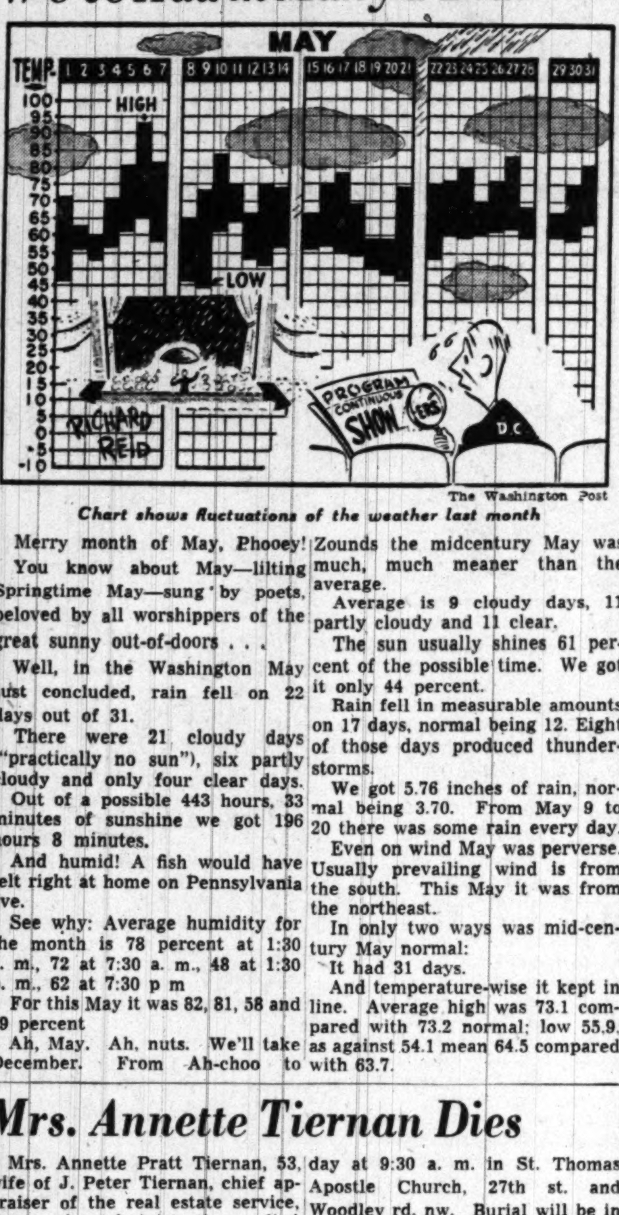
May Was the Darnedest April We've Had in Many a Year



The Washington Post

Chart shows fluctuations of the weather last month

Merry month of May, Phooey!

You know about May—lilting Springtime May—sung by poets, beloved by all worshippers of the great sunny out-of-doors . . .

Well, in the Washington May just concluded, rain fell on 22 days out of 31.

There were 21 cloudy days ("practically no sun"), six partly cloudy and only four clear days.

Out of a possible 443 hours, 33 minutes of sunshine we got 196 hours 8 minutes.

And humid! A fish would have felt right at home on Pennsylvania ave.

See why: Average humidity for the month is 78 percent at 1:30 a. m., 72 at 7:30 a. m., 48 at 1:30 p. m., 62 at 7:30 p m

For this May it was 82, 81, 58 and 69 percent

Ah, May. Ah, nuts. We'll take December. From Ah-choo to Zounds the midcentury May was much, much meaner than the average.

Average is 9 cloudy days, 11 partly cloudy and 11 clear.

The sun usually shines 61 percent of the possible time. We got it only 44 percent.

Rain fell in measurable amounts on 17 days, normal being 12. Eight of those days produced thunderstorms.

We got 5.76 inches of rain, normal being 3.70. From May 9 to 20 there was some rain every day.

Even on wind May was perverse. Usually prevailing wind is from the south. This May it was from the northeast.

In only two ways was mid-century May normal:

It had 31 days.

And temperature-wise it kept in line. Average high was 73.1 compared with 73.2 normal; low 55.9, as against 54.1 mean 64.5 compared with 63.7.

Mrs. Annette Tiernan Dies

Mrs. Annette Pratt Tiernan, 53, wife of J. Peter Tiernan, chief appraiser of the real estate service, Veterans' Administration, died early yesterday in Georgetown University Hospital after an illness of several months.

A native of Kansas City, Mo., Mrs. Tiernan was a member of the Junior League of that city and a member of the Dobbs Alumnae here. She had lived here for the past 15 years, coming from Kansas City.

The Right Rev. L. Curtis Tiernan of Kansas City, who was chaplain in President Truman's regiment during World War I, is her husband's brother. Also surviving are a son, Edward Pratt Tiernan, and a daughter, Betty Curtis Tiernan, who reside with their father at 3108 33d pl. nw.

Requiem mass will be held Tuesday at 9:30 a. m. in St. Thomas Apostle Church, 27th st. and Woodley rd. nw. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Miss Thompson Funeral Rites Set Tuesday

Funeral services for Miss Grace Thompson, 86, former owner and manager of Thompson's Dairy, will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday at Hysong's Funeral Home, 1300 N st. nw. Burial will be in St. Paul's Cemetery, near Alexandria.

Miss Thompson died Friday night at her residence, 5413 16th st. nw.

Miss Thompson was the youngest child and last survivor of a family of 10 children. Born in New York State, she came to Virginia at the age of 5, when her father, Theron Thompson, bought Hollin Hall, near Mount Vernon, Va.

Her brother, John S. Thompson, founded Thompson's Dairy at Hollin Hall. She an two sisters, Theresa and Ellen, inherited the dairy on his death in 1898.

Miss Grace Thompson took over the management of the dairy when her sister Ellen died. A nephew, Arthur Lee Thompson, became manager a few years ago.

A graduate of Wilson Teachers College, Miss Thompson taught for four years in the District's public schools before resigning to run the dairy.

She was a charter and life member of the Soroptimist Club of Washington and was active in Children's Hospital, where she served on the board of directors. Survivors include nine nieces and nephews and their families.

How three men found the one real source of security!

Building his own security

"I don't want my children burdened by taxes for my security," says NORBERT J. ROSAR, Scranton, Pa. "But that could happen if people depend too much on government and not enough on themselves." So Rosar's building his own security. Since the war he has risen from record presser to night foreman at Capitol Records, Inc., supervises 100 men. His initiative and leadership are paying off!

These three men—and millions like them—have used their ingenuity and plain stick-to-it-iveness to make the most of the opportunities America offers today.

They're standing on their own feet—getting security in the only way you can get it—by earning it.

They know you can't get something for nothing. No government can give you that. At most, government can only give back what it takes from people in taxes, the taxes that come out of the money you earn by hard work.

Whether collected directly from you or through the corporations whose goods and services you buy, everybody including you pays those taxes.

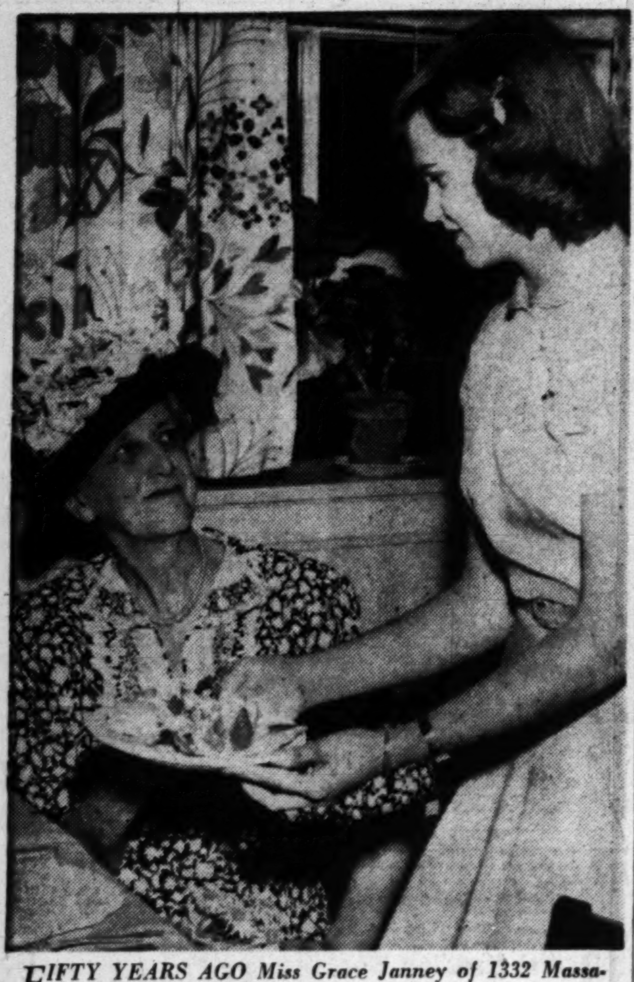
The life insurance companies and their agents bring you this message because their job is to help Americans build real security for themselves and their families . . . and to safeguard the "security dollars" of 80 million policyholders.

The Institute of Life Insurance—central source of information—488 Madison Ave., New York 22, N. Y.

RALPH K. POMEROY, of North Reading, Mass., worked up to safety supervisor of John P. Squire Co., at 30. From a start as meat trimmer, his get-up-'n'-git got him the college training he needed to get ahead. "No real American wants others to support him," he says. "That's why I'm for self-made security."

Instrument designer at 26!

ROBERT J. THOMAS, JR., 26, of Providence, R. I., rose from blueprint machine operator to designer of high precision instruments at Federal Products Corp. Did it on his own initiative, studying mechanical design at night. "I want to stand on my own feet," says Bob. "That way, a man has the right to enjoy the independence he earns."



FIFTY YEARS AGO Miss Grace Janney of 1332 Massachusetts ave. (left) was a sweet girl grad at Mount Vernon Seminary. On Saturday, she was the 'oldest grad' at the school's Alumnae Reunion luncheon. Sixteen-year-old Sally Cord, serving her, is the prep school's youngest graduate this year

End of a Perfect Celebrities' Day

Stars of Meet Sip and Relax

When participants in the fourth annual National Celebrities Golf Tournament came to the end of a practically perfect day Saturday, they weren't left alone with their thoughts by any means.

Instead, they faced a big evening which began at the Bob Hope show and ended at a supper party given by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Graham at the Meyer residence on Crescent pl. There, celebrities from the Washington hierarchy of government and diplomacy mingled with big visiting names from the world of theater and sport.

The golf tournament, which ended a two-day play yesterday at the Army Navy Country Club, was sponsored by The Washington Post. Saturday's party hosts, Mr. Meyer and Mr. Graham, are chairman of the board and publisher, respectively.

Surprise Weddings Interest Capital Socialites

By Marie McNair

TWO weddings which come as something of a surprise to their Washington friends are those of Margaret Burnside Lowrey, married in California to Capt. Stanley Gilbert Nichols, and Margaret McNeale Moffett, who became Mrs. William Augustus Moncure on Friday in Leesburgh, Va.

Mrs. Lowrey, former wife of Vernon Lowrey, became a bride for the second time in the Navy Family Chapel at Long Beach. She left Washington early last week, after putting her house on Prospect ave., Georgetown, up for sale.

Dr. Wade H. Walker gave his cousin in marriage and Mrs. William Carey Callaghan of San Mateo, Calif. was her only attendant. The bride wore mauve shantung with a hat fashioned of silk petals shading from mauve to wood violet. After a reception at the Officers' Town Club the couple left for a wedding trip to Laguna Beach. They'll live at the LaFayette Hotel in Long Beach.

Captain Nichols is skipper of the USS Cimarron, now at Long Beach. He's a graduate of the class of '26 at the Naval Academy and a member of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, and of the American Society of Naval Engineers. While in Washington he was on engineering duty at the Bureau of Ships.

Mrs. Nichols, daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Burnside of Wichita Falls, Tex., was active in the Red Cross during the war years and the Stage Door Canteen.

The marriage of Mrs. Moffett, daughter of Mrs. Donald Meredith McNeal of Leesburg, Va., and Washington, and William Moncure, was held in St. James Episcopal Church with Dr. Francis A. Cox, brother-in-law of the bridegroom officiating, assisted by the Rev. J. Manly Cobb, rector of St. James.

William H. Lipscomb gave the bride in marriage and Comdr. S. P. Moncure of Newport, R. I., was his brother's best man. The bride was formerly married to Comdr. William A. Moffett, son of W. A. Moffett and the late Admiral Moffett.

Leaving Washington A Little Early

FORMER Attorney General and Mrs. Francis Biddle are preparing to leave town a bit earlier than usual this summer for Wellfleet on Cape Cod where they have a summer home.

Mr. Biddle is putting the finishing touches on another book and Mrs. Biddle is working on another book of poems.

To say au revoir for awhile to their Washington friends, Mr. and Mrs. Biddle entertained at cocktails on Saturday at their home in Georgetown.

The retiring Ecuador Ambassador and Senora de Dillon were the guests in whose honor Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, wife of the late Senator from Illinois, entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Sulgrave Club.

Also entertaining yesterday were Senator and Mrs. Herbert Lehman who gave a supper party in their apartment at Wardman Park for the more than 20 members of the Senator's office staff.

Bridesmaid Honors Wedding Party

MISS Patricia Polk Morgan and William Clarkson Stuart, who'll be married June 12, were guests of honor at a buffet supper given by Miss Julia Easley last evening. Miss Easley will be a bridesmaid at the wedding.

Other guests, all members of the wedding party, were Miss Mary Lee Lonergan, Mrs. Lonergan Lockhart, Miss Janet Gilchrist, Miss Beverly Easley, Gray Stuart, Cass Leigh, Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. West, jr., Richard Gaskins, John Pellam and Loren Sage.

Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert has gone to Sea Island, Ga., for several days and will be joined there by Mrs. Daniel Mahoney of Florida, a recent visitor to Washnigton.

DATE-BOOK DATA: The Swiss Minister and Mme. Bruggmann will give a farewell reception "on the terrace" at 9 p. m. Thursday evening, in honor of the retiring Netherlands Ambassador and Mme. van Kleffens.

The Belgian Ambassador, Baron Robert Silvercruys, will be host at dinner on June 12 in honor of Stanley Woodward, former Chief of Protocol, recently named Ambassador to Canada, and Mrs. Woodward. The Canadian Ambassador and Mrs. Hume Wrong will entertain at a farewell dinner on June 13 in honor of Ambassador and Mrs. Woodward. Mr. and Mrs. Woodward will be guests of honor at still another farewell party on June 8 when Lieut. Gen. and Mrs. Matthew Ridgway will entertain at diner.

There's a Silver Lining to Clouds On Your Iced Tea Pitcher; a Little Hot Water Will Cause Them to Vanish

"SUMMERTIME and the living is easy" . . . but fraught with such problems as how to keep cool and how to make iced tea. With the "heated season" approaching, G. W. A. writes as follows:

DEAR ANNE:
What makes iced tea cloud and what is the remedy? G. Y. A., 2303 10th st. nw.

"Cloudiness in iced tea, which does not affect either flavor or quality, is caused when the temperature of the tea drops to the point at which it can no longer hold all its components in soluble form. The formation of minute solids gives the cloudy appearance."

That's quoted from a bulletin issued by the tea bureau, which turns quickly from this technical information to cheery news. Cloudiness can be cured.

All you have to do is add a small amount of boiling water, and the particles will dissolve again. The iced tea has just naturally gotten too cold. Stronger brews, which contain more tea, tend to cloud more readily than weaker ones. And here's a surprise: Very high quality tea clouds faster than others.

Making the tea correctly is, of course, important in getting a satisfactory brew. With the season starting, we might as well review that.

To make eight servings of tea in a pitcher, first put 8 teaspoons of tea or 8 tea bags into a teapot and pour on 1 pint (2 glasses) of fresh boiling water.

Let stand 5 minutes. Stir, then strain into a glass or crockery serving pitcher. Dilute with 2 pints (4 full glasses) cold tap water and let stand at room temperature until ready to serve.

Fill glasses with ice, and pour tea from pitcher over the ice.

DEAR ANNE:
You could advise your reader who wants to learn professional skilled baking that a hotel training school here does teach it. One of their graduates is forelady for the bakery of one of the biggest department stores here now. The telephone number of the school is Metropolitan 4692. Estelle L. Nismonger,

DEAR ANNE:
One of your readers asks what will repel mice: We have found through long experience that the best thing to scatter about in drawers where they make nests, on rugs, beds, and bedding is whole cloves. When we close the house, we use about two boxes of this. The cloves are absolutely harmless and easily removed after use. We find them most satisfactory M. S. Martin, 1514 17th st. nw.

DEAR ANNE:
I hope you can help me with my decorating problem. I have tried to sketch the living room, dinette and kitchen. The walls are dusty rose and blue haze. What color rug should I buy for the living room? I have a blue rug now, but would like to change the color. What color slip covers should I get? Only one end of the dinette shows from the living room—that is, only one side that is painted blue.
Mrs. G., Lexington Park

There are several color possibilities to blend with your blue and rose walls. If you want to keep the room in muted tones, you might try a grey rug, preferably a clear silvery grey. Your slipcovers with this combination might combine blue and grey in some attractive floral pattern or stripe.

Or, you could use a rose carpet, in a shade darker than the walls. This arrangement would permit you to introduce still other hues in your slipcovers. Beige or tan tones, for example would combine interestingly with the two tones of rose. For a sophisticated touch of accent color, you could introduce some chartreuse or lime into such a room with surprisingly good effect.

A third possibility for your carpet would be a very dark red tone, either maroon or plum, depending on the exact shade of your rose walls. With this, you might try slipcover material with grey background figured in plum and lime, or a pattern of grey and rose. It goes without saying that all slipcover materials should be tried out in a room, by means of swatches, before a final decision is made, since colors show up differently in varying lights and positions.

Nylon Lastex Is Word In Summer Swim Suits

The first thing almost every woman buys for her summer wardrobe is a bathing suit—or more than one. For if you swim every day you really need more than one, even for a two-week holiday.

I think that I would choose one real swim suit and one dressmaker bathing suit. That way you can change your type as well as your suit on different days.

Tops in swim suits are those in nylon lastex. This year, swim suits are softer and dressier — with smart dressmaker details. Already the star fashion is a smart one-piecer that buttons down the front with big pearl buttons and has smart draped pockets.

AAA Seeking Parking Lot Regulation

The American Automobile Association has launched a nation-wide drive to fix the responsibility of parking lot and garage operators for cars left in their care.

An ordinance has been drawn up by the AAA for consideration by municipalities in which lots and garages "need a greater degree of regulation in the public interest," according to an announcement yesterday.

The AAA also has a recommended statute for states in which municipalities do not have the power to adopt such a regulatory ordinance.

Included in the proposed municipal ordinance are provisions that would make it illegal for anyone to operate a parking facility without a license; require parking facilities to post surety bonds and revoke licenses for negligence or failure to pay final judgment in damage suits.

The recommended statute includes provisions for owners of parking facilities to exercise reasonable care to protect vehicles in their care; damage to vehicles to be prima facie evidence of negligence if car owners give notice before accepting delivery of their autos, and regulations covering owners who attempt to reduce their liability.

Mystic Order Vanguard Arrives Here

The vanguard of some 12,000 Masons from 48 States and two Canadian provinces began arriving in Washington last night for the four-day National Grotto convention which opens Wednesday.

Highlight of the meeting of the organization, formally known as the Mystic Order of Veiled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm, will be a parade Thursday, starting at 1:30 p. m. at 3d st. and Constitution ave. nw.

One of the more colorful contingents will be 50 horsemen from Longi Grotto in Brooklyn, N. Y. They are scheduled to arrive here today.

Among the distinguished members of the Grotto are President Harry S. Truman, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, and University President Harold E. Stassen.

Supreme Council officers will be elected Friday at 9:30 a. m. Supreme Council contests will be at 1:30 p. m. with drill and drum corps competing at the South Ellipse, bands at the Statler Hotel and choral clubs at Almas Temple.

Phone Company Plans Honors for Miss May Grimes

Miss May E. Grimes, Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. accounting supervisor who started with the firm when Theodore Roosevelt was in the White House, will be guest of honor at a testimonial luncheon at 12:30 p. m. today at the Statler Hotel.

Miss Grimes

A native of Georgetown, "Aunt May," as she is known to her associates, joined the telephone company at 17, on June 5, 1905, when the District had 20,000 telephones, compared with 472,000 today. Miss Grimes, who lives at 3540 Whitehaven pkwy. nw., attended Addison and Jackson schools and Business High School.

She will be presented a telephone service pin with three diamonds, one for each 15 years of service, by Robert W. Michie, C. & P. vice president and comptroller.

Million Dollars Paid For Virginia Estate

Williamsburg, Va., June 4 (AP).—What is probably the largest single property transaction in this area took place in James City County with the transfer of the historic Kingsmill estate to the Thomas M. Brooks Lumber Co. of Richmond for a consideration of one million dollars.

The 3100-acre tract is located about 3 miles east of here and fronts for more than a mile on the James River.

Piano Selections For 746 Hands Heard

Detroit, June 4 (AP).—Ever hear of a piano selection arranged for 746 hands?

No? Well, that's right. Composers ordinarily score their piano compositions, at most, for eight hands—four persons.

But today, at Olympia Stadium here 373 boys and girls sat down at 187 pianos and simultaneously thumped through two selections.

Sing Sing Escape Is First in 9 Years

Ossining, N. Y., June 4 (U.P.).—A prisoner so trusted he cooked the warden's meals escaped from Sing Sing Prison today, and authorities pressed a seaplane into the search for him after a rowboat was reported missing in the Hudson River half a mile from the prison.

Edward Connelly, 40-year-old Brooklyn, N. Y., convict who has been arrested eight times since 1930, staged the first break from Sing Sing in nine years by merely walking out of the kitchen in Warden William E. Snyder's home outside the prison walls.

Folk Songs Of Greece Presented

By Paul Hume

Every land has its favorite folk songs. And every land hopes that some day other countries may hear and learn to admire its native folk lore.

Greece, with its ancient sagas of heroism and classic beauty, has sent a singer to America to spread knowledge and appreciation of its folk songs. His name—take a deep breath—Alkis Papaconstantinou. He sang last night in the Grand Ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel.

Playing his own piano accompaniments, Papaconstantinou sang songs from every region of Greece and its environs. He was assisted by Zoe Calevas, soprano, of Washington. Before the evening ended, the Bethesda-Chevy Senior High School Chorus sang two songs in Greek, including the Greek national anthem.

The music resembles, superficially, certain Russian and Slavic folk music we have heard. It has rhythmic vitality, but after a time seems monotonous, both in rhythm and harmony. Its melodies, too, show little variation in shape of their lines.

If other instruments than piano had been available for the program, the music would have sounded more as it is intended to be.

Pacific Fleet Is 'Adequate,' Radford Says

Tokyo (Monday), June 5 (AP). The United States Navy's Pacific commander said today the Pacific fleet which now packs a jet-propelled punch is "adequate to any immediate tasks we can foresee."

Admiral Arthur W. Radford said at a news conference that Navy bases in Japan are not essential to America's security.

"The Navy could move additional ships quickly, if necessary, to any threatened area," the tall, four-star admiral said.

Japan's Yokosuka is "a very fine base," Radford commented, but "it isn't essential." He declined to elaborate beyond saying that Guam is the Navy's most important forward Pacific base. The Navy could get along with Guam and Pearl Harbor, Radford said, by using mobile support and supply ships.

But Radford earlier told an Associated Press reporter that one reason he did not consider Yokosuka vital was "we cannot depend upon the Japanese to cooperate."

Holober Plea To Be Heard

Richmond, Va., June 4 (AP). Oral arguments will be heard here tomorrow on a petition for a writ of error in the conviction of Charles Francis Holober, confessed slayer of his wife and baby daughter.

T. Brooke Howard, counsel for the 41-year-old former Washington cab driver, will present the arguments before Justice Willis D. Miller, of the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals.

Holober was convicted by a jury in Fairfax County circuit court January 13 and was sentenced to be electrocuted by Judge Paul E. Brown on a single charge of murder in connection with the death of his wife.

Holober originally was scheduled to be executed February 15, but has won three stays of execution—the latest to June 15—to allow time for the petition for appeal to the Supreme Court

Ching Proposes Pensions Study

Federal Mediation Director Cyrus Ching proposed yesterday the creation of a special commission to devise a "fair and equitable" pension system for the Nation's workers.

Ching said it would confront such problems as how much the economy can stand in the way of pensions and welfare payments, and how private plans should be integrated with the Government system.

Reaches for Ball, Falls to Death

Fitchburg, Mass., June 4 (AP). A 6-year-old boy tossed a baseball today to George Agrerios, standing at a second-floor window. Argerios, 58, reached for it and fell 18 feet out the window, suffering a fractured skull and a possible fracture of the spine.

He died tonight at Burbank Hospital.

Strike Averted

Detroit, June 4 (AP).—The Detroit Edison Co. and the CIO Utility Workers reached an agreement in a wage dispute tonight. The settlement came a few hours before the 11 p. m. deadline set for a strike of 4500 workers. Terms were not disclosed.

STENOGRAPHER FOR NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING DEPARTMENT
Why take a boring job in a dull office, when here's a chance to work in a fast-moving, hard-hitting advertising sales department with something new going on all the time? If you like a placid life, this is not for you. But if you're a fast and accurate stenographer and proud of it, if you like a job that tests your capabilities and keeps you active mentally, phone NAtional 4200, extension 311, and ask for an interview appointment. Experience not as important as speed and drive.

Neighbors Who Are in the Vicinity of Congressional Club,
I am building my own home on a beautiful hill right opposite the entrance to the club. Now what we want is a shopping center so people can supply their house in every way including their automobile. A Giant Store would be the best solution of this problem. I have 5 acres just north of where the Bradley and River roads merge together. If you will work with us you can have everything you want in that neighborhood handy. The zoning law was made for the comfort and convenience of the people who live in the neighborhood. Reach me at my home WO. 0933 and we will talk it over. Fulton R. Gordon, owner. Brokers' attention.

DEVELOPED FOR WATER SPORTS!
The developers of Drum Point Beach must have had all lovers of water sports in mind when they planned this lovely year-'round beach retreat! The specially developed harbor area, protected and secluded, has special appeal to the numerous owners and operators of boats and pleasure craft. The Patuxent River is overabundant with the best fisheries in the Bay area; 4 perfectly lovely fresh-water lakes offer leisurely small boating and canoeing, and the wide, beautiful white sand beaches along the Chesapeake Bay leave nothing to be desired in luxurious bathing, surf swimming and sunning. It is unbelievable that so much is packed into one beach development; yet today this is only half the story. For you water lovers, the new Drum Point Beach Section Seven has just opened—offering, for the first time to the public, waterfront sites, where you can tie your boat at your front door, amazingly low priced from $750 (Other choice lots from $350.) Add to this the latest improvements of Drum Point Beach—community of fine homes, electricity, telephone lines, piers, streets, to name a few—and you realize that you need wait no longer; the waterfront you've always dreamed of is a reality today. See it this very weekend. Follow these directions to Drum Point Beach: Out Bladensburg Road to Peace Cross, on out to Landover Road, right on route 202 thru Upper Marlboro on route 4 to Wells Corner, right on route 416 thru Prince Frederick, route 2 for 15 miles, left at the sign Drum Point Beach.

Walter Winchell —In New York

Man About Town

Bette Davis' next will be Gary Merrill (seen here in "Born Yesterday"), if his wife agrees to the divorcee requested . . . Rita Hayworth, still steaming over Ali's intrigues, is having tea regularly with American diplomat J. Galliher . . . A Time-Lifer has offered his wife a million to let him wed another . . . The Charles Luckmans, reported rifting by many colms, used the same tepee in Detroit this week . . . Novelist Kathryn Cravens (the papyrus reported) got $300,000 via her long-time friend's will. It was really One Million (after taxes!) . . . They say the reason Ray Scarborough, the Senators' hurler, was peddled to Chicago instead of the Yankees is that Bucky Harris, the Washington pilot, will never forgive the New Yorkers for dumping him after finishing 2d in '48 . . . Lizabeth Scott, the star, becoming Mrs. Col. P. Corcoran soon? . . . Margaret Truman's most ardent admirer is recently abrogated concert artist Mario Braggiotti.

The Amerasia Case "fix" came from away high up . . . Stettinius was Secy. of State at the time and he was very worried about "offending the Russians" . . . Alger Hiss was closest to Stettinius then—and the director of the top level Office of Special Political Affairs . . . Isaac Don Levine has been pushed out as editor of Plain Talk magazine . . . Some of Merwin K. Hart's pals (who have coin in the mag) didn't appreciate the excellent essay Don did exposing That Soandso . . . When the Amerasia matter unravels the lady editor of The Nation will be embarrassed.

One of the most hush-hush meetings of all time was held recently by the very top movie moguls. They seriously discussed closing the major studios as a protest against high labor costs . . . The Roxy auditions girls for "the line" at 11 a. m. . . . Billy Kenny of the Inkspots is being sued for $50,000 (alleged alienation of affection) by Mrs. Kenny's ex-husband . . . The Michael St. Angels (Marjorie Holliday) 5th Ann'y was the big event at Ciro's in Movietown last night. Still going on. They expecting a little Angel? . . . Gene Pope, jr.'s brilliant appeal for Italian displaced is expected to result in an amendment permitting entry of many . . . Mike Lyman is very much alive and to prove it he sent the Runyon Fund a check for $1000 . . . Gamblers at the ballparks are using Wall Street finger-lingo.

Jack Frye, ex-airlines prexy (who is being divorced), is also finl with show-gel Nevada Smith, a Long-Time Thing . . . It's a dghtr. for the L. Shubert Lawrences (he's mgr. of "So. Pac.") at French Hosp. . . . The George Clarkes (he's the Boston Boswell) are 3'ing . . . Arline Judge, seeking $47,000 from her last groom, has accepted a settlement of $2500 . . . The Cugats are getting the papers to print some fancy fibs. Quick mag, too. It reports he is willing to give estranged wife Lorraine Allen $250,000. The Facts: She wants only 15 Gs—he offers 5 . . . Don McNeil (of "Breakfast Club" fame) has been signed by ABC for 20 yrs. . . . Director Rouben Mamoulian and wife are in mourning. Their cat fell out of their 37th floor apt. at the Pierre losing all nine lives.

The Marquess of Blandford and Lord Westmoreland, once Great Pals, now cut-each-other-dead. Competing for Virginia Leigh, who improved her social standing by elevating from a common debutante to a gossip columnist . . . Sailing Baruch, jr. and socialite Dorothy Hales are doing their paw-fondling at Elizabeth Norman's spot . . . Nancy Oakes' brother Pitt will merge with a Parisian ballet dancer, despite mater's objections . . . Novelist John Steinbeck's new constant comp in Mexico City is the beauteous dghtr. of a wealthy Mex. tribe . . . Harry Bridges' union has voted to continue his salary if he goes to the clink . . . Countess Dorothy di Frasso has insomnia because the juvenile lead of a hit show is happily married. They met at the farewell poddy for the Dook and Dookiss . . . Mercy-Killer Dr. Sanders still gets big crank mail.

Sinclair Lewis and Ruth Mattinson (none of his intimates over here ever heard of her) have atomic'd . . . A society matron, spotting her husband with a local cutie in a smart bistro, chased and followed him right into the Men's Powder Room. This, of course, resulted in all sorts of Embarrassing Sitcheeayshuns. Her name's Eloise. His is Jay . . . Marina Torlonia Shields and architect Edward Slater are building a romance . . . Liz Whitney Person bought the chapel from the old J. P. Morgan estate on Long Island. Turning it into a summer home . . . Johns Hopkins expects the exiled King Zog of Albania . . . The Earl of Warwick, who is s'posed to be all wrapped up in P. Goddard, sends posies daily to the Duchess of Kent . . . Edith Piaf's top gift-sender is Phillipe de Gaulle, the General's boy. Mrs. DeG is simply fee-yoo-ree-uss.

Life's right hand apparently doesn't bother to find out what its southpaw's been doing. The Duke of Windsor's prim and proper discussion of his romance with the Duchess is entirely different from the story in Time's files. Probably didn't even bother to look . . . Ronald Reagan's next mate may be Penny Edwards . . . Helen Brooks, six-time married socialite, is baiting her 7th. He is D. Schoonmacker, Bev Hills bizman . . . Portia Nelson and Noel Rayborn have it so terrible they let their Ruby Foo chowmein get cold . . . Setch langwidge between Yvonne Adair and "Gents Prefer Blondes" producer Levin. Yvonne! Please remember there are stagehands present . . . Florence Van Cleve is returning to Paris and Prince Hussan, the Egyptian billionaire . . . Betty Hensel can eat for nuttin' at Bob Neely's "Shanty" restaurant chain . . . The Public Relations "Man" at all-male Annapolis is a WAVE!

Your Trip Abroad

Variety of Tours Await Vacationers

Here is a new slant for your vacation, whether you're going abroad or spending your holiday close to home. This is the first of a series of six installments condensed from "Your Trip Abroad," a book just published by Doubleday & Co.

By Richard Joseph

CHAPTER ONE

The whole world awaits the two-week or three-week vacationist. Literally.

Before the war the average traveler had to consider where he wanted to go. How much it would cost him to get there.

The air age has just about eliminated the first factor from consideration. Since you can now fly around the globe on commercial airlines in less than five days, a good part of the world is now open to the two-week vacationist with a yen to cover ground in a hurry and an income large enough to pay for it.

The cost?

Can you afford to spend $150 on your vacation?

Or, to put it another way, could you save $3 a week for a year for your holiday?

Well, for $150—$3 a week—you can cross one of the world's most dramatic frontiers and spend two weeks in one of the most "different" civilizations on earth. You can speak (or try to speak) a different language, eat different food, hear different music, live in a truly different world in the hills and jungles and the tropical coasts of Mexico.

Once you're in Mexico you can live nicely for $5 a day, and that's for room and meals. You can thank the devaluation of the peso for that bargain. Before the war the peso used to be worth 20 cents, so that you bought slightly less than five pesos for your dollar. Now it will bill you almost 9 pesos.

Prices have gone up, certainly—but not that much. You can estimate that your dollar is worth 150 percent of its prewar value.

Gateway Cities

Right here is the place to remind you that vacation tours abroad usually start from one of several American gateway cities. The cost of transportation from your home to that gateway city is not included in the cost of the trip.

New York is the most important of all the gateway cities. Transportation people consider New York the gateway to western Europe, Scandinavia, the Mediterranean, the Near East and Africa.

New Orleans is the mid-south gateway for air service to Mexico and Central America and from there ships sail on cruises to the Carribean and the east coast of South America.

Miami is principal southeastern gateway to Latin America. It is the terminal for planes flying to the islands of the West Indies, to the east and west coasts of South America, and to Nassau. There is overnight boat service, too, between Miami and Havana.

Houston is a gateway point in figuring transportation costs for midwest people bound for Mexico, since much air and rail traffic passes through here. Dallas, Fort Worth, and San Antonio are just as frequently used by travel agents as reference points.

Los Angeles is our southwestern gateway to Mexico, Central and South America, Hawaii, and the Orient.

San Francisco is an important gateway to Hawaii and the Orient and is the home port of the Round the World cruises of the American President Lines.

For $150 (or a saving of $3 per week for a year) you can fly round trip between the nearest gateway city listed above and Bermuda, Jamaica, Havana, most of Canada and northern Mexico. By ship you can visit Bermuda, Havana, Halifax, Nova Scotia; St. John's, Newfoundland; southern Alaska, or cruise along the St. Lawrence and Saguenay Rivers of eastern Canada.

Two hundred dollars ($4 per week savings for a year) will fly you to and from Alaska, Newfoundland, most of Mexico, Guatemala, most of Central America and the Canal Zone, Haiti, the Dominican Republic, the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico, and Colombia.

If you have $300 available for round-trip transportation your horizon is widened to include Honolulu by sea or air, and air travel to all of Alaska, all of Central America, and the entire Caribbean area including the West Indies and the north coast of South America.

In the $300 bracket, too, you enter the cruise department of the travel market. Within this price range, you'll find 11- and 13-day itineraries between New York and various ports of the West Indies, 10- and 11-day Caribbean cruises out of New Orleans. In considering cruise possibilities, remember that rates are all-inclusive and that you therefore have no additional expense for hotel or meals.

To get to and from western Europe you'll have to figure on a minimum of $350. That will take you to England, Ireland, France, Belgium, or Holland, tourist class, on such ships as the Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary, America, Ile de France, Niew Amsterdam, Mauretania, Britannic, Batory, Veendam, and on some freighters. "Tourist" class is third-class on three-class boats or second-class on some two-class ships.

If you find yourself with $500 to spend on round-trip transportation from your gateway city a really broad travel vista is spread out before you.

You'll be able to go to Europe cabin (second) class on the finest ships plying the Atlantic or book passage on many ships during the off-season from October through April.

And you can fly to and from Europe on the 60-day round-trip excursion far between New York and England.

For $500 you can sail on 17- or 18-day cruises from New York to the West Indies, a 12-day cruise from New York to the Caribbean and the north coast of South America, 21-day cruises from New Orleans to the West Indies.

In the air, your $500 will take you from Miami to northern Brazil and northern Peru on regular first-class fares, and as far south at Lima on tourist-class planes.

The travel costs we have been discussing above cover one of the major expense items of your trip, but whatever your financial position you will want to have in advance an approximate idea at least of the total cost of your trip. There are so many variables that no one can tell you precisely what you will spend, but we can give you several simple methods to approximate those costs.

AEC to Start Work On Cancer Hospital

Chicago, June 4 (U.P.).—The Atomic Energy Commission announced today that it will begin this month to build a $3,500,000 hospital designed specifically for the use of radioactive materials.

The hospital will be constructed on the University of Chicago campus near the spot where the first atomic pile was built and put in operation to open up the reservoirs of atomic energy. It will be used primarily to test possible new cancer treatments.

Ears on Radio Towers

Air Free to Breathe, But That's About All

By Clarke Beach

YOU CAN get into a peck of trouble by stealing a thin strip of air.

You may still safely breathe all you want but if you try to send radio broadcasts on air space that doesn't belong to you, the ether cops will get you.

Uncle Sam has 19 enormous ears at radio towers all over the country. They listen day and night, and they can hear you thousands of miles away. Often they catch ethereal trespassers within a few minutes after they sneak on to radio bands where they don't belong. The fine can be as high as $10,000, and the prison term can be as long as two years.

The cops work in the monitoring and investigating services of the Federal Communications Commission (FCC). Their job is to help enforce the Federal Communications Act which requires that all radio stations and operations be licensed and that once a station has been assigned a frequency it must stay within its own band.

Mostly Checking

MUCH OF their work consists of checking up on accidental intrusions. A station may inadvertently wander off its band or an industrial machine may give off radio energy which causes interference with some regular broadcaster. No prosecutions result in such cases. The offender simply takes steps to see that it doesn't happen again.

The interference often causes trouble to only one station, perhaps thousands of miles away. FCC monitors have detected interference in this country from wobbly radio broadcasters as far away as South Africa and Java.

One day in 1947 the Tropical Radio Telegraph, operating from Miami to Central America, reported interference on its band. Within 24 hours FCC's monitors and engineers had spotted the trouble in an electronic heater in a manufacturing plant near Detroit.

First Step, Alert Stations

FIRST STEP in this type of sleuthing is for the FCC to alert three or more of its 19 monitoring stations. They all tune in on the frequency where there is trouble. By use of direction finders they can draw lines on maps in the direction from which the offending signal is coming.

Then the general area in which the lines converge is plotted by a central intelligence unit. To this area the FCC dispatches monitoring cars. Two or more of these drive around and take new "fixes" on the signal until they pinpoint it—to a city block, a certain factory, a hotel—or racetrack grandstand.

If the offending apparatus still can't be quickly spotted, investigators go on foot with "snifters"—receiving sets which they can carry in their pockets. With these they trace the signal to the room or spot where it is loudest.

Race Track Dodge

A PERENNIAL violation, which usually brings jail sentences and heavy fines, involves race track characters who beat the bookmakers by broadcasting racing results from the grandstands.

They carry pocket transmitters, and their entire bodies often are strung with antenna wires. They broadcast to stronger stations, hidden in trucks or tourist cabins just outside the tracks, and these relay the results to friends or customers near bookie shops.

When the bookie accepts the bet, he doesn't know the race already has been run. The Government first learned of this kind of cheating in 1928, and new cases are turning up all the time.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Our Bill Gets a Lesson In Home Economics

A phenomenon of American life that I fail to understand is that favorite undertaking of women's groups, the "bake sale."

The average housewife is never as heavy-handed with the butter, the walnuts, and other costly ingredients, as when she's baking for somebody else.

But after she spends half a day fixing up a cake that's fit for a king, it winds up bringing in no more revenue than some store cake might.

By way of example, the other day the lady at our house spent several hours of time and about $3 for ingredients to bake up a batch of her very best cookies.

When they were finished, she told me where to deliver them (without sampling any en route) and then added:

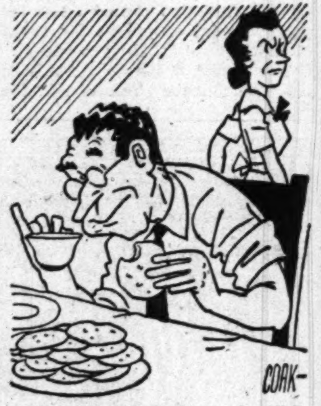
"Buy something from the girls while you're there; they need the money."

"Why don't we just keep the cookies and send them $3?" I asked. She didn't even bother to answer. She just put my hat on my head and nudged me out the door.

I delivered my cargo as instructed, and while the lady behind the counter began laying the cookies out in an attractive display I tried to find something tempting to spend my money on.

But nothing looked as good to me as the cookies I had just brought in. "How much for the whole lot?" I finally blurted.

"Two dollars," came the prompt reply.



"Put them back in the box," I said. "It's a deal."

I had some of those cookies with my breakfast coffee yesterday, and they were delicious. In fact, I'm quite pleased with the way the whole thing turned out.

Except, I regret to add, for one thing. I do wish my wife would start talking to me again.

The Yankee owner hit four spectators . . . A spectator who started up a noisy movie camera as Hope lined up a putt called out: "Cameras don't bother you, do they Bob?" "Oh, is that a camera?" asked Bob, stroking in the putt. "It sounded like a cement mixer." . . . Danny Kaye's performance on the first tee Sunday was a real classic. There's a guy who can get more laughs without saying a word than some comedians can with a staff of gag writers . . . George Fazio was reminiscing about the tournament at White Sulphur in which Ben Hogan caught fire. "I came in with a 66 that day, and thought I had something, until they told me Hogan's score," he recalled . . . The most impressive thing about the Nation's biggest celebrities is that they're regular guys, trying to lend a hand to a worthy cause. In the locker room when it was all over, I went over to try to tell Hogan how much I enjoyed covering his match. But he beat me to the punch by thanking me . . . From now on, anybody who doesn't think Ben Hogan is the greatest guy in the world is going to have me to lick.

Tax Forgiveness Losing Ground

By Drew Pearson

Congressmen are beginning to change their minds about voting income-tax forgiveness to tax defrauders who come in to the Treasury and fess up.

Pearson

Such a tax-forgiveness proposal was voted by the House Ways and Means Committee the other day at the urging of Congressman Walter Lynch, New York City Democrat.

However, some consider it significant that Congressman Lynch has the backing of Joe Nunan, former Commissioner of Internal Revenue now handling a lucrative income-tax-law business; and that Nunan in turn has been representing Frankie Costello.

Regardless of who was behind the tax-forgiveness bill, however, it is now recognized that this would chiefly benefit such big racketeers as Frankie Costello. In fact, some of the big gangsters are said to be praying that such an income-tax-forgiveness bill will pass. For that is about the only way the Federal Government can catch up with them.

Realizing this, several Congressmen are now changing their votes, among them veteran Representative Herman Eberharter of Pittsburgh.

"Like a lot of people, I thought it would bring in some quick money to help balance the budget," says Eberharter. "However, if we approve something like this, it will be an admission that our revenue-collection system has broken down and that we have got to forgive criminals to get money."

The only Congressmen who had the foresight to speak out against tax-forgiveness were John Carroll of Colorado, Jere Cooper of Tennessee and Stephen Young of Ohio, all Democrats.

"I will not compromise with a willful fraud," Carroll challenged his colleagues. "Instead of giving big tax evaders immunity, we ought to increase our tax-collection force and go after them."

"That's exactly how I feel," added Young. "It's outrageous to think of giving amnesty to racketeers, gamblers and war profiteers who evaded taxes when we needed the money the most."

Dulles vs. Johnson

It looks like the Republican watchdog of United States foreign policy, John Foster Dulles, was going to be something of a disappointment to his fellow Republicans. Simultaneously it looks as if the big Democratic money-raiser, Secretary of Defense Louey Johnson, was going to be quite a help to the Republicans.

In fact, Johnson, the Democrat, is probably going to please the Republicans, more than Dulles, the dyed-in-the-wool Republican.

It was over aid to Formosa and Nationalist China that Republican Senators raised such a howl last winter—a howl which led to the appointment of Wall Street attorney John Foster Dulles as State Department adviser.

Now GOP Senators find that GOP Dulles is privately critical of GOP General Douglas MacArthur and his Japanese policies, one of which is sending arms to Formosa.

Meanwhile, Secretary Johnson lectures Congressmen in support of MacArthur.

"There is no Japanese problem General MacArthur can't solve," he says. "The Japs don't want him to leave. Nor do they want a change to civilian rule. There is no resentment against our occupation."

However, MacArthur's tight censorship has prevented the American public from getting a true picture of what is happening in Japan. Nor does the Pentagon Building appear to be fully informed.

For, according to information which State Department Adviser Dulles has given to Senators, Japanese communism is definitely growing, and even Jap businessmen, wanting a share of the huge Chinese market now dominated by the Communists, talk about doing business with communism.

Dulles, in searching talks with Senators, has said he feels the United States must win over Japan as a partner in the cold war. The dilemma, Dulles confided to Senators, is that if American troops move out, then armed Communists will move in. Yet if the present military occupation remains, Communists have a better battle cry for sabotaging us.

Can You Send Your Child to College?

Would you like to be sure that your child is going to have the college training he will want? You can prepare for it now while he is still young. By putting away a regular amount each month with this Association, where invested dollars are earning valuable returns, his schooling can be planned for the years ahead.

Under this sensible saving plan, your dollars are safe until you need them. Systematic saving is a sound way to be sure that college bills can be met without burdening you or your son with financial worries. Prepare for those four years now by starting a college savings fund.

You can start with $5 or more and dollars deposited by the eighth of any month share in the earnings for the full calendar month.

Hecht Co. Fashions Share Honors at Annual Benefit National Society of Arts and Letters

Belles lettres and beautiful fashions shared the artistic spotlight when Washington's popular Virginia Baker previewed the Annual Scholarship Benefit of the National Society of Arts and Letters. The vivacious Virginia won her share of awards, too, in the form of compliments over her eye-dazzling Summer ensembles from the Hecht Co. Like so many on-the-go Washingtonians, Miss Baker looks to the Fashion Floor of this great Store in the Nation's Capital for flattering costumes for important social functions.

LOOKING forward to a highly successful event at the Shoreham on June 8th at 2 p. m. (tickets, $3, tax included, at door) are, left to right: Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, Mrs. Carl A. Spaatz, Chairman Radio and Television Committee; Mrs. James M. Gibson, Art Chairman, and Mrs. Winifred H. Artaud, Corresponding Secretary.

VIRGINIA BAKER SELECTS OUR HENRY ROSENFELD SUMMER SUIT, $25
